JAPAN DELIVERS ULTIMATUM TO CHINESE ARMY

Demands All Troops Evacuate Shanghai.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 18.—(1 p. m.)—Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister, announced at noon today that an ultimatum, in verbal form, had been given to Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, commander of the Chinese 19th route army. The ultimatum demands that the Chinese withdraw their troops beyond gunshot distance of the international settlement. In event the Chinese comply, the Japanese will also make a "slight withdrawal" of their forces, supposedly from the Chapei and Woosung sectors.

BULLETIN.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 18 (Thursday).—(AP)—Japanese artillery, cavalry, and infantry forces began a general movement into positions on the Chapei-Woosung front today, displacing the bluejackets from all but a small sector. A fleet of tanks also was moved out of the Hongkew district. Three field guns were set up outside Japanese headquarters and pointed toward Kiangwan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 18 [Thursday].—"If the Japanese army carries out its threat and again attacks the Nineteenth route army the Japanese will find that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's troops are cheerfully ready to die side by side with their comrades of the gallant Nineteenth."

T. V. Soong, Chinese minister of finance and brother-in-law of Gen. Chiang, the unofficial Chinese dictator, made this declaration today, apparently in answer to reports that the Cantonese Nineteenth army, now defending Shanghai, is not supported by the central government and that a peace effort had been inaugurated.

Japanese Building Bombed.

While conflicting reports were being circulated regarding efforts for peace, the quiet of Shanghai was shattered at 8:30 a. m. today when a large bomb exploded within the premises of the Shanghai office of the Japanese shipping and banking firm of Mitsui Bussan Kaisha, at the corner of Foochow and Szechuen roads, within one block of the international settlement municipal building. One Chinese was killed and one injured.

Since the building was closely guarded, no Chinese excepting a few trusted servants had been permitted to enter. Belief was expressed that the bomb had some connection with domestic Japanese politics and was incidental to a general radical Japanese campaign against the Mitsui company which has prevailed in Japan for a considerable period. Since the incident occurred within the closely guarded and policed banking district of the settlement, local municipal police are puzzled regarding the origin of the bomb.

Says Government Backs Fight.

Dr. Soong in his statement said the Nineteenth army will receive the support of every unit of the National army as well as of the Chinese people and that it is financed and munitioned by the National government. In defending Shanghai, he said, it is carrying out the government's orders.

Soong said Japan's attempt to create a world-wide impression that the Nineteenth army is fighting alone is along the line of the recent Japanese attempt to create the impression that the occupation of Manchuria was merely a local event. Soong declared it constitutes an insult, similar to the statement recently made by Naotake Sato, Japanese delegate to the league of nations council, that China is only a geographical expression.

Sees Peace Hope.

Another high Chinese official today said there are indications that the Japanese are adopting a more conciliatory attitude, which is easing the situation. He said a slender possibility for peace exists.

However, despite this optimistic talk the Chinese troops are busily engaged in the construction and strengthening of barricades and building of new barbed wire entanglements, indicating

THE RUSTLERS

Wanted: Home Made Remedy for Snoring

Snoring, which may be anything from the measured snarl of a buzz saw to the coy tweetling of a piccolo became established as of two schools of thought yesterday.

The two schools were found at the University of Chicago. They are the extrovertists and the introvertists. They are divided on the question whether snorers are at their best when inhaling or exhaling. They do not concern themselves with stopping snorers. The extrovertists hold that snorts, puffs, gurgles, grunts, hisses and whistles come when the air is exhaled. The introvertists hold that snorts, puffs, grunts, hisses and whistles are produced on inhaling. Both abhor the result.

Represent Two Schools.

Dr. Anton Julius Carlson, chairman of the department of physiology, is champion of the "outs" and Dr. Nathaniel Kleitman, assistant professor of physiology, who has been conducting experiments on sleep, is of the "ins." They agree that snoring follows relaxation, particularly of the soft palate, which produces the raucous vibrations as it sways to laryngeal breezes.

Snoring, they said, is common among mouth breathers and is more frequent with adults due to lessened tension of muscles with age. Adenoidsphony will take on new tones if the snorer has a cold.

Science Offers Little.

"As to stopping snoring," Dr. Carlson said, "there is little of a scientific nature on the subject and many popular remedies. The palate might be cut to make the muscles more rigid, but such a drastic measure might be dangerous. Removal of adenoids might afford a cure. Sleeping on the side or stomach is generally advised, but does not suffice in the most stubborn cases. And even nose breathers snore in modulated pitches.

"Of late I have become quite a snorer myself. Not long ago I went fishing with a fellow snorer. Each night we raced to get to sleep first. The loser left the cottage."

Dr. Kleitman said he had not included snoring in his researches. He is of the opinion, he said, that since relaxation brings more restful sleep the snorer sleeps better than the nonsnorer. He added that the nonsnorer generally does not sleep at all in the presence of a musical brother sleeper. He held snoring to be unworthy of research.

Now, as to Snore Cures.

The anathemas heaped on the snorer by sleepless auditors do not disturb his slumbers, though home cures may bring him bruises to discourage concerts. A pail of water will often balk the snorer.

Continued jabbing of a thumb between the fifth and sixth ribs will tell. A spool or a baseball fitted into an improvised pocket at the back of a nightshirt may often hinder snoring, it is said.

Perhaps there are TRIBUNE readers who will volunteer home cures for snoring and thus contribute to the welfare of mankind!

HOBOS' GRAPEVINE TELEGRAPH CARRIES MESSAGE OF DEATH

Pat Kelly's comrades, using the grapevine telegraph of the hobo jungle camps, got a death message through to Pat's relatives yesterday. Pat died in his sleep beside a camp fire near Lake Forest last October. His pal, George Murphy, told Chief of Police Frank Tiffany that all he knew of Kelly was his name and that he was a world war soldier.

"Murphy," said Chief Tiffany to the surviving hobo, "just pass the word along to other hobos that Pat Kelly is dead. Maybe the word will reach relatives." The word was passed along mouth to mouth from hobo to hobo to all parts of the country. Yesterday a Mrs. Della McManaman of Cleveland stepped into Chief Tiffany's office and announced she had heard that Pat Kelly was dead. He was her brother, she said. She had not seen him for five years.

Today the body of Pat Kelly will be taken from St. Mary's cemetery, Lake Forest, to the family lot in Cleveland.

Frank A. Rehm Ends Own Life in Drake Hotel

The body of Frank A. Rehm, 58 years old, retired capitalist, was found late yesterday in his suite at the Drake hotel. He had fired a bullet into his right temple. It was learned that he had been despondent over investment losses.

Mr. Rehm was last seen alive at 9 a. m. when he was handed a telegram informing him that his wife would return home today after a European trip.

Body Found by Maid.

A maid entered the room at 11 a. m. and saw Mr. Rehm in bed, apparently asleep. His death was discovered when she returned at 4 p. m. A revolver was on the floor beside the bed.

Mr. Rehm was born in Chicago. He was the son of Jacob Rehm, who settled here in 1840. Jacob Rehm was one of the organizers of Lincoln park and was chief of Chicago police under Mayor Joseph Medill. Frank Rehm had lived at the Drake hotel for five years. He had a summer home at Lake Geneva, and he and his wife were well known in social circles.

Grommes and Ullrich Official.

Mr. Rehm began his business career as an employé of Grommes & Ullrich, liquor dealers, working his way up to the position of vice president and treasurer of the firm. He married Miss Clara Grommes, daughter of the president of the firm, in 1896.

Mrs. Rehm has been visiting in Paris with her daughter, Mrs. Emanuel Rehm La Roche. She was reported on her way to Chicago last night and could not be reached for notification of her husband's death.

According to a brother-in-law, Gustav Hessert, Mr. Rehm had been worried over financial affairs. He retired in 1929 as president of the Winslow Boiler and Engineering company.

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 18 [Thursday].—(AP)—Miss Madeline Slade, former London society girl who forsook Mayfair to become a disciple of Mahatma Gandhi, today was sentenced to three months' imprisonment for refusing to obey a government order that she leave Bombay. She was arrested last night. The sentence was passed a few hours after her arrest.

CANADA COUNTS COST OF WHEAT POOL DISASTER

Co-op Spree Gives Nation Headache.

BY PAUL POTTER.

While American taxpayers are watching with concern the expensive liquidation of federally financed wheat holdings in Chicago and other cities, an equally concerned people in Canada this week took stock of the costly job of salvaging millions of dollars' worth of grain and expensive property left from the wrecked hulk of that greatest farmer owned sales agency in all history, the Canadian wheat pool.

The provincial governments of Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba report losses of over 22 million dollars in the forced liquidation of the pool. To save the crash of banks which financed nearly one-third of an entire world wheat crop, taxpayers in these provinces now find themselves owning 1,600 grain elevators, scattered through the prairies. They likewise hold great terminal warehouses built at inflated costs.

Overhead Charges Pile Up.

These monuments to the heyday era in farm power in Canada, that cost upward of a quarter billion dollars, now are piling up overhead charges while holding nearly 100 million bushels of unsold pool grain.

Canada's great ship, launched to market its golden grain coöperatively, has foundered in the tidal wave of increased production which its officers encouraged. The wreck left more than 160,000 farmers destitute, unable to pay taxes and facing loss of their farms and life savings.

While the world production of wheat has increased 50 per cent since before the world war, Canada's growers have increased their wheat output by 150 per cent. In the period from 1917 to 1931 the acreage of Canadian wheat rose from ten million to twenty-six million acres.

In spite of a drought that devastated great regions of the dominion's west last year, the crop was within 100 million bushels of Canada's best year, and the nation now carries in reserve 270 million bushels, one-third of the world's yearly needs. The dominion's output now, when tariff and economic barriers are stifling its possibilities of ready sale at any price, are far above the wartime peak production.

The Devil and the Deep Sea.

Canada's parliament, now in session, is faced with one of the decisions this condition made necessary. It is asked to approve a proposal from Britain to help in liquidating its grain assets. This proposal is that Britain will import some 170 million bushels of Canadian wheat yearly if the dominion will remove its tariff against certain English manufactured goods. The proposal will be finally acted upon at the imperial conference in Ottawa next summer.

Merchants of eastern Canada who obtained this tariff say they will be unable to compete with such English importations, yet upon the prosperity of Canada's grain growers lies the economic well being of the entire dominion. Recurring and persistent threats of farmer "strikes against taxation" and "secession of western provinces" are unabated by the spending of millions on a "wheat growers' bonus."

The dominion government set up a bureau in Winnipeg last fall through which it has been paying every wheat grower 5 cents a bushel. This was intended to enable drought stricken farmers to pay taxes, buy new seed, and dispell the "agrarian dissension" from the prairies.

Impetus After the War.

The first organized effort of farmers to develop coöperative marketing in Canada started in 1901. Claims of abuse and low prices were registered widely against railroads, private grain merchants, and the existing system of future trading. Some of the rural leaders in this movement later became politically prominent in provincial and dominion affairs. The agitation was similar to that which brought about the federal farm bureau in the United States.

On the crest of a great colonizing wave in western Canada before and during the war came high wheat prices under the centralized government control, such as took place in the United States. When this control was dissolved, however, its machinery and policies were adopted by the farm leaders as the nucleus for creating regional and provincial wheat pools.

By deducting 2 or 3 cents a bushel vast sums were made available to coöperatives with which to buy or build

Mad Miner of Arctic Dies in Hail of Bullets

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Feb. 17.—The Royal Canadian mounted police came to the end of a two months trail in the frozen wastes of the northwest territory today when they killed Albert Johnson, mad man of the Arctic. The end to one of Canada's most spectacular man hunts came in a battle in which the demented trapper and miner fell in a hail of bullets from nearly a dozen rifles.

But the groggy Johnson, before he dropped, steadied a wavering hand and seriously wounded Staff Sergeant Hersey, his third "mountie" victim.

The posse of twelve which had been tracking Johnson for weeks over the Arctic snow and through blizzards in temperatures ranging from 20 to 50 degrees below zero came upon him doubling back. He started to run from the trail when he saw Sergt. Hersey's and Noel Verville's dog team. Hiding behind a mound he opened the fighting.

12 Rifles Blaze.

As Sergt. Hersey kneeled to shoot, Johnson's rifle blazed. Two bullets caught Hersey in the knee and chest. The other members of the party, by this time, had surrounded Johnson and he soon dropped into the snow dead.

When Johnson's last battle began, Capt. W. R. [Wop] May, who had added his airplane to the wild chase, equipped with dynamite, bombs and tear gas, was flying overhead. The posse, however, was too close for May to use the bombs.

He landed after the policemen had killed their man, placed Sergt. Hersey in his plane and raced with him to the Aklavik hospital. Doctors despaired of his life.

Johnson, struggling desperately with cold and hunger, was heading for at least a temporary safety in Alaska. When the mounties fulfilled their vow to "get their man" he was in the Porcupine valley, about 160 miles from Aklavik, in the northwest territory.

Came After Gold.

It was last fall that Johnson came into the northwestern "bad lands" to hunt gold with only a pair of snowshoes and two automatic pistols. Reports are that he made a big "strike," and that if he had been able to retain his sanity, he would have returned a rich man.

Johnson was a hunted man since the day eight weeks ago when he wounded Constable A. E. King, who had tried to arrest him as a trap thief. Three weeks ago he killed Constable E. Millen.

The police realized then that they were dealing with the cunning of madness and redoubled their efforts. It was not an easy task. Time after time he fought pitched battles with them and escaped, aided by expert use of all the craft of the northland.

On Jan. 10 a posse surrounded his cabin and laid siege to it for 16 hours. He fought them back, an automatic in each hand. Finally three men stayed to guard the cabin while messengers went for reinforcements.

Kills Constable.

They found after their return on Jan. 26 that Johnson had slipped away. He was tracked into a valley near Aklavik. At bay, he faced his pursuers again. This was the time he killed Constable Millen. And Johnson once again escaped.

How he managed to exist no one knows. Blizzards and the 40 below zero temperature apparently did not faze him. He kept mushing on with but scant sleep. Where he got his food was a mystery.

Last week, however, the mounties detected signs of exhaustion. The trail began to zigzag and the steps grew shorter. It was the beginning of the end. Early today the mounties closed in on Johnson and the end was inevitable.

KAISER'S SON MAY BE OPPONENT OF VON HINDENBURG

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—Prince Oscar of Prussia, fifth son of the former kaiser, is being quietly groomed as the presidential candidate of Dr. Alfred Hugenberg's Nationalist party to oppose President Paul von Hindenburg.

Prince Oscar, who was recently appointed a member of the party's governing board, was effusively welcomed when he appeared at today's meeting and acclaimed by Dr. Hugenberg as a "living symbol of the undying loyalty which unites the Nationalist people's party with the house of Hohenzollern."

SEEK CASH NOW AS LEGISLATORS REFUSE TO ACT

Curtail Chicago Relief

Chicago officials yesterday considered that the Cook county financial relief program had been curtailed by the legislature to the extent of "chopping its tail off close behind its ears." Among the day's developments were:

1—Both houses of the assembly adjourned at Springfield until April 19 without action to straighten out Cook county's tax collection mess.

2—School trustees say they fear that closing the schools is the only way to cut the budget to short revenue.

3—County goes ahead with budget as if revenue in 1932 would be as abundant as it was in prosperous 1929.

Cook county tax bills for 1930 are to be sent out at once. They probably will be in the mail next week carrying a penalty date of March 15 or March 20.

This development was the direct result of a refusal of the general assembly yesterday to remain in session to consider the tax legislation pending before it. The two houses—without a record vote in either instance—recessed until April 19.

Can't Wait Any Longer.

Mayor Cermak, President Whealan of the county board, and other local officials had been urging revision and adoption of the tax measures next week. They had insisted that collection could not be put off later than April 15. When the legislature quit until after that date they determined the bills could wait no longer.

The second direct result of the action of the assembly was an announcement by Mayor Cermak that he will carry out the program he announced he would follow if the assembly should take a two months' recess, as had been rumored early in the day. That program consists of trimming the structure of municipal activities to the bone.

Will Wield the Ax.

"It will no longer be the pruning knife," he said, "but the ax. We already have cut close, but now we'll have to cut out everything that is not absolutely indispensable.

"And the full responsibility for what occurs will rest upon Springfield."

"By that," he was asked, "do you mean upon the general assembly?"

"I said exactly what I meant," the mayor replied, "upon Springfield."

Hint at Political Setup.

He declined to amplify this statement further, but it was taken as a reference to reports from Springfield that it was Gov. Emmerson's idea that enactment of the pending tax legislation might adversely affect the administration's candidate, Omer N. Custer, that led the Republican majorities of the two houses to vote the long recess.

So far as is known Custer has not resigned from the chairmanship of the state tax commission. One of the pending bills would remove whatever legal doubt there may be concerning the power of the commission to order a reassessment for 1928, 1929, and 1930 directed at personal property. Such a levy upon personal property is considered political dynamite at this time.

Plans Drastic Economy.

Mayor Cermak was asked what new retrenchments he might put into effect.

"I shall close every department, bureau, or division that we can possibly get along without," he replied, "and in all departments I shall order the dismissal of every employé whose services are not indispensable.

"Just as examples, let me say that we can shut down much of the activity of the water department, letting repairs wait, and we can stop cleaning sewers except in extreme cases. We cannot cut down on actual police work, but we can reduce the amount of clerical work in that department and the fire department. Our records will suffer, but what else can we do?

No Money in Sight.

"There is no money in sight. We are told that many taxpayers are merely awaiting the opportunity to pay their 1930 bills. We'll give them that opportunity, but we fear that will not be enough, and the legislature refused to pass bills which would have permitted us to raise money to cover the delinquency and to take steps to validate the levies slaughtered by the Jarecki decision.

Mayor Cermak was in his office, awaiting a conference with two leaders of teachers' organizations who sought further advances from city funds for teachers' pay when he received word from Springfield that the legislature was about to adjourn until April 19, after the primary campaign. The actual adjournment followed a short time later.

Mayor Speaks His Mind.

"They can go to hell, and you tell them that I said so," he informed the representative who gave him the news by telephone. "They're afraid to take action because of the primaries, and are juggling the bills so that people won't know what they have done."

As a start of his new retrenchment policy, Mayor Cermak said, he was ordering half of the sewer department and city pipe yards shut down.

"I don't care whether the employés are civil service or not," he said. "They will go. There is no need of carrying men on the roll when there is no money to pay them.

Will Close City Hall.

"If the legislature recesses, the city hall is going to recess, too, until the legislators reconvene. I'll close the building and will tell the teachers to close the schools. Every department possible in the building will be closed tight. Those gentlemen at Springfield are not going to unload on me."

The teachers' representatives, Miss Agnes Clohesy, head of the elementary teachers' union, and Miss Kate Krauel, head of the playground teachers' union, were ushered into the office.

"The schools will have to close one way or the other," Mayor Cermak told them. "If I don't sign these tax warrants the school board wants to issue, they will close because contractors will refuse to furnish coal. If I do sign them, they will close anyway because some of the teachers, I am told, will refuse to accept warrants for salaries and will demand cash.

Told Board to Retrench.

"We told the teachers not to take scrip and we told the school board last summer to retrench. No attention was paid to our warnings. If the board had retrenched, they would be $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 ahead now."

Mayor Cermak told Miss Clohesy and Miss Krauel that it is impossible at present to take more money from the city's aggregate of funds for pay rolls. He arranged a conference tomorrow morning in the controller's office at which the status of the fund, including the cash on hand and the obligations for which that cash must be reserved, will be explained to a committee of teachers.

"The teachers are desperate," Miss Clohesy told him. "I have never seen such radicalism in the schools as exists at present, even among normally conservative persons. They are talking about marching on the city hall and demanding their pay."

"There is no use in the teachers wasting their valuable time coming down here," Mayor Cermak told her. "They will just waste good shoe leather. They should march on Springfield."

Tells Ideas to Council.

In the council meeting later Mayor Cermak said that he could see no good in prospect from the special meeting which teachers had asked be called Saturday to discuss paying them, since no money is available.

Judge Jarecki's decision in the Cisar tax case, holding the 1928 and 1929 levies in Cook county invalid, was not sought by the small taxpayers, Mayor Cermak asserted.

"We should smoke out the property owners who have not paid anything on account, and I will do it if we don't get legislation soon," he said.

Ald. Clark then cited figures on the unpaid 1929 taxes due the corporate fund. Of these, he said, only $500,000 is due from taxpayers whose individual bills were less than $300. Taxpayers whose bills run from $300 to $10,000 owe $11,000,000, and those whose bills exceed $10,000 each owe $8,000,000, he said.

List Tax Delinquents.

By unanimous vote the council then adopted a resolution by Chairman Clark directing the finance committee to compile a list of the property owners who have not paid their taxes.

Speaking of proposals to fund taxes through bond issues, Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th], chairman of the judiciary committee, said:

"Borrowing money won't take the city out of this hole. It only adds to the taxpayers' burden. The only possible relief will be gained when property owners pay their taxes."

Ends Life by Hanging with Necktie in Hotel

George Gordon, 35 years old, a native of Paterson, N. J., and formerly in the oil refining business in New Orleans, committed suicide yesterday in his room at the Y. M. C. A. hotel, 826 South Wabash avenue. He had hanged himself from a steam pipe with a necktie. In his pocket was a note addressed to J. Robert of Paterson, saying, "I can't stand it any longer. Good-by." A dispatch from Paterson quoted his father, Louis Gordon, retired dry goods merchant, as saying the family knew no reason for his suicide.

60 DAY RECESS IS BLAMED UPON ADMINISTRATION

Assembly Fails to Heed Chicago Pleas.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Under strong pressure, the three special sessions of the legislature were recessed today until April 19 — one week after the primaries. Chicago members in both houses stormed against the postponement, proclaiming a dire necessity for tax relief for their fund depleted municipality, but in vain.

It was whispered about that the recess was taken because the state administration wished the delay in order to avoid embarrassment to Omer N. Custer, backed by the Emmerson forces for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, who might have been called upon to order a reassessment of personal property for 1930 in Cook county had the house and senate met longer. Mr. Custer is chairman of the state tax commission.

Downstate Votes Decide.

So the delay was voted, the top-heavy downstate majorities shoving it through both houses. The Chicagoans in the house made tempestuous objections — at one point Speaker David E. Shanahan ordered the doorkeeper to lock the doors and keep the representatives—and in the senate Thomas J. Courtney, minority leader, and Roy Woods battled fruitlessly against postponement.

Senator Richard J. Barr, the Emmerson majority leader, pushed the recess through after the Chicago "funding bills" had been shelved in the senate and deaf ears had been turned on two requests made by Corporation Counsel William Sexton of Chicago—suggestions put in the interests of lessening the tax crisis.

The funding bills, special plan of the Chicago Real Estate board, passed the house last week.

Because they specify that the 1930 taxes shall not be put in collection until Oct. 1, many of the Chicago members in the upper house opposed them, but they felt that some other plan might be worked out if the legislature remained in session instead of a two months' recess.

Makes Plea for Aid.

Mr. Sexton's appeal was emphatically not in behalf of the "funding" bills. In fact, he termed them "a hoax," but he did ask for this legislation:

1. Fixing of the penalty date for 1930 taxes as April 15.
2. Passage of a pending bill calling for a reassessment of personal property for 1930 in Cook county.

"Now," said Senator Barr, "here's the road to travel: Send your tax bills in Cook county now and come back here on April 19. If any injustice has been done, it can be righted then."

"Well, remember that I asked you to do those things," said Mr. Sexton with great finality as he left the rostrum.

The senate then voted the postponement of the "funding" plan and the 60 day recess. A joint resolution asking concurrence in the recess was sent to the house.

House Is in Turmoil.

Five minutes after the resolution reached there the house was in an uproar. Many members had already left for their homes, and a quorum was not present. Notwithstanding this, Cook county members demanded a roll call to show, on the record, that they had opposed the recess. Many, wishing to catch the evening train to Chicago, stood about with their hats in their hands ready to break for the door. Speaker Shanahan pounded for order.

"I want to be fair with all members," he said, "but if this adjournment resolution is not adopted, I'll have to call the house in session every day and, if a quorum is not present, I shall be forced to send the sergeant at arms for the members. Nobody can play politics with me."

Then B. S. Adamowski, Chicago Democrat, who had been of those demanding a call, suggested that "in view of what the senate had done [by adjourning], I believe we should settle this with a viva voce vote."

"But we want the record to show that we are against adjourning," objected James Boyle, another Chicago Democrat.

The situation was tense and several members made quiet exits, whereupon Speaker Shanahan instructed Doorkeeper Frank Leonard to close the doors and allow no one to leave the chamber.

More jockeying ensued, but finally the Chicagoans agreed to show their protests by opposing the adjournment vocally, and their chorused "No" made the glass chandeliers tinkle.

The senate was not this boisterous over the adjournment, but harsh words were exchanged more than once. The first instance came when Roy Woods, Chicago Republican, sponsor of the "funding" plan, opposed Barr's motion for postponement.

"No consideration is being shown Chicago taxpayers by this motion," said Woods. "I don't think it is right for the Republican majority of this senate to do that. It would show we're too lazy to stay here and help the people."

Says Chicagoans for Recess.

Barr, usually suave, rose at this and said crisply, "Let me say in answer to that, Senator Woods, that the Republican majority has been running this senate for twenty years and I hope it continues to do so. I might [illegible] tell you that D. F. Kelly of Chicago and Emmett Whealan, the president of your county board, favored this recess when they were down here yesterday."

Mr. Courtney then moved to table Barr's motion and on this the roll was called. The vote was 18 for tabling and 20 against, and the bills were put in the discard until after the primaries. With but three exceptions, the roll call was strictly Chicago against downstate. James H. Leonard voted against tabling, while N. M. Mason of Oglesby and Earl Searcy of Springfield stood with the Chicagoans.

U. S. BIBLE BUSINESS SEVERELY BUMPED BY BOOK "BOOTLEGGERS"

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—"Bootlegging" of Bibles into the United States from European countries whose currency is depreciated threatens the existence of American publishers of Bibles, according to complaints made today by some of them to the American Paper and Pulp association, in session at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

The publishers asked the assistance of the association in their effort to stop this new competition.

The contention that the foreign-made Bibles are being "bootlegged" is based on a disagreement with customs men in interpretation of the tariff laws. Bibles are ordinarily imported duty free, and now that the foreign printers are operating under a depreciated currency they are able to ship their Bibles to the United States and undersell the home product.

The association is considering an action to have the annotated and kindred editions declared dutiable.

TRUSTEES FEAR ONLY WAY OUT IS TO SHUT SCHOOLS

Board Is Stumped by Low Revenue Outlook.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The closing of the Chicago public schools was seriously considered by the trustees in an hour's discussion of their financial troubles yesterday afternoon.

D. F. KELLY.

"We cannot count on more than $60,000,000 or $70,000,000 this year in the opinion of Sewell Avery, D. F. Kelly, and F. X. Busch," commented Trustee Carr. "I take that view, too," said Trustee Caldwell. Trustee Savage agreed.

The board's budget for 1932, after adding some minor items yesterday, now stands at $90,047,790, or from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 above the amount that can be counted on.

Waste Is Disclosed.

Considerable waste has been disclosed in this budget. D. F. Kelly, head of the tax warrant sales committee, has urged that $1,000,000 or more be trimmed from the operation of the school buildings.

Trustee Carr suggested yesterday that the budget be further pruned. Trustee Savage said he favored elimination of waste, but asserted that a cut of $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 in school expense cannot be made except by slashing salaries or closing the schools.

"Let us operate a decent system as long as we can, and then close the schools," suggested Trustee Carr.

"I approve of that policy," spoke up Trustee Savage.

"I am coming to that view," added President Myers.

"I have long held that opinion," said Mrs. Hefferan.

More Advice Sought.

To get more advice on the probable 1932 school revenue the trustees decided to invite the following to appear at a board meeting next Tuesday afternoon: Charles Fox, chief appraiser of the board of assessors; Drs. Herbert Simpson and Ralph Heilman of Northwestern university; George O. Fairweather, assistant business manager of the University of Chicago; Victor Olander of the Illinois Federation of Labor and County Judge Jarecki. In addition they will seek the views of experts from the First National, Continental, Central Republic, Harris Trust, and Northern Trust banks.

In the discussion, the attitude of the teachers was cited by several trustees.

"They haven't been paid for months," said Mrs. Hefferan. "They are in debt, in distress, scared at rumors of cuts in salaries, repudiation by the board of debts and the like. Of course there is nothing to repudiation of debts."

"But they may believe it," interposed Trustee Savage. "The morale of the teachers is shot."

A Rap at the City Hall.

At one point in the discussion it was suggested that the board ask the legislature to extend the time in which the board may make a budget, so that a better guess may be made on the 1932 income. The city has such a request pending.

"That should not be done," objected President Myers. "Do you know why the city is doing it? I have been told that it is for the purpose of permitting the mayor to keep 2,500 to 3,000 ward workers on the city pay roll for the primary. It is the worst piece of political legislation ever introduced at Springfield. That speech ended that program.

Quick Action Urged.

Trustee Savage also said that the board, by passing the budget, would inform the teachers whether their salaries are to be cut, without leaving them in fear for several months. Some of the trustees suggested that the budget be passed next Wednesday.

The D. F. Kelly committee has suggested that the board obtain the advice and counsel of Dr. George Strayer who heads the $100,000 investigation of the schools by Columbia university. At first Dr. Strayer declined to submit any preliminary report either to President Myers or Mr. Kelly; but President Myers reported to the trustees yesterday afternoon that Dr. Strayer has consented to advise the board. He will spend next week at the National Education association sessions in Washington, so his advice will not be available until later than next Wednesday.

4 POLICEMEN LOSE JOBS AFTER TRIALS FOR INTOXICATION

Four policemen were discharged from the police force yesterday after being arraigned before the civil service commission on charges of intoxication. The policemen were Harold Johnson and Peter Groote of the Sheffield avenue station, Albert H. Nystrom of the Grand Crossing station and Louis R. Kopitke of the Hyde Park station. According to the commissioners, Johnson denied a report that he had spent a year as chief of police of Reykjavik, Iceland, taking a leave of absence from the Chicago force to take the position.

WARRANT DRIVE LAGS; EVANSTON IS FACING CRISIS

Evanston schools must close before the end of the school term if subscriptions in the tax warrant drive being staged by the school boards of the suburb do not increase, Dean Ralph B. Dennis of the Northwestern university school of speech, member of one of the school boards, said yesterday.

"The committee in charge of the drive has had 300 men and women at work for the last two weeks," he said. "They have called on 3,000 Evanstonians, of whom 523 bought warrants, amounting to $115,000. This is scarcely sufficient to pay salaries for the current month."

The goal of the drive is sales totaling $750,000. The Evanston high school board and the two elementary school boards of the suburb are cooperating in the effort.

HOOVER WANTS TO REORGANIZE U. S. BUREAUS

Millions Can Be Saved, He Declares.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—In a special message to congress today, President Hoover added his voice to that of the Democratic leadership in behalf of a reorganization of the administrative branch of the government designed to save millions of dollars in the annual bill for maintenance of the federal bureaucracy.

SENATOR J. T. ROBINSON.

Mr. Hoover, however, failed to go as far as the Democratic leaders in the house and senate who are proposing not only reorganization of the executive branch, but the abolition of paternalistic and other activities of the central government representing encroachment upon the functions of the states as originally conceived.

The President would abolish none of the present activities of the federal government, but would rearrange them in a new framework, which instead of reducing the number of major offices, would add four at an increased cost of $40,000 a year. In defense of this proposal, Mr. Hoover said that "The saving in cost of administration would be many times this sum."

Fails to See Reductions.

Following the reading of the message in the senate, Democratic Leader Joseph T. Robinson [Ark.], called attention to the failure of the President to embrace a program promising any radical curtailment of the cost of the central government. Senator Robinson introduced in the senate last week a resolution for the appointment of a joint congressional commission to study and report on "what offices, agencies, bureaus, boards, and commissions of the national government may be reduced, consolidated or abolished without substantial detriment to the public interest." The commission will report its findings by March 3, 1933.

"The government is getting too large," said the Democratic leader. "New bureaus, boards, and commissions are constantly being created. If we are ever to balance the budget, it will not be enough to increase revenues; we must also decrease expenditures."

He pointed to the fact that his resolution provided not only for the consolidation, but for the abolition of offices.

Sees Difficulty in Cutting.

"I realize," he said, "that it is always difficult to abolish an office once it is created, and its holder has started drawing a federal salary. But mere consolidation is not going to bring about the necessary economy.

"In fact, on glancing through the President's message, I see a danger of the creation of new bureaus and bureau chiefs. If such a process starts, the Lord, alone, knows when it will end. Today's tendency is to bring every activity to the national capital, to center here all sorts of enterprises that might better be done through local agencies."

Prompt Action Is Urged.

To bring order out of the chaotic accumulation of 200 bureaus, boards, and commissions that compose the administrative branch with their overlapping and waste, Mr. Hoover said should be delayed no longer.

"In the present crisis," he observed, "the absolute necessity for the most drastic economy makes the problem of governmental reorganization one of paramount importance. The amount of saving in public funds to be effected by a thoroughgoing reorganization, while difficult to estimate accurately, will be material, amounting to many millions of dollars annually. Not only will the government's business be conducted more efficiently and economically, but the great body of citizens who have business relations with their government will be relieved of the burden and expense of dealing with a multitude of unnecessary and sometimes widely separated public agencies."

Asks for Authority.

In order to circumvent the bureaucratic and political influences that hitherto have blocked reorganization, Mr. Hoover recommended that the President be vested with authority to carry out a gradual rearrangement of offices involving a "consolidation and grouping of the various executive and administrative activities, according to their major purposes under single-headed responsibility."

Boards and commissions would be retained for advisory, regulatory, and quasi judicial functions, but their executive functions would be transferred to the departments.

FREEMAN SAYS PARIS POLICE WOULD FAIL ON JOB IN CHICAGO

The police forces of London and Paris, which have been praised for their efficiency, couldn't last a week in Chicago, Chief William O. Freeman of the Evanston police department asserted yesterday before delegates at the police conference in session at Harris hall on the Northwestern university campus.

CHIEF FREEMAN.

"Those foreign policemen would be jumping in the lake in two days if they tried to tackle Chicago's problems," said Chief Freeman.

To inspire more respect for the law, Chief Freeman advocated the appointment of judges of the Criminal court for life. Because the judges are elected at intervals the power of the police is weakened, he said.

Chief Freeman declared that police executives, like the heads of families, should command the respect of subordinates. The police commissioner should continually keep abreast of modern police methods to maintain efficiency, according to Chief Freeman.

Sergt. David Lindstrom of the police bureau of identification in Chicago explained to the delegates the importance of apprehending criminals through the fingerprint system.

County Spending in 1932 as if It Were Still 1929

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The county board has framed a budget for 1932 which no one believes can pay out. Even the commissioners, who recommend it, have no plan at present by which they can obtain half as much cash as they propose to spend in their budget.

It appears that the board's only hope is that the D. F. Kelly committee will sell tax anticipation warrants to get in some cash. Mr. Kelly has formally notified the school board that it "should not predicate its budget on the 1929 tax roll." But the county board budget is framed on the theory that nearly $10,000,000 more in taxes will be levied this year than the 1929 levy which was put in collection last spring.

Kelly Gives Warning.

Mr. Kelly has warned all tax spenders that the ability of the public to pay taxes has substantially decreased. He has written the school board that "the volume of business in general—manufacturing, retailing and almost every other line of endeavor—has declined at least one third during the past two years.

"Business," added Mr. Kelly, "is being carried on at the present time in volume that is comparable with what was done in 1922." Despite this warning, the county board's budget contemplates a total tax levy on the property owners of Cook county $135,000,000 higher than that assessed for 1922. The hypothetical levy is $62,000,000 more than the county was able to collect for 1927, and $85,000,000 more than for 1929.

Other Comparisons Made.

Carrying the comparison with former years still further, the county board appears to be staking its hopes, if any, on a 1932 tax levy $88,000,000 higher than the collections for the tax year of 1926, $96,000,000 more than for 1925, $113,000,000 more than for 1924, and $122,000,000 more than for 1923.

The county on Tuesday declined to invite civic and business organizations to discuss the budget prepared. The reason assigned was that it would be "bad taste" while President Emmett Whealan was in Springfield "attempting to straighten out the tax situation."

Sooner or later, it seems certain, the board must ask the D. F. Kelly committee whether it will attempt to sell tax warrants on its budget. Mr. Kelly has already told the school board that its budget is so high that tax warrants cannot be successfully sold until it is lowered. The school board budget is based on a lower tax assessment than does the budget of the county board.

GOVERNOR MAY NAME JACOBS AS ASSESSOR TODAY

Conference Is Expected to Bring Appointment.

J. L. Jacobs, county and city efficiency engineer, left last night for Springfield, where he will confer with Gov. Emmerson today. Following the conference Mr. Jacobs will probably be named as Cook county's new assessor under the Kelly law recently passed, which abolished the present assessing and reviewing bodies.

J. L. JACOBS.

Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, said yesterday that he had given Mr. Jacobs' name to the governor as his choice for assessor and that the recommendation had been "graciously received." Before concurring in the appointment, however, Gov. Emmerson expressed a wish to interview Mr. Jacobs.

Reluctant to Take Job.

The efficiency engineer at first refused to consider taking the job of assessor when he was urged by President Whealan to do so ten days ago. He took the position that the sacrifice would be too great, inasmuch as he is now in charge of his own accounting and auditing service, which has a gross income of $100,000 annually, and he would be forced to neglect this work.

Mr. Jacobs finally yielded to pressure from President Whealan and other officials. He insisted that he would take the post only if unhampered by politicians. He was told that he would be the boss, filling his own jobs and not being forced to accept political appointees.

Praised by Whealan.

"I've had plenty of letters panning Jacobs as a possible assessor," said President Whealan. "Most of them came from political sources. I have also had many laudatory comments upon him from other organizations. He is, in my opinion, the only man for the job and he should have the confidence of the public."

"If Gov. Emmerson joins with Mr. Whealan in appointing me assessor, I'll take the job," said Jacobs. "I don't look forward to the prospect with pleasure, but I'll do my best."

CITY DEMANDS SHARE IN RAIL LOAN SPENDING

Council Cites Plan of Pennsylvania.

The city council went on record yesterday at the request of Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th] as demanding that a fair portion of any money loaned to the railroads by the Reconstruction Finance corporation be spent in Chicago and the central states, since a part of the corporation's money comes from those sections of the country.

"The Pennsylvania railroad is seeking to borrow approximately $100,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation," said Ald. Hodes, "in connection with a program of electrification work between Washington and New York.

Wants Terminal Electrified.

"It is highly desirable that the railroad's Chicago terminal be electrified. Certainly a fair percentage of the money obtained by the railroad should be expended in Chicago in view of the fact that the finance corporation's moneys have come from the central states as well as from the east."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to President Hoover, members of the Finance corporation, officials of the Pennsylvania railroad, and Gov. Emmerson, who will be requested to make a similar demand for expenditures in the Illinois area.

Relieve Employés of Pledges.

City employés were relieved from contributing to the unemployment fund to which they had pledged a days' pay a month for six months by provisions of an ordinance recommended by the judiciary committee. The ordinance provides that the city employés, who are being docked six days' pay a month by the city, can withdraw their pledge cards.

The council requested County Treasurer McDonough to defer the sale of property for delinquent taxes when such property is owned by wage earners who are unemployed at the request of Ald. John Toman [23d] and upon the complaint of Ald. John J. Coughlin [1st] requested the Joint Emergency Relief fund to give all lodging house interests a share of the business distributed by the commission.

Charles Craig, 4705 South Lincoln avenue, an interior decorator, lavished all his affection on his fleet of seven automobiles, which includes one sport roadster and seven heavy trucks, his wife, Helen, charged yesterday in a bill for divorce filed in the Superior court. Her husband, the bill drawn by Attorney Victor Frohlich charged, did not hesitate to beat her less than two months after their marriage last July. She left him on Feb. 2 when he knocked her down a flight of stairs, the bill alleged.

FLAMES STEAL SHOW FROM SOPHIE TUCKER; FOUR HURT IN PANIC

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Flames darting from the stage of the Palace theater on Broadway just above Times Square drove the capacity audience of 1,900 persons in a rush for the streets tonight. One woman was painfully burned and at least three others were injured, one of them seriously, in the scramble to get to the doors.

The 1,700 seats in the vaudeville house were all taken and there were 200 standees in the rear when the fire started. Sophie Tucker, the jazz singer, had just finished her turn and was taking a final curtain call before the intermission when a stage lamp was overturned and the resulting short circuit ignited the plush "olio" curtain.

A burst of sparks and flame shot across the footlights at the left side of the stage as Miss Tucker made her bow at the other wing. The flames drove those in the first two or three rows of the orchestra scrambling over the backs of seats in panic.

NEWFOUNDLAND ASKS $110,000,000 FOR LABRADOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 17.—Newfoundland has offered to sell Labrador to Canada for $110,000,000, payable by Canada taking over Newfoundland's funded debt of $87,000,000 and the rest in cash.

Premier Bennett revealed to parliament today the terms of the sensational offer of the oldest British colony, which only a year or so ago won from Canada the bleak Labrador coast territory by a privy council decision.

Bennett said he rejected the offer.

WIFE DIVORCES ALLAN DINEHART, SCREEN PLAYER

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—With the conclusion today in the Supreme court of an undefended divorce suit, Mrs. Louise Dinehart won a divorce from her actor husband, Allan Dinehart. Dinehart is now in Hollywood in motion pictures.

According to the testimony, Mrs. Dinehart, who lives in Floral Park, L. I., went with a private detective on Jan. 29, 1931, to Dinehart's apartment in East 57th street. After a game of hide and seek between the raiders and the raided, Mrs. Dinehart and her witness discovered Dinehart in the company of a woman in pink pajamas.

The Dineharts separated more than a year ago, at which time Dinehart agreed to pay $150 a week to Mrs. Dinehart. The payments, it was stated in court, are now $900 in arrears, and a motion is now before the Supreme court to commit the actor for contempt.

FAR EAST CRISIS MAY HALT CUTS IN NAVY BUDGET

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Consideration of the 343 million dollar navy department appropriation bill for the next fiscal year was begun today by the house subcommittee handling naval appropriations. Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams and Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, appeared before the committee in opposition to a new move to apply the pruning knife to the navy supply bill.

Members of the subcommittee were told that an increase in personnel may be made necessary, unless conditions quiet down in the far east. The naval budget as pruned down contemplated that twelve submarines and destroyers, now in Asiatic waters defending American life and property would be laid up before the beginning of the next fiscal year. If war between Japan and China makes such a step impossible, the navy officials said additional funds would have to be voted for this activity.

The navy budget, as first prepared, called for 399 million dollars. President Hoover gradually pared it down to 343 millions. Now, it is understood, the little navy men on the house committee, are moving to trim another $10,000,000 or $20,000,000.

FORMER DRY CHIEF WHO WAS CONVICT OPPOSES CARDOZO

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—William H. Anderson, former Anti-Saloon league official, ex-convict, and now general secretary of the American Protestant alliance, today addressed a protest to every member of congress against the appointment of Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo of New York to the Supreme court of the United States.

Anderson's protest was made in the form of a telegram to Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], chairman of the senate judiciary committee, and in letters to every member of both houses. He offered to appear before the committee and offer "testimony against Judge Cardozo's fitness as indicated by his contribution to the consummation of an infamy of injustice perpetrated through the Tammany control and prostitution of the courts."

Anderson was convicted of forgery in the first degree in New York on Jan. 30, 1924, and served a sentence in the state penitentiary. His case was appealed to the New York Court of Appeals where the conviction was upheld by Judge Cardozo, in October, 1924.

RITCHIE ASSAILS RACING EXPENSE OF GOVERNMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—A demand that the government balance its budget by cutting down useless expenditures instead of boosting federal taxes was voiced in a speech tonight by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, one of the leading candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"There are few American people these days who have more dollars in their pockets than their own needs require," Gov. Ritchie declared. "The government should therefore make a determined try at spending not more but less of the earnings and savings of the American people."

Cites Increased Cost.

The cost of government has increased approximately 540 per cent in the last two decades, Gov. Ritchie asserted, until today "out of every five dollars the American people earn one dollar goes to pay the expenses of government."

"Bureaucratic, that is what our federal system has become," Gov. Ritchie added, "and the very life of it is more and ever more expansion of centralized power and more and ever more taxes from the people to pay for it. Every dollar the government spends is taken from the pockets of the American people."

"In the last analysis," he declared, "government control and ownership, where private initiative should operate, is a species of communism.

Warns of Bureaucracy.

"With the removal of private property and industrial gain in whole, as the communists advocate, or by piecemeal, as our government ownership proponents advocate, the affairs of man are bound to become too bureaucratic and sterile."

"More than a hundred and fifty years ago," Gov. Ritchie stated, "the Declaration of Independence indicted George III. because 'he has erected a multitude of new offices and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat of our substance.' We fought the revolutionary war to get rid of them, and now I am told that an army of civilian federal employés, numbering six hunred thousand, has taken their place."

MAYOR OF FLINT IS INDICTED ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Climaxing a five months' investigation into charges of collusion between city officials of Flint, Mich., and operators of a liquor syndicate, a federal grand jury here today returned indictments against Mayor William H. McKeighan, Caesar J. Scavarda, acting city manager and chief of police, and eleven other persons, five of them in the Flint police department.

Four indictments were returned, charging conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

DOCTOR ASSAILS MISTAKES MADE IN CANCER CASES

Mistakes on the part of the general practitioner in diagnosis of cancer are due to pure carelessness, Dr. Burton J. Lee, professor of clinical surgery at the Cornell University Medical school in New York City, told members of the Chicago Medical society last night in a symposium on cancer.

"The big problem today in cancer control is that the public is educated far beyond the medical profession," he declared. "The mistakes that are being made day by day are appalling. Not only the general practitioner, but the specialist as well, must exercise great care in diagnosis.

"Age has nothing much to do with cancer. One-fourth of the cases now under observation in the Cornell clinic are under 40 years of age. There is a preventive side to cancer control you must keep in mind. I think every physician—general practitioner and specialist—should ask himself when each new patient enters his office, 'Can this patient have cancer in any of its many forms?' And then he should find that out immediately."

Dr. Lee preceded his warning to the physicians by telling how he had learned of many puzzling aspects of watchfulness, but also asked the physicians to be more optimistic, saying, "Cancer is curable, and by corelating our knowledge, we can bring cancer under greater control."

He declared that Chicago is today better provided with cancer clinics in its general hospitals than any other city in the United States.

Dr. Max Cutler, director of the tumor group of Michael Reese hospital, referred to X-ray and radium treatment. He said: "Cancers that are readily curable are often rendered hopelessly incurable by the mistake of too slight radiation in the first few doses. When the radiation is too slight, the tumor develops a resistance that large doses of radiation later cannot overcome."

CANCER 'CURE' FAILED TO CURE SAYS FARMER IN $500,000 LIBEL SUIT

Davenport, Ia., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—After two doctors, one of them employed at the Norman Baker Cancer institute, Muscatine had diagnosed his ailment as ringworm on the face Harry Hoxsey, Baker's partner declared the sore a cancer and gave him one treatment, which made him worse immediately, declared Jack Irwin, Maquoketa, Ia., farmer in federal court today.

Irwin, appearing as a defense witness in the Baker $500,000 libel suit against the American Medical association, told how Hoxsey, after a $10 examination fee had been paid, declared he was suffering from cancer, but that a "cure" could be effected in from four to six weeks at a cost of $250.

CONVICT IN CAB HOLDS UP GUARD AND DRIVES AWAY

Gets Gun After Trial and Second Conviction.

George [Baby Face] Nelson, 23 years old, bank bandit and convict, overpowered his guard and escaped last night just outside the prison walls in Joliet. The young convict was being returned to the prison following his conviction in the Wheaton court a few hours earlier on a second bank robbery charge.

A revolver which was evidently slipped into Nelson's overcoat pocket by a friend while he was being brought to Chicago from Wheaton on the electric road, preparatory to transfer to Joliet, was used in the escape.

Convicted of Hillside Holdup.

Nelson, described by police as a desperate gunman, was arrested a year ago. Last July he was convicted in Chicago of robbing the Hillside State bank of $4,155, and sentenced to a term of one year to life. While in the county jail here he allegedly participated in a jail break plot which was frustrated. Yesterday he was taken to Wheaton and tried for the $4,000 holdup of the Itasca State bank which was committed Oct. 3, 1930. The jury found him guilty, and fixed his punishment at one to twenty years.

Ride in Crowded Coach.

R. N. Martin, Joliet prison guard, handcuffed Nelson and soon afterward they were bound for Chicago on the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin line. The coach was well crowded during the journey. In Chicago the guard and Nelson transferred to a Rock Island train on which they arrived in Joliet. They entered the taxicab of Joseph Candic to be driven to the prison.

As they approached the penitentiary gate Nelson squirmed to one side and pressed a revolver against Martin, in whispers he commanded the guard to unlock the handcuffs. Martin obeyed. Then Nelson disarmed him. He compelled the chauffeur to drive to Resurrection cemetery near Summit, where he ejected the driver and Martin. He was last seen driving away in the cab.

INJURED BY BLAST ON BOAT.

An explosion of a gasoline tank on the Grace M., a fifty-two foot cruiser moored in the north branch of the Chicago river, seriously burned Gus Nelson, 5761 Elston avenue, while he was working on the boat yesterday. The cruiser is owned by Henry Jay Stephens of Oak Park.

Lawyer Asks Pearsons if He Took His Cue from Simmons

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Whether former Mayor Harry P. Pearsons, Evanston attorney, and his friend, Parke E. Simmons, 73 year old retired Evanston attorney, compared notes on their respective domestic difficulties was the subject of questioning yesterday in the courtroom of Superior Judge Harry B. Miller.

Pearsons, who testified the previous day in the hearing on his wife's suit for separate maintenance that he married her on her plea to save her honor, was asked on cross-examination if he knew Mr. Simmons. He replied he knew Mr. Simmons "very well." Simmons, whose wife, Mrs. Mary de Diemar Wright Simmons, has brought suit against him for saparate maintenance, charged in a bill for annulment that his wife entrapped him into marriage by pretending she was to become a mother. This annulment suit was dismissed. Mrs. Simmons' suit is pending.

Questioned By Attorney.

Attorney Frank Cantwell, counsel for Mrs. Elizabeth Schmitt Pearsons, questioned Pearsons.

Q.—How long have you known Mr. Simmons? A.—Many years.

Q.—Didn't the idea for your testimony come to you as a result of talking to Parke Simmons? A.—Not at all.

Q.—How old are you? A.—Fifty-nine years old.

Q.—And you believed her when she told you she was to become a mother? A.—Yes.

Q.—You've had lots of experience with women? A.—No, not so very much.

Pearsons previously had testified on direct examination by his attorney, Lloyd C. Whitman, that in April, 1928, the then Mrs. Schmitt told him she was about to become a mother, that he was responsible, and that she intended to undergo an operation. As her heart was bad and she feared dying with a stain on her name, she asked him to marry her, he testified. The arrangement was that they should be divorced if she survived the operation, he said. They were married in June, 1928.

Asked About Divorce Case.

Attorney Cantwell asked Pearsons if he knew a "Mr. Ingbran of Evanston." He replied that he did.

Q.—You were found in his bed one night, weren't you? A.—I was not.

Q.—Weren't you named co-respondent in his divorce? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—And you know Mrs. Inghran, don't you? A.—I have known her since she was a little girl.

Attorney Cantwell questioned Pearsons about an alleged party he gave in March or April, 1930.

Q.—Did you say to a Mrs. Mackler early one morning in your home, "Run like hell before my wife sees you?" A.—[Smiling]—No.

Questioning brought out that the "Mary Doe" named in Mrs. Pearsons' petition and later identified as Miss Gloeckle, is Miss Lily Gloeckle, who formerly occupied an apartment at 429 Briar place.

Q.—Now, the night of May 11, when you visited her at her apartment, what did you do that evening? A.—O, played the radio.

Q.—And the lights went on and off that evening? A.—I don't recall.

DE VALERA PARTY LEADS IN IRISH ELECTION COUNT

Cosgrave and Rival Are Personal Victors.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 18 [Thursday].—Smashing personal victories were won in the Irish general election by President William T. Cosgrave and Eamon de Valera, leaders respectively of the government and Fianna Fail [Republican] parties, the two which are contending for the power in Ireland. Both men were returned with enormous votes.

Although insufficient returns were available early today for an accurate forecast as to the outcome, in some quarters a government defeat was predicted. A tabulation showed that of 35 of the 153 seats in the dail the Republicans had won 15; the government, 12; independents, 6; Labor, 2.

It was predicted that in the end De Valera's party, with the support of Labor, would have a majority of three or four.

Notables Are Elected.

De Valera headed the poll in County Clare, while Cosgrave had an enormous excess over the quota in the city of Cork. [Under the proportional representation system the first candidates elected are merely the first to reach their quotas of required votes.]

Capt. W. A. Redmond, son of the great nationalist leader, John Redmond, was elected on the government ticket in Waterford. T. P. Dowdall, prominent Fianna Fail candidate, was declared elected at Cork. Other notables elected include Alfred Byrne, Dublin's lord mayor, independent; Gen. Richard J. Mulcahy, minister of local government; Sean O'Kelly, Fianna Fail leader; Finance Minister Ernest Blythe and Desmond Fitzgerald, minister of defense.

The outcome, if very close, may depend on the elections in counties Sligo and Leitrim, postponed because of the political murders and attacks early this week.

The executive council will meet today or tomorrow to issue a proclamation postponing the meeting of the dail from March 2 until March 9 to allow the elections in those two counties before the meeting.

De Valera Sobered.

If De Valera does attain the power, it will be a greatly sobered man who will direct Ireland's statecraft. The approach of responsibility has affected him, and his immediate program, as he outlined it in a long talk today, is much modified.

He talks no more of "another round with England" or even of an immediate declaration of a republic. In fact, De Valera said he has no mandate for that. His immediate mandate, he explained, is to abolish the oath of allegiance to King George which every member of the dail must take. He and his followers will take it once again to qualify as members, but if he has a majority he announced that he will introduce a bill immediately to abolish it. That, he said, will remove the last objection of militant republicans to sitting in the dail.

To Repeal Safety Act.

Then will follow the repeal of the public safety act passed to deal with armed rebellion and plots against the state, and then two years of constructive reforms and economy to tighten up the administration, after which De Valera proposes to go to the country again and ask a free vote on future relations with England.

If absolute freedom is established he would then be willing, he said, to enter into an "association" with the British commonwealth of nations for joint action and control of matters of common interest. These might include defense, foreign relations, or some trade treaties, but they remain to be defined when the time comes.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

ADELAIDE, Australia, Feb. 17.—The race between windjammers carrying wheat from Australia to England and the continent this season will be the largest in many years. Twenty ships have been chartered at various ports to carry 80,000 tons of grain. The contest is regarded as the greatest since the famous race between tea clippers from China and it is unlikely Australia will ever see a similar gathering of sailing vessels.

EXTEND FREE LUNCHES FROM HUNGRY PUPIL FUND TO 243 SCHOOLS

Free lunches furnished needy pupils by the Hungry School Children's fund are now being provided in 243 schools instead of 211. The assignments from the fund to the 211 schools were decreased where it was possible in order to care for the extreme need in the additional schools.

Records are kept of all money expended from the fund so that contributors may know that all the money is going to the purpose intended. The allowances to the 243 schools are made by Miss Frances L. Swain, head of the household arts department of the public schools. The schools are all thoroughly investigated and their needs determined. The administration of the funds is governed by a citizens' committee of women from various civic groups.

Although readers are responding generously, the daily contributions are not sufficient to finance the lunches. Less than $1,000 of the $36,373 that has been received since the beginning of the fund remains in the treasury. The Washington bicentennial benefit dances for the fund, to be held on next Monday at the Aragon and Trianon ballrooms, it is hoped, will guarantee lunches for the following week. The following contributions are listed:

$20.00—Mrs. A. W. Peake.
$16.35—The Bookhouse for Children.
$5.00—W. Gilles, 4622 Lake Park avenue, Chicago, Nana, Mrs. Andrew Gray, Mrs. A. G. Adams, Helen Dreyfus, Marian Richeson, L. P. Warner, and A. Lundahl.
$4.00—Haviland.
$1.00—Mrs. V. G. Burns, Anonymous, St. Valentine, R. R., From a Friend, and Anonymous.

MISS FORTESCUE ARRIVES IN U. S. FROM HONOLULU

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The United States army transport Republic, docking here today from Honolulu, quietly brought in Miss Helene Fortescue, whose mother and brother-in-law are held in Hawaii on second degree murder indictments in the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai.

The departure of the young woman from Honolulu was so carefully kept secret that few of the 1,506 passengers aboard the Republic knew that the blond, attractive, 18 year old girl belonged to the family which has figured in news dispatches from Hawaii recently.

The same precautions were taken when the Republic docked this morning at the Brooklyn army base. Miss Fortescue landed, accompanied by two enlisted men who acted as a bodyguard aboard the Republic. She quickly entered an automobile that was awaiting her and drove away.

W. C. T. U. HONORS FOUNDER, HAILS DRYS' VICTORIES

The Central union of the W. C. T. U., Chicago's oldest temperance group, gathered at the Auditorium hotel yesterday for a memorial to Frances E. Willard, world temperance crusader, on the 34th anniversary of her death. Fifteen persons, including two speakers, attended.

After a few remarks by the chairman, in which Frances Willard was named with Lincoln and Washington as one of the "three great American citizens," the discussion was turned over to present day subjects. These included a recital of the advances of prohibition in foreign countries and the achievements of the drys during 1931.

"The drys are on their tiptoes," Mrs. W. L. Gourley, chairman of a law observance committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs, informed the women. They responded by clapping heartily.

"During 1931 were recorded more dry victories and encouragement than any time since the passage of the 18th amendment," Mrs. Gourley continued.

"Well, you know the wets can make a lot of noise and no doubt they've got a lot of money, but, thank God, they can't cast all the ballots. The year 1931 was a wonderful year for the drys. But this is our strategic year and pray God we won't lose our foothold. The wets are thinking up everything they can to break through our lines."

$33,500 JEWELS LEFT IN TAXICAB ARE RECOVERED

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Thirty-five pieces of jewelry, worth $33,500, which Mrs. Frederick Lewisohn's maid left in a taxicab last Sunday night, have been recovered. They were found buried under cement blocks in the home of Frank Schipini, driver of the taxicab, in Brooklyn. Schipini, arrested on a charge of grand larceny, admitted taking the gems at police headquarters today.

MRS. FREDERICK LEWISOHN.

Mrs. Lewisohn, wife of the financier, her daughter, a maid, and a butler returned to New York Sunday night from Palm Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Lewisohn and her daughter were driven to their home at 726 Park avenue in the Lewisohn car, leaving the maid and the butler to follow with their luggage in a taxicab. Among the luggage was a small black bag containing the jewelry. This bag was left in the taxicab when the other luggage was taken into the Lewisohn home.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Bruno Solan, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Thomas Taylor.

Charles Wertz and Walter Wozolek, murder, sentenced to 60 years each and to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary on two robbery charges; Arthur Klein, accessory to murder, sentenced to 35 years in the penitentiary; Joseph Kopey, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Walter Sleva, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Harry Fisher.

Charles Wertz, 24 years old, and Walter Wozolek, 25 years old, pleaded guilty to murder before Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court yesterday and were sentenced to sixty years each in the penitentiary. The youths shot and killed Henry Schmitt during a holdup of his delicatessen store at 4728 Belmont avenue on Dec. 10, 1931.

Two sentences of from one year to life for each youth were also imposed by Judge Fisher after they had pleaded guilty to two robberies. The sentences for murder and robbery are to run consecutively. "I want to keep these murderers in prison for the rest of their lives," said Judge Fisher.

A third member of the gang, Arthur Klein, 23 years old, who pleaded guilty to a charge of being an accessory to the murder, got a sentence of thirty-five years in the penitentiary.

Joseph Kopey, 20 years old, and Walter Sleva, 18 years old, who were captured with Klein shortly after the murder, were also sentenced. Kopey received one to twenty years in the penitentiary, and Sleva was sentenced to one to twenty years at the Pontiac reformatory.

JAPAN REJECTS LEAGUE'S VIEW ON WAR IN CHINA

Says Council Is Mixed Up in Its Facts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 18 (Thursday).—A spokesman for the foreign office announced today that Japan will take a strong stand in its reply to the league of nations council's note. He declared the council has no authority to send such an "appeal" to Japan. It violates the league covenant, he declared, and the Japanese reply will cite this point strongly.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Feb. 17.—Japan's answer to the note addressed to her yesterday by twelve members of the league of nations council, combining admonition and an appeal to stop fighting, and, what is more, marking quite a new view of the Sino-Japanese war by the league, is expected here tomorrow.

This was forecast here tonight by Naotake Sato, Japanese delegate, who is bearing the brunt of his country's involved dealings with the council.

Although his delegation spent the day parrying China's appeal for a session of the league assembly to take up the problem, and assuring all comers that the effect of the council's communication is bound to be "unfortunate," Sato intimated that Tokio's answer is very apt to be conciliatory.

Says League Misunderstands.

"The appeal to Japan is based on an imperfect interpretation of the facts, an interpretation which we cannot accept," he said. He indicated that this might be the burden of the reply.

"The appeal to Japan," he continued, "surely created a very bad impression. The fact that it was addressed only to Japan shows that the council is taking sides. Perhaps it will have the very result it is designed to avoid. I fear it might bring about a hardening of our attitude.

"And, furthermore, it is regrettable because it will stiffen the Chinese attitude at a time when we are trying to negotiate an armistice."

Reveal Armistice Terms.

The Japanese delegates here are studiously trying to give the other delegations the impression that they are desperately striving for an armistice and declare that the third clause of their armistice terms is a pledge to withdraw to their former positions within the international settlement if the Chinese accept the first two clauses, providing for withdrawal 20 miles from Shanghai and the destruction of the Chinese forts. This is stressed so hard by the wily Japanese diplomats here that the belief is growing that they are preparing a way out of a situation that has grown too difficult. This is only a surmise.

But at the same time, they have ceased to hint so strongly the possibility of their withdrawal from the league. It is well known here that withdrawal from the league would mean a lot more to Japan than some other powers. For she holds that spattering of tiny islands, the Ladrones, Marshalls, and Carolines, which give her supposedly a mastery of her side of the Pacific only by virtue of a league mandate. In event of withdrawal from the league, she would be obliged to surrender the mandates or define her situation with marked clarity.

Reject Japan's Objections.

The council, or rather "the 12," met this afternoon to consider Japan's technical obstructions to China's appeal to the assembly and, although out of politeness it named a committee of jurists to investigate, it decided "thumbs down."

The Japanese said the Chinese, by conditioning their appeal on the council's failure to call the assembly, had lost out. They said they only brought this up out of solicitude for the authority and integrity of the league. They also argued that only the Shanghai, and not the Manchurian tangle could be considered by the assembly because the council still is handling the latter, and there are no new facts to justify a transfer.

The Japanese intimated, too, that the assembly could not convene soon because the Tokio government would have to send a delegation all the way from Japan.

"My mandate is only to the council and to the disarmament conference," averred Sato apologetically.

"Explain Bombing of Camp."

In answer to an inquiry by the council as to why Japanese airplanes recently bombed a flood refugee camp near Shanghai, the Japanese explained that it was because it had barbed wire around it.

Although it is generally known that the council toned down its note just at the point of handing it to him, Sato complained earnestly today that its verbiage was "very hard."

"No note like that has ever been sent to Japan before," he said.

"The note, of course, was very strong, but I don't think it will result in many troops being withdrawn from Shanghai," said another Japanese delegate.

AMENDS BILL

MRS. ISABEL HOUGH.

Mrs. Isabel Lamon Hough of the Ambassador hotel, actress known on the stage as Isabel Baring, yesterday charged infidelity, cruelty and desertion in an amended bill for divorce from Will M. Hough, 321 Belden avenue, playwright and song writer, which she filed in the Superior court. The suit is the third instituted in Cook county courts in recent months by Mrs. Hough. She also has pending a $200,000 suit for alienation of affections against her sister-in-law, Mrs. Katherine Hough, 812 Lloyd place, Evanston, which was brought soon after the original bill for separate maintenance.

In the new bill Mrs. Hough, through her attorney, Michael A. Romano, charged that her husband was an unfit person for the custody of their son, Carol, 3 years old, who is in New York City. She charged that her husband deserted her in Stamford, Conn., in 1928 and cited numerous instances when she alleged he was cruel.

Since January, in 1928, she avowed, her husband has been constantly with a woman named in the suit as "Mary Doe." Hough, according to the bill, has an income from his $100,000 estate in addition to his earnings as a writer of movie scenarios and vaudeville skits. She asked also that he be enjoined from disposing of any of his property pending the hearing of the suit, but the petition will not be taken before Judge Joseph Sabath until next week, the attorney said.

MANCHURIA GETS A NEW NAME; IT'S "LAND OF PEACE"

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The new state of Manchuria will be known as "Ankuo" (land of peace), and its national emblem will be the discarded Chinese five barred flag emblazoned by the rising sun of Japan.

It will have a republican form of government, ruling under what is generally regarded as Japanese direction, and will be headed by a dictator whose identity is persistently linked with that of Henry Puyi, former "boy emperor" of China.

Leading Chinese officials, prompted by Japanese advisers, so decided today. Chief among these Chinese officials was Gen. Ma Chan-shan, former commander of the Chinese forces in northern Manchuria and once a stubborn obstacle to Japanese subjugation of the three eastern provinces.

Five fundamental principles will be embodied in the projected constitution, according to reliable information. They are: Vesting of sovereignty in the people, autonomy of the state, equality of races, coöperation among racial elements and maintenance of the "open door" policy.

80 PILOTS, FIRED BY CANADA, OFFER CHINA SERVICES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 17.—Released from the Canadian Royal Air force service due to governmental economies, eighty competent flying officers, many of them war veterans, waited in a body here today on Li Tchuin, Chinese consul general in Canada, and offered their services to the Chinese government in the struggle against the Japanese.

Their spokesman, Flying Officer Broks, made it clear that their action is taken without the knowledge, consent or advice of the Canadian government.

Expressing deep appreciation, Mr. Li said he had no authority or instruction to engage any military instructors or air pilots. He said that there had been a great many offers of services by Canadian military experts, and this was only the largest group offer.

Rum Runner, $35,000 Cargo, 11 of Crew Seized

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The Nicaraguan schooner Halcon and eleven members of her crew were brought to Mobile late today by the United States coast guard cutter Gresham and held for attempted liquor smuggling. A total of 1,500 cases valued at $35,000 was seized when the vessel was taken off the Mississippi coast. The liquors consisted of rum, wines, and whisky.

ENDS LIFE WITH POISON.

Demands Troops Evacuate Shanghai Front.

Britain Drafts Protest.

The British consulate today was preparing a strong protest to the Japanese authorities following the killing of two British sailors by a shell during the Chinese-Japanese bombardment of each other's positions.

The sailors, H. A. Francis and H. G. Prior, were fatally wounded while on guard over British property in the international settlement. The exact action to be taken by Great Britain was unknown.

While the result of the British official investigation of the incident was not made public, it is thought that the sailors were killed by a shell fired from a Chinese battery, which had been shelling the Japanese position for the last two days and nights.

Five Chinese civilians were also killed and fourteen wounded and some forty buildings within the settlement were damaged during the shelling.

The Chinese action in shelling the Japanese positions within the settlement is apparently the result of the recent declaration by Mayor Wu Teh-chen of the Chinese city that the Chinese could not be held responsible for the lives and property of foreigners as long as the Japanese were permitted to use the settlement as a military base. Mayor Wu tonight issued another long declaration regarding Japanese military preparations.

"Every indication is that the Japanese are determined to aggravate the situation in Shanghai by a large scale invasion of Chinese territory," he said. "On the eve of what appears to be an impending catastrophe, China wishes to make clear her desire for peace by accepting the five proposals of the powers concerning the cessation of hostilities.

"We are willing and ready to take those steps such as to remove contact between the armed forces of the two nations and are willing to enter into negotiations to settle all outstanding differences on the basis of the five points proposed by the five powers.

"If the Japanese commanders are really desirous of peace through the removal of what the Japanese term fundamental causes of the complications, the Japanese are urgently invited to accept those proposals, since nothing else will sustain Japan's protestations of a desire for peaceful settlement.

"If Japan continues to refuse acceptance, it can mean nothing else than that she is determined to effect a conquest of China, and if hostilities do not cease, the world must know that it is due to Japan's continued refusal of every proposal made by friendly and neutral powers. If a catastrophe results, Japan alone must bear the sole responsibility."

Another City Gets Ultimatum.

Japanese naval authorities, who have seven gunboats anchored in the Yangtze river near Chinkiang, today delivered an ultimatum to the Chinese officials of that city demanding an apology for the actions of a Chinese mob in assaulting and injuring a Japanese sailor.

The Japanese demanded that Gen. Ku Chu-tung, chairman of the Kiangsu provincial government, apologize aboard a Japanese gunboat and pay the medical services for the injured sailor.

The National government advised Gen. Ku to apologize to avoid strong Japanese action at Chinkiang, which the Chinese believe would be directed to cutting the railway connecting Shanghai and Nanking. The railway is within easy shelling range of the Japanese gunboats.

5 Fanatical Java Natives Give Selves to Crater God

BATAVIA, Java, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Voluntary human sacrifice to the "crater god" is generally accepted here as the explanation for the disappearance of five Javanese who left three months ago led by a fanatical compatriot for the top of Merapi volcano. Today a searching party found five neatly rolled bundles of clothing at the rim of the crater. A rope dangled over the edge.

U. S. DRAFTS NEW NOTE LAYING ALL BLAME ON JAPAN

Holds It Up as Tokio Sends Advance Hint.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Feb. 18 (Thursday).—American Ambassador Forbes this afternoon will hand Foreign Minister Yoshizawa a protest from Secretary of State Stimson against the landing of Japanese troops in the Shanghai international settlement and a protest against the recent beating up of American Vice Consul Ringwalt in Shanghai, a spokesman for the foreign office said today. The foreign office, he said, feels that Stimson is going out of his way in these matters.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—A note warning the Japanese government that the United States intends to hold it financially responsible for future damages suffered by American citizens in the Shanghai international settlement as a result of the Japanese invasion has been drafted by the state department.

Whether it will find a resting place in the department's archives or find its way to Tokio furnished a problem which state department officials were trying to solve tonight. Secretary of State Stimson was represented as undecided whether to forward the communication to Tokio in view of recent developments, indicating that American Aambassador Forbes at Tokio has advised a moratorium on note writing for the present.

Holds Japan's Action Illegal.

As originally prepared, the state department communication would hold Japan responsible for damages to Americans even if the injuries were traced to Chinese sources. The idea back of the projected move was that as Japan is illegally in China, having violated the Kellogg anti-war treaty and the nine power Washington treaty, she is responsible for the results of such a step.

The state department had planned to send such a communication to Ambassador Forbes at Tokio for transmission to the Japanese foreign office early this week. On Monday Katsuji Debuchi, the Japanese ambassador, was notified of the plan by Stimson.

Japan Heads Off Note.

The Japanese ambassador immediately communicated the results of his interview with Mr. Stimson to Tokio. The result was that before the Stimson note could get to the Japanese capital a spokesman for the Japanese foreign office had let it be known that his government would consider such a protest merely a waste of cable tolls. The dispatch of the note was held up while administration officials went into a huddle to decide what should be done.

LOST! 20 Lbs. Of FAT In 3 Weeks

Well Known Lansing, Michigan, Woman Jubilant—Regains Health and Vivaciousness. Feels, Oh, So Light and Full of Pep.

Suppose you were way overweight for your height—165 lbs.—and every time you looked in a mirror it showed you with a double chin, heavy arms and legs, large hips and bust.

And suppose this over-fat condition made you too heavy for your own feet—until you felt constantly all dragged out, very nervous and irritable.

And then you tried one thing after another—and you're all ready to give up in despair.

Such was the dilemma of Miss Iva Root, of Lansing, Mich. She read about Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, the one safe natural way to take off excess poundage by cleansing wastes from the intestines and removing retained moisture from fatty tissues. But let her tell the story:

"Talk all you please about fat people being good-natured. I wasn't when I weighed 165 pounds—20 pounds too much, and I'm only 26. Everybody thought me a grouch. Really, I was sick with acid, gassy indigestion, and constipation. I bloated terribly after meals. But for a long time I could find no relief. Then I read a Bonkora ad. Three bottles took off 20 pounds surplus weight, and rid me of my indigestion, too."

You may not lose 20 pounds in three weeks. But if you have excess fat you can lose it in the famous "3 easy stages" as shown in this picture. For the next week, before meals, take a little Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, in half a glass of water. No need to starve. Eat as much as you want, avoid fatty meats and starchy foods. The big secret is selecting for each meal the proper combination of foods that do not clog the system and turn to fat. An almost endless choice of appealing dishes showing you how to select the correct combination of foods you probably like best, furnished free.

Bonkora, the safe and effective method to reduce—recently perfected by a skilled chemist—contains only the choicest and most efficacious medicaments of Nature. NO thyroid or other drug that may jeopardize your health.

Simply get a bottle of Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, with free list of anti-fat food combinations at your druggist's today—unhealthy fat will quickly disappear and with it bloat gas, and other stomach ills. You'll feel younger; yes, you'll look younger with those bright eyes and that clear skin and stunning youthful figure which only perfect health can impart.

TIMID BANKERS REAL HOARDERS, GLASS ASSERTS

Claims Banks Are Afraid to Release Credit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Timid bankers, made fearful by the same factors which cause clamoring depositors to line up at the paying teller's window were described as the country's real money hoarders today by Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], the banking expert of congress, former secretary of the treasury, and co-author of the federal reserve act.

CARTER GLASS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

In the words of Senator Frederic C. Walcott [Rep., Conn.], the peppery little senator from Virginia "hung the wash out on the line for every one to see," as he coupled with an appeal for the passage of the Glass-Steagal bill, a denunciation of the federal reserve member banks for holding in their vaults four billion dollars worth of eligible paper on which the reserve banks might be making loans.

Reserve Banks Not to Blame.

"The federal reserve banks have not broken down," cried Senator Glass, his palm smacking the top of the nearest desk. "The member banks, through cowardice have ceased to function."

Even so, and though he did so only through necessity, he declared, he believed that a favorable psychological effect would come from passage of the new bill with its authority for federal reserve banks to make loans to groups of member banks on hitherto ineligible paper, to loan to smaller banks in exigent circumstances and to use direct government obligations as the basis for currency issues.

To prove his charges, Senator Glass quoted facts and figures.

The federal reserve system has today, he asserted, 465 million dollars in free gold and an additional loaning power of nearly four billions.

Member banks, he read, hold in their portfolios $8,561,628,000 of paper eligible for discount, or more than twice the sum the reserve banks have power to lend, but have discounts outstanding of only $465,711,000.

Reads Chicago Figures.

Reading the figures district by district, he came to Chicago.

"From which," said he with a scornful fling—at Gen. Dawes perhaps—"we have had some valuable advice."

The 960 member banks of the Chicago district, only five of which are without eligible assets, said Senator Glass, have in their portfolios eligible commercial paper totaling $328,991,000 and eligible government securities totaling $664,147,000, or $993,138,000 in all.

"And yet—and mark this," cried the senator from Virginia, "there is rediscounting in the Chicago district to the extent of only $27,144,000."

Yet the lending power of the Chicago federal reserve bank over and above outstanding loans, he declared, is $831,000,000.

Not Using Reserve System.

"The banking community is frightened," said Senator Glass. "It does not seem to realize that the federal reserve system was created for an emergency like this. This measure will perhaps be of psychological advantage in that it gives assurance to frightened and timid bankers that if they exhaust their eligible assets they may make use of their now ineligible assets."

He did not agree, he said, with the hope expressed by some that the federal reserve banks would not have to make use of the bill's provision that government securities, for a period of one year might be employed as a currency basis. He thought it "very likely" that use would be made of that provision.

The measure, said Senator Glass, would not permit banks to hold their eligible paper and unload on the reserve system "their cats and dogs, chips and whetstones."

Amendments offered by Senator Thomas [Dem., Okla.] to strike out the one year limitation on the use of government bonds as a currency basis, and by Senator Blaine [Radical Republican, Wis.] to prevent member banks from reloaning federal reserve money for speculative purposes, prevented the adoption of the bill today.

ST. PETER'S BOMB STORY EXPLODES; A "FIRECRACKER"

Vatican Says It Was of "Slight Importance."

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 17.—Sensational accounts sent out of Rome about a "bomb" found in St. Peter's cathedral last Saturday were in turn exploded by Vatican authorities tonight.

It wasn't a bomb, at all, but firecracker, according to a communique in the official Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, which, under the heading, "Exaggerations of Foreign Correspondents," says:

"Several foreign newspapers, with a profusion of details which show the exaggeration of absolute fancy to which their correspondents here abandon themselves, have published articles about the finding of an explosive contrivance in the Vatican basilica last Saturday.

"A Small Contrivance."

"We deem it necessary to point out that the affair was of such slight importance that we thought it superfluous even to mention it. It was a small contrivance—a firecracker of no effectivity—and was found in an obscure place."

Some weeks ago considerable excitement was caused in the Milan railroad station when employés heard a ticking sound coming from an emigrant's trunk in the baggage room. They called out police reserves and artillery experts, who opened the trunk and found an alarm clock.

Found Under Altar.

An Associated Press dispatch from Rome Monday said a bomb "about the size of a shoe box" had been found Saturday under a bronze lion of the central altar of St. Peter's cathedral. It was stated that a mysterious cablegram from America had revealed the bomb and that Italian artillery officers had exploded the package with a resulting "tremendous blast."

The incident was taken as being directed at Premier Mussolini, who met Pope Pius XI. in St. Peter's Thursday, or against the pope, who celebrated the 10th anniversary of his coronation there Friday, and that the plot having failed, its instigators revealed the bomb secretly rather than have other persons suffer its effect. Inspection of the cathedral on Wednesday before Mussolini's visit had not found the bomb, and scrutiny of 2,000 persons in the cathedral at the time of his visit disclosed nothing suspicious.

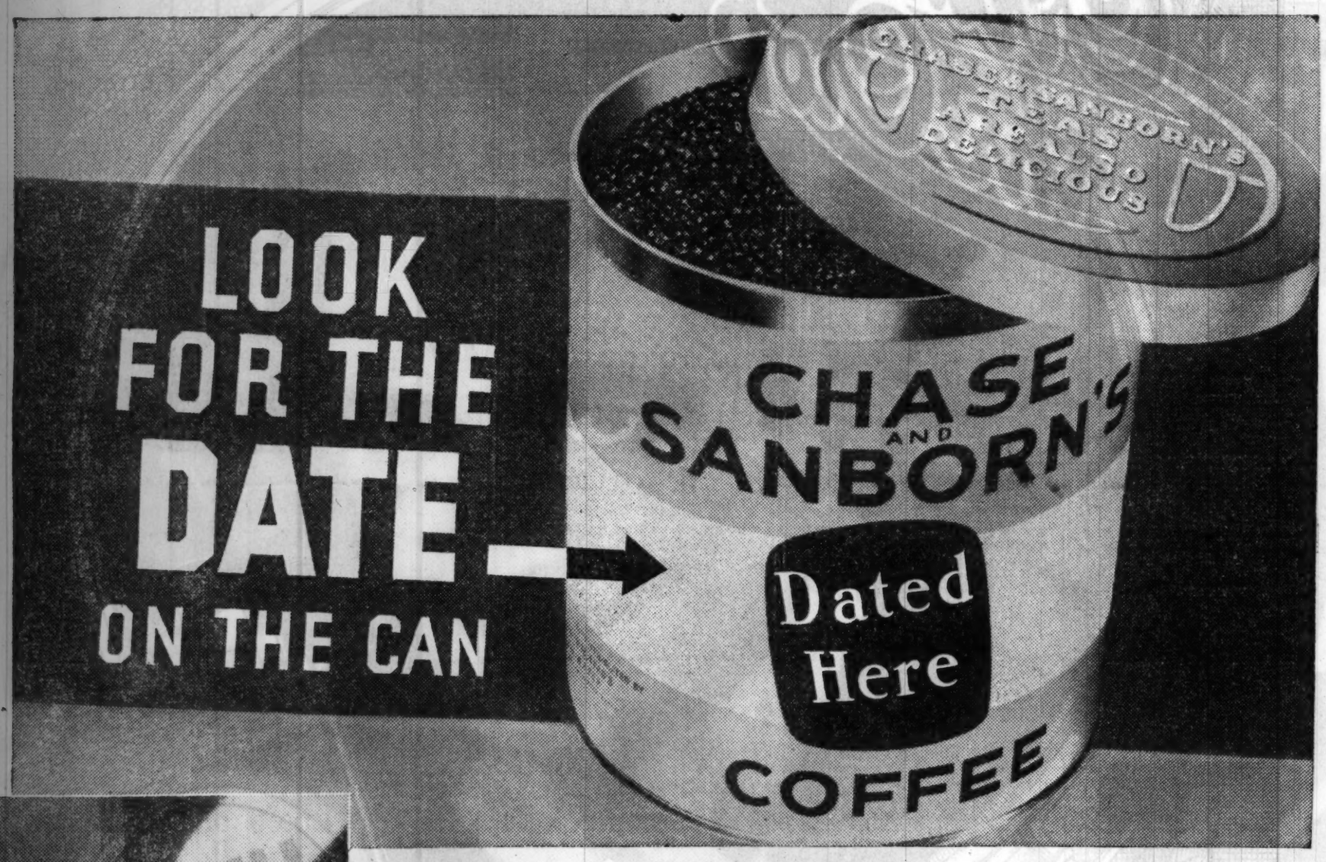
TO GUARANTEE FRESHNESS, EVERY CAN OF CHASE & SANBORN'S COFFEE IS STAMPED WITH AN EXPIRATION DATE



You wouldn't think of accepting milk unless you were sure it was fresh.

SWIFT TRUCKS rush this coffee straight from roasting ovens to grocers

OF COURSE—you know that milk has to be delivered fresh—or else it spoils.

But do you know that coffee has to be delivered fresh, too—or else it spoils?

Coffee is perishable—in the same class with milk and butter. Those delicate oils that carry the flavor and aroma quickly turn rancid, if coffee is allowed to get stale. And rancid oil spoils the flavor of coffee—often causes headaches, sleeplessness, indigestion, as well.

So to give you an absolute guarantee of freshness Chase & Sanborn's Coffee is now delivered just like a fresh food . . . Swift trucks rush it straight from the roasting ovens to the grocers—every can marked with an expiration date. And no can remains on any grocer's shelf after its date has expired.

You can't buy a stale can of Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee . . . The date is your guarantee of freshness.

Coffee lovers everywhere are talking about the superb flavor of this delicious fresh dated coffee. Get a can of Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee today. Just see for yourself what a difference freshness makes in even the finest coffee.

What is the most important consideration in buying automobile insurance?

Financial stability is the most important consideration in the purchase of insurance. As a prudent motorist, this year you will carefully investigate the financial standing of the concern carrying your automobile insurance. In the easy-come-easy-go days many motorists neglected this precaution. Today, however, the fear of a judgment that would sweep away car, savings and home, will prompt a greater number of motorists to use precaution in the selection of their automobile insurance.

Your investigation will prove to you that in addition to financial stability, the Inter-Insurance Exchange of the Chicago Motor Club provides you with special features such as the valued form contract, coverage on accessories without additional charge, and cash savings.

Last year the "exchange" returned to subscribers in cash, $816,473.76, an amount larger than the cash return in any previous year. The auditors' statement prepared by William C. Kirby & Company follows:

DEPRESSION HITS DRAINING RACKET ON OL' MAN RIVER

New Schemes to Exploit Mississippi Sought.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The racketeering of the Mississippi and its tributaries has taken on new aspects due to the depression. Old Man River is still rolling along, but his exploiters have changed to a new theory and technique. This has been evinced today in the opening sessions of the national drainage, conservation and flood control congress.

A few years ago the engineering talent and the makers of pumps and steam shovels were yelling for drainage and reclamation of swamp lands along the rivers, to spoil the fishing and hunting and to put more land into cultivation, increasing the crop surplus, and knocking down the farm price.

Today finds some of the best engineers advocating that a lot of the reclaimed lands to be turned back into swamp and wilderness, to cut down acreage, and to produce bass and mallards instead of corn and soy beans.

Change Tune on Floods, Too.

Likewise on flood control, a change in theory is noticeable at the congress. Instead of spending hundreds of millions on the Mississippi below St. Louis, many of the engineers argue it would be better to spend large chunks of these government funds on the headwaters of the tributaries with a view to keeping flood waters back as a preventive against drought, instead of shooting it into the Gulf of Mexico as fast as possible.

That the flood and drainage reclamation racket is not what it used to be was in full evidence when the congress met this morning. In former years, it used to have an attendance of 300 to 500 and more.

Old Man River was the old father of sugar daddies, and the machinery men, the lads in the pump and shovel business and the levee contractors were wont to turn out full force, whooping it up for the reclamation business. Today, however, they were absent, hardly a machinery man in sight, depression and the talk of economy at Washington and the billion and a quarter deficit had kept them at home.

When B. F. Williams, state reclamation engineer of Texas, president of the congress called it to order only twenty or thirty delegates were present. These were nearly all technicians, mostly engineers of various states, half of them with speeches in their pockets, who settled down to listen to each other's addresses.

U. S. Bureau on Deck.

Three lecturers were sent from Washington, presumably at public expense, for the entertainment of the delegates. Lewis A. Jones, chief of the division of drainage and soil erosion control of the department of agriculture; Porter W. Dent, assistant commissioner of the bureau of reclamation, department of the interior, were on today's program, and tomorrow night H. N. Wheeler, chief lecturer, U. S. forest service, is to speak on tree planting.

The organization was started twenty-one years ago as the National Drainage congress, and it changed its name to embrace flood control and conservation, two years ago. Its first aim is to encourage reclamation of land by drainage or by irrigation.

That drainage reclamation however has fallen upon lean days, was the opening theme of Mr. Jones, the first Washington lecturer to instruct the expert engineers. The atmosphere was a trifle lugubrious, when Mr. Jones smacked one off the bat at the start.

Drainage Racket Over.

"Just at present," he said, "drainage is a very unpopular subject, the anvil chorusis in full swing. Drainage districts in financial difficulties, and there are many such, are pointed to as examples of ill advised expansion of our agricultural lands, and persons involved in their organization and construction are criticized for their lack of foresight. With existing surpluses of agricultural products and resulting low prices, such criticism is undoubtly warranted."

The audience grasped the point without apparent difficulty. The machinery men and the pump and shovel makers in fact, it seemed, had got it ahead of Mr. Jones' exposition, hence their absence.

In his disclosures of how Washington feels on some of the bass lakes and duck ponds which have been turned into cornfields which do not pay off the cost of drainage and levees, Mr. Jones echoed what many of the engineers had been saying all morning in the lobby talk, namely, that "some of the existing drainage enterprises never should have been undertaken at all."

One question which the delegates may take up is the indorsement of the Glenn-Smith bill for a revolving fund of $100,000,000 to aid in refinancing drainage and private irrigation districts, many of which are in trouble.

CANADA COUNTS COST OF WHEAT POOL DISASTER

Dominion Has Headache After Co-op Spree.

new elevators, scattered through the prairies, and terminal facilities at the head of the lakes, in eastern and American lake and river ports. Two rival farm groups vied with each other in this gigantic expansion until some small towns had four to seven elevators, each the medium for a clique of farmers to point to with pride and to handle what grain could be mustered by "membership campaigns" or coercions.

A Heavy Expansion.

The Canadian wheat pool grew out of the movement in 1923 to centralize the selling agencies for all coöperative marketing groups, with one exception, that of the United Grain Growers. That year Canada harvested 20 million acres of wheat, the low point in the farmers' gradual reduction from war production.

Each year since, however, the acreage has been expanded until last year 26,115,000 acres of wheat were sown. Now far above its wartime production, Canada last year had its second largest international trade in wheat, exceeded only in 1928, when it shipped 422 million bushels, the most any country has ever exported.

The wheat pool, gaining members on the crest of the wave, built great sales offices and spread its own sales force into every foreign country potentially a buyer or producer of wheat. Its 26 year old sales manager, George McIvor, sat at his desk, drawing an annual salary said to be $75,000, selling millions of bushels of farmers' grain at the turn of his finger.

Disregard Organized Markets.

From the start the wheat pool maintained the utter unsoundness of hedging or future trading as a means of financing its wheat merchandising.

Its sales and statistical heads, as well as officers, declared constantly to farmers and to bankers that its own sales organization, its own "unbiased" figures on world trends and conditions, would enable it to "outguess" the regular grain merchants and buyers of the world.

The test of this policy came in 1929, when, with prices declining, the pool decided to hold back its wheat until buyers were forced to turn toward Canada. Only the grain owned outside the pool was marketed. Bankers relied on the judgment of the pool's officers and financed the unhedged holdings of millions of bushels. Canadian commerce became stagnant as the wheat backed up in terminals.

Then other producing nations came out with large offerings, many foreign wheat consuming nations turned to other foodstuffs, and Russia began to sell some of its grain for needed cash. The pool had advanced first payments to its farmers on the 1930 crop, and still held millions of bushels of 1929 and 1928 wheat. Its members answered also by further expanding for the 1931 crop.

Flirting with Disaster.

Caught in an economic condition the pool and its bankers had been unable to foresee, the crash hovered over the dominion throughout 1930, threatening its financial institutions as well as farmers. Provincial governments met the emergency by guaranteeing the banks' loans to the pool. The shortsighted policy of maintaining its own sales organization in foreign markets was rescinded.

But the farmers refused to see the end of their dreams. Bills were introduced in some of the province legislatures to compel 100 per cent membership of wheat growers in a wheat pool. This was found unconstitutional in principle and abandoned.

The only alternative was to turn over the pool control to the three provinces and in June, 1931, Manitoba led the march to the salvaging of the pool by permitting its member farmers to use future trading, hedging, or spot sale methods of marketing the 1931 crop.

The only condition imposed was that the pool members must ship through one of the 1,600 elevators which the pool gave up as collateral to the public treasury. Alberta and Saskatchewan followed suit.

Premiers of the three provinces, together with the dominion government, are now meeting at intervals to carry out the liquidation of the pool's obligations.

Illness of Judge Forces Delay in Nelson Trial

The trial of Oscar Nelson, state auditor, on charges of conspiring to defraud depositors of the defunct Waukegan State bank at Woodstock, was continued yesterday to Feb. 23 because of the illness of Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of McHenry county, who was to preside. The case will fall on the same date as the trial of George Woodruff and Norman O. Geyer, president of the bank when it closed, on conspiracy charges. Nelson had obtained a severance.

START HEARINGS ON DISBARMENT OF PAYROLLERS

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The Illinois Supreme court today entered upon the hearing of disbarment proceedings inaugurated by the Bar association against lawyers accused of profiting from the padded pay roll of the Chicago sanitary district. Three days have been set aside to hear the defense of respondents who are facing the bench in consequence of the court's rule to answer.

Thomas J. Symmes moved that the rule by which the defendants were brought into court be discharged. He asserted that the charge against the lawyers was not a matter for the bar association or for discipline through information to disbar. If lawyers had committed any offense warranting punishment he said, they should be prosecuted in the Criminal courts, in the regular manner. He denied, however, that the acceptance of employment from the sanitary district constituted a criminal offense or that it warranted the pillorying of attorneys as unworthy to practive their profession.

The cases against the lawyers will occupy the attention of the court during the remainder of the term if each of the defense attorneys takes all the time allotted to them under the court's rule. The court, it is expected, will adjourn this week.

Will Keeps Heirs Out of Planes and Stock Market

Media, Pa., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The purchase of airplanes and stocks on margin is forbidden to beneficiaries of the will of the late Emanuel Hey, who died Dec. 29. In his will probated yesterday, Hey disposed of an estate of $409,585. Three children share in the estate's income, provided they don't "play the market" or "purchase, hire, or use airplanes."

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

For coughs due to colds, the best remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

ORDERS ISSUED FOR ARREST OF BAIN AND AIDS

$13,000,000 Bank Fraud Is Charged.

Capiases for the arrest of John Bain, founder of the twelve Bain banks which failed last June 9, and five others were issued last night by by the Criminal court clerk following the return of indictments against the six men charging them with a $13,000,000 conspiracy to defraud depositors.

Arrangements probably will be made to surrender the men today. Bain, his two sons, John H. and Robert A. Bain, and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, who are named in the indictment, are now under bond in the Felony court and there is no need for arresting them immediately, it was said. The other two defendants named in the indictment were Dr. Walter H. Buhlig, Bain's physician, and Frank A. Mulholland, south side real estate man.

The first indictment charged a general conspiracy on the part of all six to defraud depositors in the Bain banks of $13,000,000. The indictment contains 154 pages, lists 73 counts, and is said to be the longest indictment ever returned in the Criminal courts building.

Another count of the indictment accused the defendants of obtaining money under false pretenses by selling $3,000,000 worth of bank paper to the public. Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber said this figure was extremely conservative and estimated that about $30,000,000 worth of Bain bank notes were sold to the public. Most of this is now worthless, Mr. Raber declared.

Still another count charges fraud by the illegal lending of large sums to directors and officials of the banks. The records show that these officials owed the banks $4,500,000 when they closed.

Named in Other Indictments.

Three other indictments were returned in addition to the general conspiracy indictment. One charged John Bain and his eldest son, John H. Bain, as officials of the Chicago Lawn State bank, with accepting a $90 deposit from Joseph Pikel, a depositor, on June 9, the date the bank closed. The Bains knew the bank was insolvent when they accepted this deposit, according to the charges.

Another indictment accused John Bain, Fisher, and Dr. Buhlig as officials of the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank with accepting a deposit of $1,980 from William and Mamie Gleich on June 6 when the bank was insolvent. The last indictment accused Bain, Robert A. Bain, and Fisher as officials of the Stony Island State Savings bank of accepting a deposit of $2,500 from Patrick and Anna Nolan on June 8.

The total bonds for John Bain were set at $19,000, for his sons, John H. and Robert A. Bain, $13,000 each; for Fisher, $16,000; for Dr. Buhlig, $13,000, and for Mulholland, $10,000.

The cases against the Bains will be assigned by Chief Justice Fisher to a jury next week and placed on the trial call. After taking a vacation in Florida for a month, Prosecutor Raber will return to press for an immedite trial, he said.

Ex-Bank President Called.

Ike Powell, president of the closed South Side Savings Bank and Trust company, was subpoenaed yesterday to appear before Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg today to explain his debt of $22,000 to the bank. This was the first instance, according to the judge, of a bank president being indebted to his own bank.

Possibility of another payment to the depositors of the closed Lake View State bank was seen in the decision of Circuit Judge Joseph Burke, who ordered the auditor of public accounts to turn over to the receiver $208,571 placed on deposit with him when the bank started in the trust business. Every Chicago bank engaged in trust business must deposit at least $200,000 in good securities with the auditor as a guarantee bond.

VOODOOISM CASTS NEW SPELL OVER DIXIE NEGROES

New Orleans, La., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Voodooism, with all the mystic terrorism of the Congo jungles, is sweeping the Negro population of this city and the bayous beyond. It is whispered from mouth to mouth that the powers of the Gran' Zombi, the Voodoo serpent god, have brought a murderer to the scene of his crime, and to death in retribution.

Last Sunday the body of a young Negress, Lucille Williams, was found floating in the New Basin canal, within the city limits. A witness said he had seen a man slug her and throw her into the water.

The body was recovered and the weird rites started. The body was laid out in a white flowing robe dyed in fantastic designs with blood taken from mourners who had cut themselves. A fresh egg was laid in the palm of each hand. The wrists were tied with strands of marsh witch grass. The body was then placed in the casket, face downward.

Tuesday the girl was buried.

The witch doctors had said: "Our Voodoo religion will bring the murderer back to the scene of his crime."

Today the Negro population was aroused when Elijah Wheatley, never under suspicion, came back to the scene of his crime and leaped into the water at the spot where he had thrown the girl into the canal.

100 HUNGRY LIONS CAUSE NAPLES TO FORGET VESUVIUS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 17.—The roaring of 100 hungry lions of Capt. Schneider's bankrupt circus caused the population of Naples more terror tonight than the roaring of Vesuvius when it is on a rampage, and two policemen armed with muskets are guarding the cages.

Armed policemen were posted by the prefect of police today when the story got around that the cages might be opened and the famished beasts turned loose to feast on the town. The circus has been making no money for several weeks and its personnel has not been paid. There are many creditors against it, and the proprietor, Capt. Schneider, has gone to Paris and Holland to seek new engagements.

Reports got around that the captain had said that if Naples did not let him move his lions away he would open the cages and let the lions move on Naples.

Therefore, to quiet the population, the police department stationed cops with muskets to guard the cages against any possibility of retaliation on creditors.

LEVINE, SOUGHT FOR YEAR, HAS A BROKEN LEG

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Charles A. Levine, first trans-Atlantic plane passenger, whom police have been seeking more than a year at the request of the district attorney's office, turned up unexpectedly today in the Harbor sanitarium, where under the name of Jaffee he is having a broken leg mended.

CHARLES LEVINE. [A. P. Photo.]

The exclusive corridors of the hospital were invaded a short time later by a policeman who took up a position by Mr. Levine's bed and placed him under arrest on a charge of grand larceny.

He will remain there until Mr. Levine is well enough to go to the district attorney's office to be questioned about a stock transaction. Levine will be in the hospital at least a month, his doctors say.

What District Attorney Charles J. Garrison wants to know, he said this afternoon, is how Mr. Levine came to post as collateral for a $25,000 loan from the Manufacturers' Trust company in this city some $29,900 worth of stocks that had vanished a few months before while in transit from the brokerage offices of Williamson, Giblert & Co., the tax transfer agents.

JURORS WANT TO RECONSIDER KEGEL TRUE BILL

Hear Witness Recount His Prison Confession.

After rehearing of testimony regarding the alleged poisoning of Mrs. Mary Ryan by Mrs. Marie Sahlin Kegel, wife of Dr. Arnold Kegel, former health commissioner, the grand jury yesterday asked Judge John Prystalski if the indictment voted against Mrs. Kegel last week, charging attempted murder by poisoning, could be recalled. Judge Prystalski said it could not, but if the grand jury wished to make any recommendations to him regarding the indictment they could do so.

Gerald Lee, who was indicted as an accessory to the alleged crime of putting bichloride of mercury in an ice cream soda for Mrs. Ryan, was called before the jury. It was reported that he repudiated the confession he had made and denied the truth of the testimony he gave before the grand jury on his previous appearance. It was also said that he showed the jurors bruises on his body which he said were received when he was beaten to force him to make the allegedly false confession.

Detectives Are Questioned.

Detectives Michael Ahern, Leo Anderson, James Zegar, and John Scherping of the state's attorney's office were called into the jury room, both while Lee was there and when he was excluded. No information was given by John P. Larkin, foreman of the grand jury, as to whether Lee was able to point out any one of the detectives as one who mistreated him. The jurors were said to feel that the case was originally rushed through before them and they may have done an injustice.

The jurors will investigate the alibi Lee now offers, questioning the dentist in whose office he said he was at the time of the alleged poisoning. They will also question the owner of the ice cream parlor at Irving Park boulevard and Broadway, where Mrs. Ryan said she was poisoned.

Story of Alleged Poisoning.

Lee's confession was to the effect he was present and saw Mrs. Kegel drop a powder in Mrs. Ryan's ice cream soda. Mrs. Ryan said she and Mrs. Kegel were discussing testimony she intended giving in Dr. Kegel's divorce suit to the effect she knew of several attempts by Mrs. Kegel to poison Dr. Kegel.

Mrs. Kegel has been in seclusion since Mrs. Ryan's charges became public at the time the indictment was voted. Her attorney, Leo A. Reilly, is expected to surrender her today in Judge Prystalski's court. The judge on Tuesday said he would reduce her bail from $50,000 to $15,000.

THREAT LETTERS SENT TO BANKER BY GIRL SERVANT

Harrisburg, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—George O. Davenport, president of the high school board, local banker, and brother of R. C. Davenport, grand secretary of Illinois Masons, has caused the arrest of Miss Delma Leaverette, 17, maid in his home, after receiving three threatening letters.

Miss Leaverette, trapped by Davenport while writing the third letter, says she was forced to do so by boy friends who had broken into the high school and had stolen $50 out of the office safe Saturday night.

The letters threatened to take Davenport for a "ride" from which he would never return unless he ceased activities in trying to find out who robbed the high school safe.

Davenport went to the home of his brother adjoining his own and watched through a window to catch the maid writing the note. He had her searched and found the warning in her pocket. She confessed. She has named four youths as the ones who robbed the school.

FARMER SHOOTS 4 TO DEATH AND TAKES OWN LIFE

Pins Note Baring Tragedy to Garage Door.

Stout, Iowa, Feb. 17.—[Special.—A notice, crudely printed on a paper bag, was found tacked to the door of the Ford garage here at 7 o'clock this morning. The notice was unsigned. It read as follows:

"Come to the farm of Nanno Andressen one half mile east of Stout and you will find five people dead. We couldn't make it go any longer."

The garageman notified Sheriff M. J. Mamminga at Grundy Center and together they drove to the Andressen homestead. In the house they found the bodies of Andressen, who was 40 years old; his wife, 39; his sister in law, Margaret Hessenius, 44, and his children, Elmer, 13, and Verna, 9 years old.

All Shot to Death.

Rifle bullets had caused the deaths of all but Andressen, who had been killed by a shotgun charge. The sheriff expressed belief that the farmer had shot his four relatives, driven to the village with the note, and returned home to be slain by his wife before she expired.

The body of the sister-in-law, a Grundy Center spinster who had spent the night at the farmhouse, was found slumped beside a chair at the breakfast table. A bullet in the chest had killed her almost instantly.

The bodies of the children, clad in night gowns lay on the bedroom floor. Apparently they had been awakened by the gunfire and were killed as they ran to the kitchen. Each had been shot through the head.

The body of the mother lay on the floor below the kitchen table, where a pan of blood stained water stood. Officers said she had bled to death after trying to stanch the flow from a face wound.

Lay Beside Shotgun.

At an inquest this afternoon relatives said the couple had never had domestic troubles. Neighbors said Andressen's farm had been heavily mortgaged and his stock buying business unprofitable. Disregarding the opinion of the sheriff, the jury returned a verdict stating that the farmer had killed his family and committed suicide.

AVIATION NOTES

Rumors that a large airliner, said to have a capacity of 40 passengers, is nearing completion in the aircraft factory of the Ford Motor company at Dearborn, Mich., were partly confirmed by officials of the company yesterday. Details concerning the huge plane are to be announced in two weeks, it was said. The plane has been under construction for more than a year and is powered by four large Hispano Suisa, water cooled motors, it was understood. Such a plane would be the largest exclusively land plane ever built in the United States, and would rival in size large planes built and under construction abroad.

The Edgewater Flying club announced an election of officers yesterday. Monro MacCloskey is president, Harry G. Aument, vice president, Thomas A. Farina, treasurer, and Joseph Glunz, secretary. The club has moved to Curtiss-Reynolds airport from Chicago airport.

Well Fitting Evening Shirts

At the Opera, First-nights at the Theater, Banquets, and other Important Evening Functions there is a surprisingly large number of men in poorly fitting Evening Shirts. Thus, the smart effect of their otherwise correct attire is greatly impaired and also their pleasure is frequently spoiled after spending generously for an evening's entertainment.

Formal Attire should always reflect Impeccable Taste and Individual Becomingness. Styles in Shirts change just as in other Requisites and one cannot expect to be smartly dressed with shirts that are now passe. Evening Shirts require the utmost care both in designing and in expert fitting for which we are eminently renowned. Lower Prices are now in effect in our four Shops—New York, Chicago, London, Paris.

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as any other leading mouth wash. Hence it goes 3 times as far. That's economy for you! Why waste money on antiseptics that must be used full strength to be effective?

THE great economy of Pepsodent Antiseptic is the result of its high germ-killing power. That's where the difference lies between it and old-style antiseptics. When fighting sore throat colds and Bad Breath (Halitosis), remember, there are really only two leading kinds of antiseptics. On the one hand you have the mouth wash that must be used full strength to be effective. On the other hand you have Pepsodent Antiseptic—utterly safe when used full strength, yet powerful enough to be diluted with 2 parts of water and yet kill germs in less than 10 seconds. Pepsodent Antiseptic is at least three times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes three times as far—gives you three times as much for your money—and gives you extra protection against stubborn colds, and throat irritations. When choosing your mouth antiseptics, be sure you choose the one that kills the germs even when diluted! Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be safe! Be safe—and save money!

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)
The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds, proves its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, it kills germs even when diluted with water!

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE DEFEAT OF THE BEGGAR STATES.

The Costigan-La Follette almshouse bill, which would have taken $750,000,000 from the depleted federal funds further to pauperize unscrupulous states has been defeated in the senate by the sober votes of 48 senators against 35 who would have racketeered the treasury in an effort of, as you like it, beggary or burglary.

The proposal was one of the facile outgivings of a species of democracy which is most dangerous when it is most sentimental, which is most to be dreaded when it pins the red cross of humanity on the arm reaching into the public till. We say unscrupulous states and mean it. Their politicians have made them unscrupulous, irresponsible, and insolvent in the federal revenue scheme. Their demagogues have given them pauper consciousness and conscience and they will be the ruin of the country if they are not restored to self-respect and independence.

For the explanation of social and political phenomena in the United States senate one does not have to go beyond the report of federal subsidies to the states for the fiscal year of 1931 as given to congress. Fourteen states received more from the federal treasury than they contributed to federal internal revenue. Some others so nicely balanced the account that what they gave in taxes was but little more than what they received in the federal aid sent back to them.

Mr. Borah in a recent skirmish said that before the revolution the theory of government was the people existed to support the government, but that the theory made good by the formation of the American republic is that the government exists to support the people. The application of Mr. Borah's theory is found in Idaho's take of $2,680,000 from the federal treasury. The state paid $723,000 on internal reverue levies.

The other thirteen states which pay little and take much are Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Utah, and Wyoming. Nebraska takes within $170,000 of what it pays. In several cases other than that of Idaho the taxes are a pittance and, comparatively, the subsidies a flood.

Even Iowa took back $6,393,000 of the $10,400,000 paid in taxes. Even Wisconsin, under the influence of La Follette, wants the federal dole, although it was subsidized only to the extent of one-fifth of what it paid, a subsidy which, nevertheless, exceeded reason. California, although not drawing back a disproportionate share of its taxes, has tapped the till in other fashions, as in the scandalous affair of Boulder dam. Senator Johnson has put it on the federal nursing bottle. Oklahoma drew back about half of what it paid out.

Herein is sufficient explanation for such senators as the Republicans Blaine, Borah, Brookhart, Cutting, Frazier, Johnson, La Follette, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, and Thomas, who voted for the bill, and for such Democrats as Ashurst, Bratton, Caraway, Hayden, Walsh, and Wheeler, who did likewise. They represent the states which make such a significant showing in the table of taxes and subsidies. Such men as Davis of Pennsylvania and Copeland of New York, who declared themselves in sympathy with the racketeers, simply betrayed their own tax paying constituents.

New York paid $671,844,000 in taxes and had $9,000,000 back from the treasury; Illinois $190,500,000, with a return of $8,265,000; Pennsylvania $190,200,000, with a subsidy rebate of $10,600,000. The figures make good every premonition and apprehension which existed in the federal constitutional convention when for political expediency it seemed necessary to make an exception to the rule of proportionate representation in composing the United States senate. The smaller states had to be wooed with this concession to their sovereignty, but the concession was freighted with consequences.

Irresponsible government has been fostered by it. Radicals who represent the waste spaces dominate the scene with their theories and doctrines. Their constituents do not feel the weight of taxation. They are given benefits derived from money contributed by states where citizens rely on themselves and not on the treasury donations.

To check this only a little reliance can be placed upon the executive government. It requires the votes of the senators from the almshouse states. The check, if one is to be found, must be looked for in the house of representatives, where there is proportional representation. Money bills originate in this house, and when the representatives of the tax paying states are made to realize that they are sending the money of their constituents into the waste lands they may draw the pursestrings tight. They were given control of money bills for no other reason. They have surrendered control and for the consequences they may examine the treasury department deficits.

THE BUDGET AND THE TEACHERS.

The school board has come to accept the view that it is not going to get the $90,000,000 which it was about to appropriate for 1932. That is a distinct step in advance. The board seems now disposed to listen to the advice of impartial experts as to the amount of money it may reasonably expect to collect from the taxpayers and to consult other experts as to the items in its present budget which can be struck off with least loss to the children.

This is a rational procedure which starts with the assumption that it would be a serious and costly mistake for all concerned if the school board were once more to spend in excess of its income. If Mr. D. F. Kelly and his committee have, indeed, brought the trustees to accept this sound view of their duties the achievement is a noteworthy one.

The organized teachers have shown little enthusiasm for the Kelly proposals. The teachers are concerned lest their own salaries be reduced, and have called a number of massmeetings to formulate their position. There can be no objection to a frank statement of their case by the teachers, but in arriving at their decision they ought to consider the following state of facts:

The board of education cannot print money. It can spend in any year only what it receives from taxes and what it can borrow. Today the board has no credit and can therefore borrow nothing. The reason it has been unable to pay the teachers is the fact that its extravagances in the past, plus excessive borrowings, plus the failure of taxes to be collected when due, have left the board's treasury empty.

In these circumstances the board of education can vote a budget appropriating any amount of money, but such a budget will be merely a scrap of paper. It will amount to nothing more than a statement of what the school board would like to spend if it had the money. It would bear a striking resemblance to last year's budget, which appropriated almost as much. With the experience of that budget behind them, the teachers should be able to realize that the mere act of appropriation is a thing very different from the business of paying the sums appropriated when due and in cash.

The reduction of teachers' salaries may be found to be necessary, however much that course is to be regretted. A reduction of salaries will be unavoidable if the noneducational expenditures are not slashed to the bone. That has not been done yet, perhaps in part because of a mistaken sense of the amounts available for the schools and because of understandings for mutual support as between teachers and other school board employés.

These are hard times for every one, including teachers and taxpayers. Recriminations will bring no relief. A budget honestly balanced will, for it will make no promises of payment which are not likely to be realized and will give taxpayers reason to think that the money paid for the support of government is not going to be wasted.

The change of heart on the part of the school board is one of the few encouraging signs now visible. Unfortunately, the county board has shown no parallel desire to put its affairs in order. It is still appropriating money which it will not receive and thereby piling up its load of unpaid and unpayable debts.

THE TAXICAB ORDINANCE.

The city government has under consideration a proposal to restrict the number of taxicabs in Chicago to 5,200 for the next twenty years. Only those companies and individuals now in the business would be permitted to remain in it.

It is said that taxicabs cruising about for fares congest the streets needlessly and only by limiting the number of cabs can the nuisance be kept in hand. It is also said that if no limitation is placed upon the number of cabs the taxicab service will be demoralized by shoestring operators. And, the argument runs, if a monopoly is granted to a street car company, why shouldn't a monopoly be granted to a taxicab company?

That is an easy question to answer. A monopoly is granted the street car company because only one company can operate on a street. There is no such necessity for a monopoly in the taxicab business. Any number of companies can and do operate in the same street without interference.

The danger inherent in the proposal is high fares. Perhaps some means will be found for safeguarding the public interest in this respect, but the record of regulation by public authority is not too reassuring.

Taxi fares in Chicago are already higher than in many other cities, a fact which operates to their advantage and against Chicago's in attracting tourists. Cheap and plentiful taxicab service is a distinct asset to New York and Paris, for example. A measure which would encourage the continuance of the relatively high fares in Chicago might prove a costly mistake.

Editorial of the Day

THE OYSTERS DON'T CARE.

[N. Y. Evening Post.]

A few arguments remain unsettled in respect to boundaries and territorial rights within the United States. One that has occasioned long litigation is the dispute between Delaware and New Jersey whether the boundary between the two states lies in the deep channel of the Delaware or nearer the western shore.

It is an important question for a number of reasons, but particularly because of the rich oyster beds which lie in the lower Delaware waters. Probably the oysters have no opinion on the matter, but because there are taxes and revenues involved the authorities wish to know where their allegiance lies.

The answer depends in part on the interpretation of about seventy-five maps, some of them dating back to 1756. A few among them indicate that the Penn grant extended only to the bank of the Delaware, but none is exact in dividing between New Jersey and Delaware. Map makers of the past considered, no doubt, that a river was boundary enough. New Jersey makes a somewhat similar assumption by claiming that the line should be drawn along the main river channel, while Delaware thinks the bay should be divided equally between the two claimants.

It is a picturesque controversy and the past and the present contribute to the evidence. The Supreme court must finally determine it and thereby decide forever the citizenship of the Delaware oysters.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE ADMINISTRATION CAME OUT yesterday to do something about cutting down the multitude of bureaus in Washington. Anyhow, we wish they would trim some postage stamps or envelopes or a typewriter or something off that bureau that keeps telling us how to take coffee stains off a mauve silk evening dress. We haven't got a mauve silk evening dress, and if we did have one we wouldn't have coffee stains on it. One would never get coffee stains on a silk evening dress unless he gedunked his cheese sandwiches in it, and we never gedunk our cheese sandwiches in our coffee, so all the letters and circulars those helpful souls send us at government expense from down in Washington are just so much good money wasted. And while they are trimming some of the overhead out of the busy bureaus down there they really should do something to the birds that write books and tomes and ruin reams of perfectly good white paper telling mammas all over the country how to make cute little panties for Junior. They send blue prints and full machine shop drawings and specifications and tell the mammas just what material to buy and what thread and how to build the panties scientifically, and when done how to back little Junior into the darned things without using chloroform or clouting him on the bean. As a matter of fact, in these days and times, Junior is in luck when he needs a new pair of panties if his pa happens to have an old pair that's not working. Then ma grabs a pair of scissors or a butcher knife or the ax and whacks off papa's old pants at the knee, takes them in on each side with a safety pin, and throws Junior down and slaps the pants on him before the cunning little brat knows what's happening to him. So what's the use of all that advice from Washington?

THE CROSS

The cross upon my church refulgent stood,
A cross of gold; rich beacon in the light
Of Lent's full moon. I saw a cross of wood
And night, dark night.

The cross upon my church points out the way
To printed prayer, soft pews and white shewbread.
A multitude with meager fare, one day
The Savior fed.

The cross upon my church—by ages told
Significant of sorrows borne. I see
Through suffering's rough hewn weight, its priceless gold, Divinity.

CLEVELAND elects the first Democratic mayor it's had for years and years. Of course, of course! The news from Dublin says counting of the votes in the Irish Free State will not be completed for two or three days, but why wait for that? Betcha a nickel the Democrats won by a rousing majority. It's got to be a habit no matter where the elections are held.

"TOKIO TREATS LIGHTLY Report Washington Sending New Protest."—Headline. Well, after one gets accustomed to receiving Washington protests every day for weeks and weeks, naturally one does get a bit fed up with the thing and is quite likely to treat them lightly or even to yawn when the postman brings them around.

WELL, WELL, and it looked for a while as if the Democrats weren't going to do it, but they did. They tied the cans to lame ducks in congress day before yesterday. And the proposition has been agitated for the last ten or fifteen years, but the Republicans were so tender hearted they just couldn't bear to see the poor lame ducks suffer, so they would never do anything about it. Now a new congressman will take over the job two months after he's been elected instead of sitting around twiddling his thumbs for thirteen months. Of course, two-thirds of the states have got to ratify the change, but, anyhow, we must say of the Democrats in the house of representatives, "They have done what they could."

VALE—COLORADO PETE!

We were answering telephone calls all day yesterday about Colorado Pete, whose sudden death Monday shocked you all as much as it did us. Most of you, of course, knew him only through his beautiful poems in the Line; but to those who knew Arthur Owen Peterson personally, he was, more even than a fine poet, a brave and gallant lad. He spent the eleven or twelve years since the world war in one or another veterans' hospital, suffering what tortures no one ever knew, but never at any time complaining and always sure that he would somehow pull through. Well. That hope that Pete had, that we all tried to have, is gone now; Colorado Pete of the tender verse and high courage is dead; and we have only such fragments as this to remember him by:

The mesa wind blows soft tonight,
The western stars bend low,
Soft-shadowed in the firelight
Old dreams, old visions go.

The mesa wind's a soft caress,
Cool fingers in my hair;
Soft whispers out of loneliness
That breathe a lonely prayer. . . .

O mesa wind go far to her
With kisses carried high,
And tell her mountain grasses stir
And wait her passing by;

Go tell her that the mesa trail
Lies yellow in the sun,
Lost longings, one by one.

MISTER SPEAKER GARNER has been brought forward by his home state of Texas as a candidate for Democratic nomination in June. Mr. Garner himself says nothing, not a word; we doubt if he ever heard of it. Gosh; what little, timid, shrinking violets our great men are when it comes to the question of a nomination. The poor dears, they do not seem to know where Presidents really come from; they think the old stork brings 'em.

DIETS IN TUBERCULOSIS.

TWO diets for people with various forms of tuberculosis are having fairly extensive trials in Germany. Several years ago these dietary methods of treating tuberculosis were reported in this country. They have had a limited tryout for time enough to make possible something of opinion as to whether they have value or not.

So far as main principles are concerned these two diets are the same, though they differ in details. They are rich in fats and proteins, but low in carbohydrates. Since they call for a marked restriction in meats, the usual source of proteins, there must be some increase in milk, milk products, and eggs in order to supply the amount of proteids called for.

The fats given are butter, fat meats, gravies, and oils, including cod liver oil. Breads, cereals, desserts, and sweets are used sparingly. Uncooked vegetables and fruits are allowed in considerable quantities. Cooked vegetables and fruits are permitted, but they are cooked in their own juices in waterless cookers. The amount of water allowed is much below the customary amount, but the deficiency is made up with fruit juices.

An important part of the diets is the low salt content. It is not permissible to season the food with salt. In place of table salt, or sodium chloride, there is an allowance of calcium chloride or calcium lactate; or calcium phosphate may be used.

Partly as drugs and partly as foods, salts of magnesium, strontium, aluminum, and silicon are given. Because our appetites are so trained to foods seasoned with salt these German diets are rather highly seasoned with spices.

Dr. Edgar Mayer, who has seen these diets on trial at Saranac, N. Y., for a considerable time, thinks they are of some value. They seem especially serviceable in the treatment of what is usually called surgical tuberculosis, as distinguished from consumption, or pulmonary tuberculosis. Patients who have complications are apt to do well on them. On the other hand, they have not seemed to offer much in consumption.

All in all, while these diets have a place in the treatment of consumption, it is one of secondary importance.

CRYPTIC TONSILS.

G. A. P. writes: 1. What is meant by a cryptic tonsil or tonsils?

2. Is this condition serious?

3. What would be the outcome of an operation for removing tonsils in a woman of 40?

4. Is pus in the tonsils serious?

REPLY.

1. Tonsils with an irregular surface; ones that have pits.
2. Not necessarily.
3. If the operation is needed the outcome should be good. There need not be especial danger.
4. Sometimes, but usually not.

CHILBLAINS.

E. C. G. writes: Mrs. B. C. P. might get relief from chilblains by using kerosene. I did, at first very brief, but now I have not applied it for several weeks. I used a very, very small amount. I never had chilblains so long as I suffered from cold feet and was much affected by cold weather, especially by sudden drops in temperature, and so long as I could dress rather warmly, with comfort, in summer, and never, never perspired. It was when all the cold weather troubles disappeared and the summer heat made me feel very warm and I perspired easily that I began to have chilblains. The first time was about February, 1931, and again this mild winter.

STREET CAR WINDOWS.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—[Friend of the People.]—The dirt is so thick on the windows of the Lake street surface cars that it is impossible to tell where you are. The conductors never call the street names. If the windows were clean one could see the numbers on the houses. G. H.

This complaint was taken up with the management of the surface lines and the following is quoted from their statement regarding the matter: "Our superintendent of equipment advises that window cleaning is scheduled for twice a week on an average and he has arranged to have the cars of the Lake street line gone over promptly to make certain that the windows are in proper condition. Renewed instructions have been given through the transportation department also for the observance of the company regulation requiring the calling of the streets."

MIGHT BE PERJURY.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—During the world war I served in the Italian army in the first line. After the war was over I was granted a pension from the Italian government for disabilities contracted during my military service. In 1920 I came to America. For the last five years I have been a citizen. The Italian consul wishes me to sign a paper which states I am not an American citizen, if I wish to collect my pension. 1. What is my position with respect to American citizenship if I sign this paper? 2. Is it right to force me in this matter? 3. Is there not some treaty between the United States and Italy in regard to pensions in cases where a change in citizenship is made? D. S.

1. You would remain a citizen, but you might be subject to prosecution for perjury.
2. We see no legal objection to their asking you to sign.
3. The Italian government is free to name any conditions it chooses on such subject matter.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

LONDON, July 30.—The news that the transport Kow Shung, a transport carrying Chinese troops, which was sunk in a battle with the Japanese, was flying the British flag, was received with great satisfaction at the Chinese legation. It was predicted that the sinking of the steamer by a Japanese cruiser would give an entirely different aspect to the Corean affair. It was said that Great Britain and Germany were bound to notice this breach of neutrality. At the Japanese legation the seriousness of the affair was admitted, but the sinking of the Kow Shung was not officially confirmed. A Shanghai dispatch says that before firing upon the Kow Shung the Japanese commander offered to take off the captain and crew of the transport.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—It is the opinion of diplomats here that the Japanese may have made a grave error in sinking the transport Kow Shung and one that is likely to cost them much money in reparation besides the humiliation of an apology. It was under the British flag when it was sunk. Although it carried Chinese troops to Corea, it is said here that it was not, in so doing, violating the laws of neutrality, for there has been no declaration of war or open acknowledgment by either China or Japan that war prevails.

BERLIN, July 30.—China has ordered four torpedo boats of German firms.

LONDON, July 30.—The Chinese legation has received a dispatch from Peking saying there was no provocation whatever for the recent attack on the fleet of Chinese warships by Japan. In spite of the official assertion from Yokohama that the Japanese ships were not injured during the engagement, the Peking dispatch says that the Japanese warships suffered considerably. During the last fortnight London firms have offered China several bargains in torpedo boats and they have also proposed that the Peking government shall purchase a number of fast English steamers which their owners claim can readily be converted into cruisers.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 18, 1904.

SEOUL.—Russian troops have crossed the Yalu river at Wyju. This news indicates that the Russians have taken the aggressive and will go to meet the Japanese advance near Pingyang.

TOKIO.—Two Japanese destroyers attacked the Russian squadron under the guns of Port Arthur on Feb. 13. Two Russian warships were torpedoed. It is believed that the cruiser Bayarin was one of the vessels sunk.

LONDON.—A telegram from Tientsin claims official authority for the statement that a large number of Japanese transports on which 100,000 troops were embarked have left their base for Dalny. A dispatch from Chefoo says that the cable between that city and Port Arthur has been cut. This shuts Port Arthur off from the rest of the world.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — United States marines will be landed at New Chwang to protect the American consulate at the first sign of serious danger. United States Consul Miller has reported that he has been insulted by Cossack soldiers. Rear Admiral Evans reports that he has advices that conditions at New Chwang are menacing and his message gave some concern to the authorities.

BERLIN. — From a trustworthy source here it is learned that Russia has decided to send four army divisions to the far east. However, an aggressive campaign will not begin until the end of March. The concentration of troops is proceeding as rapidly as possible. The admiralty here has received confirmation of reports that Japanese landing operations on a vast scale are taking place on both sides of Corea's northern coast and it is assumed by German authorities that Japan will be ready by early spring for a forward land movement.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Simple but impressive ceremonies were held for Senator Hanna in the senate chamber in the presence of all the official world of Washington. In the evening the casket containing the remains was placed upon a special train for Cleveland, where the funeral will take place.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 18, 1916.

NEW YORK.—While the police of Chicago, Boston, and New York are searching for him, Jean Crones, chef at the University club in Chicago, who attempted wholesale murder at the dinner for Archbishop Mundelein, apparently is finding safe asylum in this city. In a second letter sent to the New York Times Crones flouts the police, incloses his finger prints, and hints at something he will "let go" when the Chicago detectives arrive.

NEW YORK.—Hans Schmidt, former priest, who is to be executed at Sing Sing prison at dawn tomorrow for the murder of Anna Aumueller in September, 1913, issued a statement through his attorney saying he was "fully reconciled to die and willingly accepted death as retribution for his frailties." He asserted, however, he will be executed "for lying and not for murder," because Miss Aumueller's death resulted from an operation, but adds: "I felt morally responsible for the girl's death and could not in honor drag those to ruin who took part in the operation at my solicitation." The girl was a servant in the rectory of St. Boniface's church, 2d avenue and 47th street.

PETROGRAD.—Registration of the Turkish prisoners who fell into the hands of Grand Duke Nicholas with the Russian capture of Erzerum shows the Turkish garrison at the time of the capture at 100,000 and it is officially claimed that most of those were taken prisoners. More than 1,000 guns were captured, with other rich booty.

LONDON.—An Athens dispatch says that private advices from Russian sources say that the Russians have reached Bailburt, seventy-five miles northwest of Erzerum, in the direction of Trebizond. The majority of the forts at Erzerum actually were stormed by the Russians at the point of bayonets, according to Petrograd dispatches to the Times.

PARIS.—An Athens dispatch says the French have occupied all the bridges over the Vardar river and that the Greeks have occupied the river from Topsin down to its mouth. Topsin is fifteen miles northwest of Saloniki.

A REPLY TO PROF. MORRISON.

Forest Park, Ill., Feb. 12.—I was astonished this morning to read on the front page of THE TRIBUNE such reactionary views from a professor at the University of Chicago. How a man who is supposed to be an educator could stand before an audience of intelligent women, many of them mothers, and express such benighted views on the subject of the public schools is beyond my comprehension.

It is very little more than a hundred years since men who were real educators were stoned in the streets of Boston because they were fighting to make it the duty of the government to see that every child had an education. If our present day schools are managing to add "thrills" enough to attract children to them, instead of having them come because it is compulsory, then I say they are succeeding and deserve our highest praise.

The professor says that schools are for the training of citizens. Very well; the man or woman who is most thoroughly trained in the thing he can or likes best to do is our finest and most outstanding citizen, and it is the duty of our schools to do everything in their power to give every boy and girl the necessary training in the line for which he or she is best fitted.

I do not doubt that there is waste in the management of our school systems. Waste seems to be an integral part of American life, but do not seek to correct that by cutting down the educational possibilities of our children. There has never been enough money spent on education.

FLORENCE HIRSCH,
Chairman of Education of the Forest Park Woman's Club.

EVENING UP.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—I understand that to qualify as a good sport one should boost as well as kick. I recently wrote you criticizing your paper's attitude regarding school affairs. Mr. Hewitt's column in today's TRIBUNE gives just the kind of information we have been hoping to see printed in your paper. Let the good work go on!

THOMAS B. STEPHENSON.

QUICK WORK.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—My neighbor last night awakened my family and advised that she had just reported a prowler to the Rogers Park police. Within ten minutes the man was apprehended. The entire matter was executed in a shrewd, clever, quiet manner, and I think this city should be proud of the able citizens in the police department.

WILLARD E. STEVENS.

AT THE DEPOSITORS' EXPENSE.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—When most of the agencies of government and of private business are adopting measures for the reduction of expenditures, bank receivers seem to regard themselves as immune from taking similar action. Aside from the fact that receivers' salaries and attorneys' fees are excessive, clerical forces have not been diminished. I refer particularly to the First Italian State bank of Chicago, which has the same number of employés now as it had when the bank was a going concern. It is reasonable to believe that a major portion of the work preliminary to liquidation, which requires the services of clerks, has long been accomplished. No reason can be seen to justify the retention of so many employés.

OBSERVER.

FOR FEDERAL RELIEF.

Berwyn, Ill., Feb. 15.—Under the headline, "Socialism and Centralization," you state every intelligent citizen is supporting Senator Reed's attack against the federal relief to unemployed. You are fooling yourself if you think so. Relief must come from somewhere, we all agree to that. If it comes from localities, county or state, it must be paid by small home owners. Federal aid comes from the pockets of the rich, best able to pay.

MILWAUKEE'S SALOONS.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—A little time ago I wrote you calling the attention of the wets who are crying for the return of legalized beer, which they contend would be a panacea for about all our financial ills, to the fact that Milwaukee is receiving no beer tax and yet has no public debt to worry it and has in addition four millions of dollars in its city treasury. Now, Mr. John Reid took exception to my article and said in the Voice of the People that Milwaukee has a saloon on almost every prominent corner and is in such fine financial condition because of the beer revenue collected from these many saloons. I immediately wrote the city authorities of Milwaukee and in reply to my letter of inquiry the city controller of Milwaukee makes these interesting statements under date of Feb. 11, 1932:

"In answer to your letter of Feb. 8, will say that Milwaukee has not issued a saloon license since 1920, when the national prohibition law went into effect. The adoption of the prohibition law cost the city of Milwaukee about four hundred thousand dollars in revenue.

"Instead of the corner saloon, almost every prominent corner in our city is graced by a filling station, fruit store, drug store or a church."

I repeat, let the wet cities and states study the financial methods of Milwaukee under prohibition. It is due Mr. Reid to say that he runs true to form. His seeming utter disregard of the facts is in keeping with the average wet propaganda against prohibition.

JOSEPH B. ROGERS.

SANTA CLAUS IN THE SCHOOLS.

Bellwood, Ill., Feb. 15.—In all this controversy over the financial plight of the Chicago schools the thoughts and rights of a considerable body of teachers and the public, inarticulate because the policy of all organizations appears to be in opposition, seems to have been neglected. A questionnaire, which for policy did not require signature, sent to these people would undoubtedly reveal that there are many who would welcome a simplification of the schools in accordance with Prof. Morrison's ideas as to the true function of the schools and a reduction of the burden of the so-called "enriched curriculum" which has been forced upon the teaching profession quite as much as produced by them.

A closer study of such plans for simplification would show that care for the individual differences and provision for the deficient need not be neglected. To some of us the situation demands one of two courses, either to eliminate much of the vocational training, the most expensive item of educational costs, and a great deal more of the "extra curricular activities" which either add to the burden of an otherwise overloaded teacher or shift the load from a teacher so engaged to others and otherwise involving great expenditures as for equipment, etc., or else to once and forever kill the Santa Claus idea of government by imposing a general income tax upon all and make the mass of the people responsible for the support of the schools.

MARGARET E. WHITNEY.

PAINLESS.

Waterloo, Wis., Feb. 15.—In today's TRIBUNE there is a news item headed "Real Painless Dentistry Now Called Possible." We wonder where the "prominent dentist" has been for the last several years. Nerve blocking and infiltration of novocaine for operative work has been in vogue since before I studied dentistry [7½ years ago]. Novocaine was furnished then, as now, in "exact small cartridges, sanitary and safe," and also in various solution strengths to control length of time of anesthesia desired.

I believe some Chicago people have been cheated out of painless dentistry [as much as dentistry can be done without pain] for some time, but I am also sure many Chicago dentists know the technique for the use of and have used novocaine in cartridge form for operative work [drilling] for several years.

Indians' Last Struggle Told by Tribal Chief

Author Gets Story from Medicine Man.

"Black Elk Speaks," as told to John G. Neihardt [Morrow]. Published today.

THE author of "Black Elk Speaks," anxious to understand the narrator of this epic tale, spent a long time in the Indian reservation where Black Elk lives, became his friend and confidant, and learned from him many details of Indian life, of Indian religion and customs. The author says that the Indian has rarely, if ever, told a white man a great deal about a holy vision. Therefore, Black Elk's faithful and elaborate account of his own vision is a contribution to the knowledge of his race.

J. G. NEIHARDT.

Black Elk was born in 1863 and has seen gradual deterioration of his race. At the age of nine he became desperately ill and was spiritually called to the land of his fathers, where he had a clairvoyance of the Six Grandfathers who prophesied the doom of the Indian nation. When Black Elk recovered from his illness he knew that he was the chosen one, the holy man of his tribe, but until he had further signs from the other world he waited to tell his people of his experiences. As he grew older the signs appeared, his supernatural powers were recognized, and he became a medicine man and a prophet to his race. He was unable, however, to prevent the conquest of the Indians by the Wasichus [white men].

"Black Elk Speaks" is historically very interesting. The reader finds in it records of the battles toward the end of the 19th century that ended in the bloody massacre of Wounded Knee creek [1890] and the collapse of the red man's independence. These battles, however, are recorded from the angle of the Indian, fighting desperately and hopelessly for his freedom. Though there are descriptions of unbelievable brutality in both of the warring groups, the reader's sympathy is unswervingly with the pathetic and childlike Indian.

Book Lacks Color and Vivid Imagery.

It is, however, unfortunate that the author or the narrator of this story, with the rich store of knowledge at his command, could not have made this book more interesting as a human literary document. The language is simple and forceful, but it lacks the colorfulness and the vivid imagery as well as the charming and quaint idiom that characterize much of the better done translation of Indian life and lore.

The narrative from time to time becomes exceedingly dull. There are long and uninteresting records of battles and fights that, though valuable historically, are not carefully enough selected and written to hold the reader's attention. The descriptions of the visions that appear recurrently to Black Elk are for the most part fascinating, but even they become monotonous in their similarity and repetition. Black Elk is a brave and noble warrior, but his deeds of bravery and his holy visions, when recorded too accurately and elaborately, only pall on the reader. The illustrations by Standing Bear have the charm, earnestness and power of color and stylized design that characterize most Indian art.

Four New Novels Published Today.

Also published today are these four novels:

"Women Must Love," by Laura Baccante [Vanguard], chronicles the life and experiences of a young woman of twenty-five who discovers that the bonds that tie woman to man and to nature are not always pleasant. The heroine has lived in those short years a somewhat tempestuous life on the stage and with her friends. Modern, yet intensely elemental, she searches eagerly for life, its goodness and badness. Her conclusion about life is that in the end we are doing nothing but fighting ourselves.

"Promise You Won't Marry Me," by Rosita Forbes [Stokes], sets down the lives of four brothers and sisters who attempt to find order out of chaotic modern life. Within this family are conflicting inheritances from a practical mother and an idealistic father. The destiny of each member, with his strange singleness of purpose, forms the subject matter of the novel.

"The Golden Years," by Philip Gibbs [Doubleday Doran], traces the activities of the lovely Lady Isobel Ingleby from the days she danced with Napoleon III., had been favored by Dizzy [Disraeli], and met her lovers clandestinely at Mme. Tussaud's, to her present habits of reading Aldous Huxley, flying to France and saying sharp things about Baldwin. In this book are contrasted the manners, morals, and men of an earlier day with the present through the eyes of a heroine as lively and jolly as you could hope for in any age.

"Women Live Too Long," by Viña Delmar [Harcourt Brace], describes the marriage of Iris and Pat Arden, both of the footlight tradition. They quarrel and love and reach the dangerous edge of professional jealousy. The scenes shift from New York to Hollywood and include a great variety of characters who have experiences that express the bitter and gay, the hard and the sentimental, the sincere and the counterfeit, the fine and the ignoble.

Every Apparel Item Adds to Feeling of Poise

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

They were discussing the thing that most subscribes to a woman's renewed self-confidence! One girl said for her it was a shampoo and a wave. A second said a manicure restored her self-esteem like nothing else. One said a massage at one of those de luxe salons sent her out into the world with head high. And one said a clean pair of gloves.

That started laughter because of the source from which it emanated. The girl, otherwise fairly particular, invariably brandishes a pair of soiled light suedes.

We could go on with other items which, with the soil removed, play no mean part in restoring a nice confidence in self. Take corsets, for one. Since many women prefer to wear foundation garments next to the skin, frequent laundering is more than an esthetic measure. It's not nice to be confronted with a soiled garment, much less to don it under attractive outer things.

Even the boned garments now can be laundered easily with lukewarm suds. There is a perspiration clause in choosing to wear these garments next the skin that must be looked into. It isn't only the surface soil that should disturb. The trick in corset washing is to keep both washing and rinsing waters lukewarm. The elastic stretches with hot water use.

The heavy garments can be treated with a soft bristle brush well lathered with soap. Another trick gathered from a corsettiere is to soak the garment first for a few minutes in cold water.

Those gloves can be washed out after each wearing, if need be, and most of them need be, around these grime laden parts. Here again the trick is lukewarm suds and lukewarm suds again for the rinsing—the soap content in the rinse water being lighter, of course.

Stockings take but a minute to wash out before retiring. Of all things, stockings require this attention after every wearing. Silk underthings are very light duty washing operations. Each of these items contributes its quota to the feeling of confidence spoken of but genuine poise and satisfaction comes only with the complete ensemble of fresh and clean apparel.

Spring Clothes Big Parade of Bright Buttons

Styles Give You Chance to Dress up.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The well dressed woman will button herself up with much military swank, and swagger this spring . . . buttons will go everywhere . . . rows and rows of them, all new, and bright, and shining and being very decorative and at the same time doing guard duty for practical purposes. They will march up and down many of the newest spring frocks in the most approved military manner, to break ranks and deploy in triangular formations across chest or hip.

The theme song for buttoned models this year will be "I love a parade" . . . for we will be very military, with coats with crisply cut collars and wide lapels. Big brass buttons to catch the sun will make us step along and feel as superior as any red coated mounted policeman. Shiny silver buttons on a coat of navy blue will stiffen any wavering morale . . . what fun it is going to be to be in the big parade each day.

Her Dress Fairly Shouts "Reveille."

Another dress that fairly shouts "reveille" is made of heavy black silk crêpe, fitting as tight and as smartly as any dress uniform—it really is a dress-up affair anyway—has brass buttons over one hip. You can wear it with or without a very militaristic cape that fastens also with matching brass buttons. If this costume won't make you enter the ranks of fashionable button users, then you are hopelessly lagging in the rear.

After you have decorated yourself with buttons for the good of the cause, you can turn your undivided attention to a campaign on scarfs . . . they are guaranteed to revive any listlessness, that the buttons couldn't stir. Almost any effect can be achieved with scarfs. The most individual ones are the huge braided ones of many colors that are made with a loop to slip over your head. Be an individualist . . . don't be afraid to mix colors, for it's the unusual and different colors you will think of braiding that will give these scarfs their chic and charm . . . try red and purple with jade green . . . or black and putty color with gold . . . or green and gold with brown. Scarfs will accomplish wonders in brightening up your dark frocks . . . you can use the long ended ones to accent the side closings of your blouses or dresses . . . and even wear them to outline the neckline of your evening gowns.

Bows Will Add to the Smartness.

If buttons and scarfs leave you cold, try bows. Bows of silk, bows of fur, bows of pique, or bows of almost any fabric will tie smartness to any costume. Dark wool dresses are affinities for white silk crêpe or white pique bows as well as white galyak fur bows . . . these can be demurely devastating or big and splashy or amusing as cat's whisker effects tied in white pique directly under the chin. One navy blue wool dress has three twists of white pique on the blouse and two twists on each sleeve . . . making the wearer look as crisp and fresh as white sailed boat on the lake in summertime. Another white trick is to edge the surplice closing of your dark woolen frock with white pique.

Its a lively and preoccupying game this year . . . dressing up your clothes . . . to be smart this season you must not dress at all in the classic way . . . your zest of good amusement will be expressed in your clothes . . . they must be youthful, chic and gay.

Good morning!

Aboard are Chinese of various degrees of caste, English army officers, including a surgeon, Dr. Donald Harvey; a missionary, a fussy old lady with a Pekingese dog, and, among others, a woman who is, apparently, quite well known to most of the men aboard, for they nod, smile, and wink as they speak her name—Shanghai Lily!

Sharing Shanghai Lily's compartment is a Chinese girl, mysterious and aloof.

The train pulls out amid a fascinating pictorial and sound olio of local color. You may never have seen a train leave a Chinese depot, but you're sure that the departure of the "Shanghai Express" is a picture truly drawn.

The plot, which proceeds almost at once to get exceedingly plotty, is concerned with strange, sinister, and unexpected happenings on the trip to Shanghai. These start exploding with the arrest of a Chinaman found carrying certain papers. Without revealing too much of the story, I think I may say that a revolution is on tap in China and that one of the train's passengers—a suave oriental who admits being half American, has much to do with the same.

Marlene Dietrich, who did not acquire the name of Shanghai Lily by loving but one man, gives a brilliant performance and wins much sympathy for the character she portrays. She plays with praiseworthy reticence a rôle that, in less skillful hands, might easily have gone to the ten, twent', thirt' bow wows.

Clive Brook, as the army doctor, wears his uniform with the air of accustomedness. Mr. Brook has an enviable war record. He saw active service with a London machine gun regiment and won the rank of major through gallantry in the front lines. I'm not wild about him as an actor and his accent gives me a pain, but he is quite adroit in his manipulation of the rôle of Capt. Harvey.

Warner (Charlie Chan) Oland is splendid as the "heavy." And Anna May Wong is a knockout as the heroine's enigmatical companion. Louise Closser Hale, impersonating the fusty and belligerent lady-with-a-dog, adds a homely, humorous touch to the fantastic whole, and Lawrence Grant is clever as the Rev. Carmichael, who starts out condemning and ends commending.

Direction, staging, scenery, are all to the good, types have been cunningly chosen, and the film abounds in "atmosphere." Lines are interesting and well spoken for the most part.

"Shanghai Express" is, without doubt, melodrama that will tickle the popular palate.

Student Dance

Six hundred Northwestern university students will dance tomorrow evening at the annual Washington's birthday prom, sponsored by the McKinlock Campus association, at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

John R. Orndorff, chairman of the prom, and Miss Jean Rogers will lead one wing of the grand march and Herbert W. Vetter and Miss Alice Emanuelson the other.

President Walter Dill Scott and Mrs. Scott and Arthur A. Anderson, chairman of the university trustees, and Mrs. Anderson head the list of patrons and patronesses of the affair.

Name Committee to Plan Ways to Beautify Highways

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—A committee of five has been appointed by the Art Extension Committee of Illinois to outline a "fair, adequate, and constructive plan for beautifying the 10,000 miles of highway in Illinois," it was stated today by Dr. R. E. Hieronymus, community adviser at the University of Illinois, and chairman of the midwinter meetings of the organization. Members of the committee are: Mrs. Howard C. Phillips of the Illinois survey committee, chairman; Ralph Abell, Elgin; Henry C. Cowles, University of Chicago; Everett O. Millard, president of the Chicago City club, and J. Roy West, Chicago.

* *

Miss Hayden to Speak.

Miss Audrey Hayden, executive secretary of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, will speak before the South Shore Catholic Women's club this afternoon on the society's work in behalf of saving school children's eyesight. Tomorrow Miss Hayden will address the Forty-seventh Ward branch of the Woman's City club at the Ravenswood Hospital solarium.

Editor Gets a Book Telling What a Chauffeur Thinks

BY JUDITH CASS.

SOME kind person sent us a copy of the Private Chauffeur the other day and I cannot resist the temptation of quoting part of an autobiographical sketch of James Richardson, the vice president of the Chicago Private Chauffeurs' Benevolent association, for it interested and entertained us so much I am sure it will prove equally so to our readers.

Richardson wrote, in part, "It was November, 1910. I was six months in the U. S. A. from the north of England, where I was born. I secured a job as second chauffeur at the home of the late Dr. Isham, 1340 North State street, and, I must admit, at that time I had never been in an automobile. My previous experience up to that time was mostly a wheelbarrow, cows, and farm horses . . . in six weeks' time I was going downtown to the University club to pick up the boss with the Peerless town car. I usually was called about 4 p. m. and would sit out on that front porch affair till about a quarter to seven, then the Dr. would emerge and get home in time for 7 o'clock dinner. Then it was usually opera or otherwise with two cars, and after 11 or 12 o'clock I would have the job of washing up two cars. Anyway, I survived that for 18 months. In May, 1912, I went to Lake Forest to work for Mr. Hugh J. McBirney [now deceased], where I stayed for almost seven years . . .

"On my return to driving I went to Melody farm, Lake Forest, to drive Mrs. J. O. Armour, where I was one year. The next two years for Mr. Ernest Gusham [evidently a misprint, for Ernest R. Graham must be meant], 25 Banks street, which, at that time, was a world record for Mr. Gusham's job for length of service. . . . I was then fortunate to secure a job with Mr. Charles H. Swift on the south side . . . there I stayed 3½ years. About that time I was able to afford a trip to England for myself and family, which will be an everlasting remembrance. . . .

"In 1923 I was employed by Mr. Joseph T. Ryerson, 1406 Astor street, which was an enjoyable position, but on account of my personal interests I was unable to go to California with Mr. Ryerson, so I was out. Followed one year with Mr. G. H. Knutson, 237 Delaware place. The depression let me out there. Since Sept. 1, 1930, my present employer has been Mrs. Elias Mayer of 1540 Lake Shore drive and Deerfield. If my good health and appetite continue, I expect to be a good chauffeur for some time to come."

The magazine is by far the most amusing reading that has come our way in some time, but a few of the items aren't reprintable, for evidently some of the chauffeurs who expressed their views about clubs and employers in print did not dream that anyone outside the association ever would see the magazine, and far be it from me to make trouble for any one! One invitation broadcast through the magazine to the Oak Park Chauffeurs' club was particularly engaging—"Coffee and cake free, and suckers for the babies."

Lecture on Spies Very Interesting.

I'm willing to wager that the fashionable women who crowded into Increase Robinson's little gallery in Diana court yesterday morning derived more genuine enjoyment from Maj. Thomas Coulson's talk about "Spying on Spies" than from most of the polite morning lectures they're accustomed to attending during Lent.

The speaker couldn't have heard the woman near me whisper, "I wish he'd talk about women spies," but nevertheless he was wise enough to dovote most of his lecture to the fantastic doings of the female of the spy species.

"England," he told his audience, "does not like to employ women in its military intelligence service," but he admitted that some of the most daring and important deeds of the world war were performed by feminine spies. All of this, needless to say, was vastly gratifying to his lady listeners. He told of the courage of the two famous French girl spies and talked at some length of the colorful career of Mata Hari, who was not, as Adlai Stevenson pointed out in his introductory talk, "a beautiful Swedish actress."

Mr. Stevenson, an executive member of the Lower North Community council, which sponsored the lecture, could not be heard in the first few moments of his opening speech, but after his wife, Ellen Borden Stevenson, called "Louder! Louder!" from the rear of the gallery, he performed in excellent platform voice and manner.

For those who were unfamiliar with the council, Mr. Stevenson explained that its object is to improve living conditions "in our neighborhood" [the district just back of the Gold Coast, to be more specific], and that its meager resources would be enlarged by the proceeds of Maj. Coulson's lecture.

In the audience I saw Mrs. Arthur Farwell, Mrs. Robert S. Pirie [Betty Borden], Mrs. Conway Olmsted, Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams, Miss Anne Shuttler, Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, Mrs. Wesley Dixon, Mrs. James A. Cathcart, Mrs. Shreve Badger, Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, and Mrs. George Jaeger Jr., chairman of the lecture committee.

The second of two lectures to benefit the Lower North Community council will be given by Mary Hastings Bradley on March 1 in the Robinson gallery. The subject will be "Black Queens."

Anthroposophy to Be Lecture Topic.

"Fundamentals of Anthroposophy" will be discussed by the Baroness von Militz of Germany this afternoon at Mrs. Waller Borden's, 1020 Lake Shore drive. Anthroposophy, knowledge of man's nature, may be said to be a modern religion or philosophy that is interesting a number of well known women in society and no doubt all of them will be at Mrs. Borden's today to hear the erudite baroness speak.

The Cradle at 2039 Ridge avenue, Evanston, has inaugurated a buffet luncheon service for the convenience of the dozens of visitors who go out daily to see the infants who are cared for there until suitable foster parents are found for them. The Maisonette lunch room, which the Evanston Junior league managed after the board of directors of the Cradle gave it up, has been closed, so the new Cradle noontime service is taking its place as a popular lunchroom for members of the Chicago, Evanston, and Winnetka auxiliaries.

Rupert Hughes is to talk on "Sentimental America" this morning at 11 o'clock before the members of the Woman's Athletic club and their guests.

The Highland Park board of the Northwestern University settlement is planning three benefit parties, the first of which will be given Saturday night at the residence of Mrs. Louis Leverone, when dinner and games will be the entertainment offered. Next Wednesday Mrs. Frank Mercer will open her residence for an afternoon bridge party and on Friday, the 26th, Mrs. Walter Rutledge will be hostess at a similar affair. Mrs. Carl Wright is chairman of the Highland Park board.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Kahn have invited about 25 friends to their residence on East Delaware place Saturday night to hear the Gordon String quartet give a program.

Two Items from Santa Barbara

In the Santa Barbara Daily News we saw an item in the society column about Mrs. John L. Fortune and her sister-in-law, Miss Joanna Fortune, and the former's daughters, Mary, Jane and Barbara, being at the Biltmore in Santa Barbara for an extended stay, so we presumed they had given up their trip to Honolulu. A telephone call to the Fortune residence here on Astor street verified our presumption, so instead of basking in the sun on an Hawaiian beach, the attractive Fortune girls and their mother and aunt are enjoying life in beautiful Santa Barbara.

In the same paper we saw that Mrs. Charles Deere Wiman and Miss Patricia Wiman of Moline, who have so many friends here and spend quite a bit of time in Chicago, are occupying their new residence in Montecito a will be joined soon by Mr. Wiman.

Mrs. John L. Cochran, who's been having a gay time in the east visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Murray Brush in Baltimore, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Luce in New York, is expected t return to her State parkway residence on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Belding Jr. of 1574 Stonegate road, Glencoe, are being congratulated on the birth of a son, David Squire, last Friday at the Presbyterian hospital.

Plans for the annual spring fashion show of the Kenwood Social Service club were settled definitely at a business meeting and tea held the other day at the residence of Mrs. Albert S. Cummins, 1220 East 50th street, who is chairman of the tickets for the benefit. The young women are going to try an innovation this year. So many of the husbands have expressed a desire to see their wives model that not only is an afternoon fashion show and bridge party to be put on, but also a fashion show and supper-dance in the evening. Tuesday, April 5, is the date and the benefits are to be held in the Shoreland hotel. Mrs. John A. Logan is chairman of the committee in charge and Mrs. William Sillers Hubbard is co-chairman. Mrs. Harry Jones is arranging for prizes for the bridge. Mrs. Wilson Killough is taking reservations for the bridge and Mrs. Allan T. Lockard is in charge of reservations for the supper-dance. The ten thousand dollars raised by the club from its various activities during the year goes to the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago.

Children Notice Father's Attitude Toward Mother

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Wonder what some of our daddies would think if they saw into the hearts and minds of their children! If they saw themselves measured in the cold-blooded, analytical terms of modern, thinking youth. The following gives an idea of how little of a hero a father can be to his boy:

"The biggest problem," says an 18 year old son, "we young people have is how to keep from being like older people about us."

The boy explains that he is crippled and has a good place on the side lines to view his father's conduct toward his mother.

"I have often looked at my mother's patience and kindness to every one, and I wonder and try to figure out how my otherwise fairly decent dad can be so polite to every other woman and take out his irritability on mother so.

"There are five of us children. My three sisters are marrying as early as they can. They say they will grab the first man who is different from dad. They can't bear the way he bosses and hectors mother.

"And isn't it strange," the boy on the sidelines observes, "that that man thinks he is abused and mistreated because every one likes my mother and shows it? He doesn't suspect how we children feel. I'd probably never have caught on if I were not tied in the way I am as the result of an accident. And I don't eavesdrop, either.

"What I want to know, in case I ever recover enough health and strength to consider marriage is, where can I find a girl as good and understanding as my mother? And is there any way I can keep from being like my dad? He doesn't know he is that way, I'm sure.

"Something has made him want something else beside what he has. But if five decent children aren't enough for a happy marriage, what is? Dad acts, especially before people, as if he had been chained against his will to somebody he couldn't bear. Yet, my uncle tells me that dad was afraid he never would get my mother to say yes. He was so afraid the other man had the inside track."

Appreciation

I want to thank Sinclair Lewis for giving me the greatest story I have ever put upon the screen; I want to thank Chicago for the reception it gave "ARROWSMITH" at the United Artists theater; I want to thank the press of this city for the acclaim with which it has greeted us.

"ARROWSMITH" has been called by those who have seen it the most powerful and appealing film drama ever made; I am grateful if such is the result that has come from the months of preparation; with the inspiration provided by Mr. Lewis' immortal novel, Sidney Howard has fashioned a brilliant adaptation and into its playing Ronald Colman, Helen Hayes and Richard Bennett have put the performances of their careers.

To my production organization in Hollywood I send the message of my gratitude to them and the message that their fine and conscientious work has resulted in everything they have dreamed about and hoped for. I am wiring to them some extracts from our press reviews—and I want you to see them, too.

TRIBUNE — Mae Tinee —

HERALD-EXAMINER — Carol Frink —

DAILY NEWS — Clark Rodenbach —

AMERICAN — Rob Reel —
"It is the answer to scoffers who declare that the screen is incapable of delivering . . . you can say that it is one of the year's finest and one of the best releases so far in sound or silent era and even then you won't be doing justice to it."

TIMES — Doris Arden —

POST — Genevieve Harris —
"'Arrowsmith' is an inspiring and thrilling picture, the sort of production which stands out by reason of its excellence and long remains in the memory of all who see it."

With this unanimous praise from the press, I give "Arrowsmith" to the public as the greatest offering of my career.

Woman's Club Recalls Work of Other Years

Tell Accomplishments at Birthday Party.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

"Humani nihil a me alienum puto," or for those whose Latin is rusty, "Nothing human is foreign to me."

"It always amuses me," smiled Mrs. Harlan Ward Cooley yesterday afternoon at the 56th birthday party of the Chicago Woman's club, "that Terence wrote 'Homo sum' [I am man] before this motto. Little did he think that several hundred women would some day adopt his words as the fittest expression of their very endeavor."

Nor did any other Roman ever vision a woman's club that was to found a protective agency for women and girls, introduce the manual arts in a city's public schools, sponsor a nation wide music organization, and foster countless other projects that, when listed, cover four pages. The 56 candles that decorated the big white birthday cake yesterday signified the years during which the Chicago Woman's club has spent approximately $1,000,000 and many times that amount of effort for the city's good.

Early Members Are Present.

Though more than 50 women, whose membership dates back of 1890, came for luncheon at noon, Mrs. Harvey Fox, the president, reserved cutting the cake for the larger gathering at the tea party late in the afternoon. Seven of the past presidents were there—Mrs. John O'Connor, Mrs. George Bass, Mrs. Edwin T. Johnson, Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, Miss Grace E. Temple, Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton, and Mrs. Cooley. Mrs. Caroline M. Brown, 90 year old founder president of the club, sent birthday greetings from her home in Georgia. Only one other woman who attended the first meeting on Feb. 17, 1876, Mrs. Fanny J. Howe, mother of Mrs. George Packard, is still living.

"It was with all the spirit of 1776 that 21 women had the courage to organize anything so unheard of as a woman's club," Mrs. Brown loves to relate. "Why it was as much of an innovation as it would be for a woman to run for the presidency today. I remember saying to Mrs. Clara P. Bourland, who was visiting me the winter of 1876 that I did wish there was a club of women in Chicago, not so much for mental culture, excellent as that was, but to take up the live issues of the day.

"'Why don't you start such a club,' was Mrs. Bourland's suggestion," Mrs. Brown goes on to tell. "Soon after, thirteen of us met for luncheon, talked over the plan, and agreed to come back Feb. 17, each bringing a congenial soul to whom the scheme had been revealed. Twenty-one came."

Shows Apartment to Get Club Land.

The setting of that first meeting was quite as much an innovation as the idea, for the session was held in Mrs. Brown's apartment at 269 Erie street, the first among "first class apartments in Chicago." The building was planned by a German architect and continued for many years as a curiosity. During the first years of the club Mrs. Brown exhibited it once a week from garret to cellar at ten cents a head to raise money for the organization treasury.

At the second gathering the club elected officers and agreed to have four committees on the home, education, philanthropy, and reform. The founders figured that timid souls "who feared woman might get outside here sphere" would surely not object to serving in the interests of home, that mothers would all take a lively interest in education, that all good church workers might lend a hand to philanthropy, and that the "unterrified" would graviate toward reform. It is interesting to know that the club was the first in its field in Chicago and was antedated as a woman's organization only by the Fortnightly, founded in 1873 for the pursuit of literary interests.

Yesterday Mrs. Winthrop Girling brought to the tea the discolored note that made her mother, Mrs. Salina Peabody, the first elective member of the club. Dated Nov. 13, 1876, it invites Mrs. Peabody to the next meeting "on the 16th inst. at 10 a. m. at 269 Erie street. The ladies hope to have the pleasure of seeing you at that time."

"Book of Donors" Placed on Display.

There was also on display for the birthday party the "Book of the Donors," which tells the story of the building of the handsome clubhouse on 11th street. The cover, decorated with 68 pearls and aquamarines, and the 80 pages hand illuminated and designed by Mrs. S. S. Frackelton, have given reason for the book to be described as "the most beautiful ever made in America." Fifty of the pages record the names of the 1,710 donors of the building, and one page is devoted to each of the 15 special rooms given in honor or memory of some clubmember.

"When Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell and I set out to raise the money for a clubhouse back about 1917, we discovered that the club had already given well over $500,000 to Chicago," Mrs. Cooley told yesterday. "We had done things men had never dreamed about—the plan for the national federation, organization of the School Children's Aid society, Americanization work, and the establishment of the first city employment bureaus—so we decided they might appreciate our work and help us with contributions. I am happy to say they did. Now no record of 56 years is complete without mention of our masculine counterpart."

Janet Gaynor Back from Europe, but Keeps Her Arrival a Secret

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 17. — Janet Gaynor and her husband, Lydell Peck, returned from Europe so quietly last Sunday that nobody, not even those at the Fox studio, knew Janet was here. Her reason: Desire to rest up before resuming movie work, utterly unbothered by friends and professional acquaintances.

It's interesting that the Fox plant has given Janet an agreement that she never will be kept after 5:30 p. m. to do picture work at any time. In return, Janet is the soul of punctuality in showing up when work is called every morning.

Frances Dee, Chicago girl, continues her climb up the film ladder. Paramount has cast her for a principal rôle in "Clara Deane," secondary only to Wynne Gibson in the title part. It's Frances Dee's sixth important screen part since Paramount started her with a bit in "Follow Through," and then used her in "Play Boy of Paris" with Chevalier, "An American Tragedy," and "Rich Man's Folly."

The fact that Greta Garbo was accustomed to ride a certain horse, named Elizabeth, was used as defense in the suit of a society girl, Miss Marion Bryant, against a riding stable. Miss Bryant claimed damages of $18,299, because the horse wasn't gentle enough.

Cross-examination developed that she went riding at the stables as the guest of Arthur Caesar, movie writer and Hollywood wit, on the occasion in June, 1930, when she either fell or was thrown off Elizabeth.

Testimony brought this interesting side light on the recreational life of movie persons:

Lawyer—Well, is Miss Garbo a very good rider or not?

Q.—You mean to say that Mrs. Lubitsch, who has been riding from your stables for years, is not a good rider? A.—To tell the truth, she is a clown on a horse.

Learn of Foster Son Cared For by Mrs. Minnie Fiske

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Ten year old Davey Danville grieved today for Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske. The actress, who died on Monday, had no children of her own and only a few persons knew she was Davey's foster mother. A few months ago she called motherhood "the finest job of all." Nine years ago, when Davey was an orphaned child, she took him under her care and gave him her father's name, "Davey." The boy lives with Mrs. E. Coxe, mother of Mrs. Fiske's secretary, at Hollis, L. I. It was there Mrs. Fiske died.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

Did you ever think of the unfortunate bridge player who sits across from his dummy without an entry? Here indeed is a man entitled to your sympathy. Consider East's position in yesterday's play a problem. This was the hand:

	NORTH.
	♥—Q,J,6,5
	♦—Q,4
	♣—K,Q,J,6,5
WEST.		EAST [dealer].
♠—A,J,2		♠—K,Q,10,9,8
♥—4,3,2		♥—9
♦—J,10,8,7,6,5		♦—K,2
♣—4		♣—A,10,9,8,3
	SOUTH.
	♠—7,6,5
	♥—A,K,10,8,7
	♣—7,2

East opened the bidding with a bid of one club. To my way of thinking he should have bid a spade, but the particular East who played this hand believes in opening a min r rather than a major for no better reason than that the minor is a lower bid and opens the bidding at a l wer point. South, a student of the Official System, made a jump overcall of two hearts. This is an attacking overcall and shows South's real strength. West passed.

North raised his partner to three hearts. If I had been North I should have bid four hearts as I would hope to shut out a possible second suit of East's, and North had certainly plenty of strength for a four heart bid. East now bid three spades, South four hearts, West went to four spades, which closed the bidding. If North had bid the four hearts in place of the three, North and South might easily have been left playing four hearts which they would either make or go down one at the most. As it is, through North's temerity, East is playing the hand at four spades which, as we shall see, he will make.

South opened the ♥ K, dummy played the 2, North the 6, and declarer the 9. South then led the ♥ A, West played the 3, North the 5, and declarer trumped with the ♠ 8. Declarer led back the ♦ K, which South captured with the A, leading back the ♥ 10, which East trumped with the ♠ 9. Next East led the ♦ 2, which North captured with the ♦ Q. North returned the ♣ K, which East took with the A. East now led the ♠ K, and followed with the ♠ Q, and then to the ninth trick led the ♠ 10, which dummy took with the A. This now leaves dummy in the lead with four cards: ♦ J-8-7-6, all of which are good and which dummy now proceeds to lead out for the tenth, eleventh, twelfth, and thirteenth trick. East and West making their four odd and game.

East might bid clubs when he should have bid spades, but he did not carelessly lead out a trump and cut out his only possible entry to his dummy. This entry must be made because East's one chance is to build up dummy's good diamonds. Only second sight on the part of South which would enable him to sense the situation and lead a club at trick four could possibly have stopped the game.

	NORTH [dealer].
	♠—A,K,8,7,4
	♥—Q,J,8,5,3
	♦—7
	♣—J,5
WEST.		EAST.
♠—Q,10		♠—J,9,6,2
♥—K,9		♥—7,2
♦—K,9,6,2		♦—Q,10,4
♣—K,8,4,3,2		♣—A,10,9,6
	SOUTH.
	♥—A,10,6,4
	♦—A,J,8,5,3
	♣—Q,7

Bid and play this hand and then compare the result with that printed tomorrow.

If you like stew clip this recipe for tomorrow evening's dinner. It's simple and savory, and conveniently within your purse. You might even have a few pennies left over in your budget afterwards.

Cape Cod Stew.

Fry three or four slices of salt pork and then take the scraps out of the pan. In the fat put two pounds of beef, mutton, or veal, cut in small pieces, and brown. Cover with boiling water and simmer gently for two hours. Forty minutes before serving add parsnips cut lengthwise, turnips cut in slices, white potatoes and onions. The amount of vegetables will depend on the size of your own family. Twenty minutes later lay dumplings on the top of the stew, not allowing the water to touch them. Cover the whole closely and cook fifteen minutes without uncovering. Serve on a large platter, the meat in the center surrounded by the vegetables and dumplings. Thicken the gravy with flour, and pour over the meat.

Should you prefer your Friday dinner with a fish entrée this halibut creole is good.

Halibut Creole.

½ cup of tomato catsup.
1 teaspoon of onion juice.
2 cups of water.
2 tablespoons of butter.
2 tablespoons of flour.
Salt and pepper.
Parsley.
Sweet dill pickle.

Place the catsup, water, and onion juice in a pan and heat until boiling. Mix the butter and flour together and stir into the sauce. When it boils season with salt and pepper and cook for several minutes. Pour boiling water into a deep pan to the depth of one-half inch. Lay the fish in it for one minute, skin side down. Remove from the water and take off the skin. Place in a well buttered pan, season with salt and pepper. Top with slices of pickle and pour half of the catsup sauce over the fish. Bake thirty to forty-five minutes, basting with the remainder of the sauce. Serve the fish surrounded with the sauce from the pan. Garnish with parsley.

Spanish Cream.

3 eggs.
½ cup of sugar.
½ teaspoon of vanilla.
Macaroons.
Sherry cooking wine.
Salt.

Scald the cream with the gelatine in a double boiler. When the gelatine is dissolved add the sugar. Then pour slowly over the beaten egg yolks, stirring constantly. Return to the double boiler and stir constantly until the mixture has cooked to a slightly thickened consistency. Remove from the fire and add the salt and vanilla. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Soak the macaroons in a little wine and line the bottom of a pudding dish. Pour the mixture over them and place in the icebox until thoroughly chilled.

German Baroness Opens Old Mansion as American School

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEISSEN, Saxony, Feb. 17.—The palatial mansion of Siebeneichen near Meissen, for centuries in the possession of the Barons von Miltitz, will open its gates to American woman students who desire to learn the German language.

The courses will commence in the beginning of March. They are especially intended for girls who have studied at least two years at an American college and wish to perfect their knowledge of the German language. Baroness Monika von Miltitz, the lady of the mansion, is in charge of the college.

Another special opportunity for American students to learn the German language is offered by the university in Hamburg, which announces vacation courses for American students to be held from July 18 to Aug. 26. The courses will comprise an introduction to the German language for beginners and advanced students of 6 weeks' duration; general lectures on German economics and culture, and a course of 4 weeks dealing with jurisprudence and political economy.

All-Illinois Art Exhibit Wins Praise of Critic

New Talent Discovered by Society.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts is opening today on the third floor of the Stevens hotel an exhibition of paintings and sculptures by Illinois artists which is more representative of Chicago painters than is the current Chicago Artists exhibit at the Art Institute. There are names in the All-Illinois show which belong to Chicago's art history. Undoubtedly it is true that this is an uneven show, but at that it is no more so than the one the institute shelters; it is also true that the high spots in this exhibition are very high.

The All-Illinois does not, however, content itself with showing the work of well known painters alone; it discovers new talent. The "find" of today's exhibit is James T. McGrath, a young man who is recently home from five years of study and painting in Germany. His "Self-Portrait" is amusing, forceful and clever. He follows it up with work in water color that is magnificent. If you do not roll the words "well done, well done" under your tongue as you absorb the detail in these two portraits, then somewhere along the road a feeling for fine craftsmanship has forsaken you.

Karl Plath is another painter whose water color work comes as an exquisite surprise. We are familiar with his paintings of birds in oil; in this exhibit he offers a water color painting of two long tailed bluejays sitting on a pine overlooking the water that for sheer delicacy of touch surpasses even the infinite craft of the Japanese artist. Carol Proctor shows an amusing nursery picture of a yellow kitten and a little red cloth dog. She is another of the younger painters who will bear watching.

The oils, however, in this as in most exhibitions, are the meat of the show. Running over names, there are represented Frederic Tellander, Florence White Williams, Pauline Palmer, Adam Emory Albright, Robert Kilbert, John Spelman, Rudolph Ingerle, E. Martin Hennings, Lucie Hartrath, Gerald Frank, Anna Lynch, Frank Peyraud, Anita Willetts Burnham, John Goossens, Ted Vognild [with a superb portrait of a German police dog] and many others familiar to us. The strange names add their glamour, too. The point is that this is an unusually good exhibit.

In the sculpture there is a charming bust portrait of Mrs. Herbert Hoover by Helen Adele Lurch Miller. It was exhibited in the White House and is intended for the Chicago exposition to be shown among the "achievements of the artists of the midwest."

The exhibition will continue through March. Do not miss it.

GRAY HAIRS VANISH

before the magic touch of this new discovery

Simply Brushing Hair Now Ends Gray Hair

Don't let gray hair, or hair streaked with gray, ruin your business or social career because it makes people think you are "too old." You can now end this handicap easily, quickly and inexpensively right at home. And the results will be so perfect that no one will suspect you have done a thing to your hair . . . Just sprinkle a few drops of KOLOR-BAK on your hairbrush for a few mornings, and brush your hair as usual. This wonderful, colorless liquid will cause your gray hairs to disappear like magic. A new youth-like color will be imparted to those ugly gray hairs. And as your hair becomes youth-like in color, you will look years younger, far more attractive . . . Obtain KOLOR-BAK at all drug and department stores, and refuse substitutes offered as "just as good." KOLOR-BAK is the most natural way known to end gray hair. Leaves the hair soft and lustrous.

Fathers Study Problems of Child Training

Inform Themselves on Education.

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

At this rate, we'll be making this Fathers' Week in our column. This is the fourth article, hand running we've had about fathers.

American fathers are not the money grubbing, golf-playing figureheads some foreign visitors to our shores, and even some home-grown critics, would have the world believe.

They are waking up to the importance and the interest, too, of being on this father-job, of being informed on the education and managing of children. You would have thought so if you had been at a big parents' association meeting I attended not long ago.

The fathers were the ones who did all the talking that evening. And weren't they alert! With intense interest, they brought keen minds to bear on an important subject—their children.

But this interest is becoming general.

A recent report says: "Everywhere fathers are asking how to deal with sons and daughters so that when they reach young manhood and womanhood, they may not commit some folly which will undo all that their parents have been building for them through the years.

"In a dizzying whirl of exciting sounds, ideas, and actions youngsters are constantly stimulated to a point of feverish activity, which piles up special difficulties in their path to maturity. How shall a father act and talk, in work and play?"

We have a special reading list along this line.

Events on the Stage

"If Booth Had Missed," the latest play to use Abraham Lincoln as a character, will end its New York engagement next Saturday night and will go on tour, starting in Philadelphia under the auspices of the Professional Players. This suggests that it will come to the Harris theater as an item in the Dramatic league's season, since that organization and the Professional Players are branches of one and the same system of offering drama at subscription rates.

This drama, written by Arthur Goodman, deals with imagined events of the reconstruction period under the beneficent influence of President Lincoln, who had escaped the assassin's bullet. It was described at length by Burns Mantle in last SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE.

Next week there will be two additions to the list of Chicago playbills —and no subtractions. "The Band Wagon," an aristocrat of the Broadway revues, will come to the Illinois theater, now dark, and "Experience Unnecessary" will appear at the Harris, likewise closed for the time being. Both of these premières are fixed for next Monday night.

The week of Feb. 28 will bring Maude Adams and Otis Skinner to the Studebaker in "The Merchant of Venice"; Fred Stone to the Grand Opera house in "Smiling Faces," and Edna Hibbard to the Adelphi in "The Sandy Hooker." The following titles from the current catalogue will then be missing: "Grand Hotel," Yascha Yushny's "Blue Bird"; "Rhapsody in Black," and "As Husbands Go."

The casting of the revival of "The Merchant of Venice," which will bring Maude Adams and Otis Skinner, as Portia and Shylock respectively, to the Studebaker is as follows:

Max Gordon, the impresario who produced "The Band Wagon," will attend the opening performance in Chicago and will then head toward London for the purpose of rounding up his show for next season. This will be "Waltzes in Vienna," an operetta that the Britons call one of the best.

Next Tuesday night's performance of "As Husbands Go" at the Adelphi theater will be a celebration of the comedy's first birthday. The present cast has acted it for a full year, except for a brief summer vacation. Silver cigaret boxes will be given as ladies' souvenirs to mark the milestone.

Desirée Tabor has replaced Janice Joyce, who followed Natalie Hall, in the prima donna's rôle in "Marching By," the operetta which recently registered its 100th performance at the Great Northern. Miss Tabor's experience on the lyric stage has included rôles in "The Circus Princess," "The Red Robe," "Princess Flavia," "Countess Maritza," and "My Maryland."

"The Cricket on the Hearth," from Dickens' story, will be staged at the Goodman theater next Saturday afternoon as the third production in the series of matinée entertainments for children. Oddly enough, this version of Dickens' work comes out of Russia. It has been in use by students of acting at the Moscow Art theater for more than a decade. Maurice Gnesin, director of the Goodman School of Acting, translated it.

Granddaughter of Bryan to Make Debut on Stage

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Whatever silver tongued talents Helen Bryan has inherited from her illustrious grandfather, William Jennings Bryan, are going to find expression on the stage. Nineteen year old Helen will make her Broadway debut Friday in a dramatic school presentation of "Berkeley Square" at the Lyceum theater. She will be graduated this spring, and then she said she would "pound the pavements" with other ambitious neophytes in search of "a real job." Helen is the daughter of William Jennings Bryan Jr., and a resident of Howison, Va.

WHY DOES EVERYBODY RELY ON Listerine WHEN AN EPIDEMIC HITS TOWN?

. . . they know THEY CAN DEPEND ON ITS RESULTS . . .

. . . AND SO DOES THE DOCTOR

It takes a time of real danger to establish the value of a mouthwash, in the eyes of the public.

And surveys show that when a town is hit by an epidemic, whether of cold, sore throat, or influenza, the sales of questionable mouthwashes go down, while those of Listerine go up.

In other words, people lose faith in new, untried mouthwashes when health is involved and real germ-killing action in an antiseptic is vital. They dare not gamble.

Tested by Experts

For your own protection, always use Listerine, the safe antiseptic. Behind it lie fifty years of use in the hands of bacteriologists, nurses, physicians, surgeons, dentists, and the public. Its action is known. Its results can be definitely predicted. There is no uncertainty about either its germicidal power or its safety.

Kills germs in fastest time

Listerine, used full strength, kills germs in the fastest time that can be measured. It reduces bacteria in the mouth 98%. Any claims of faster killing time or greater reduction power are without fact.

Listerine's germicidal action, as well as its safety, is corroborated by The Lancet of London, foremost medical journal of the world. No higher compliment can be paid.

For Colds—certain results

For example: When gargled twice a day, it showed power to reduce the number of colds at least 50%, often 66%.

Safety is most important

Such results are made possible because Listerine is safe in action. That is, it does not injure the tissue while killing germs.

Mouthwashes so harsh they must be diluted before they dare be used, may and often do irritate the tissue. Instead of driving germs out, they help them to gain entrance to the body through the irritation they set up.

Choose mouthwashes carefully
Some watered
Others dangerous

Of 203 mouthwashes submitted to laboratory examination, 94 were non-antiseptic, 107 could not kill germs in three minutes, 143 could not kill in one minute. Others were so harsh they were dangerous to tissue. Dozens had no deodorant effect whatever.

Don't take a chance

For that reason we say to you—choose your mouthwash carefully. Unless you do, you may encourage infection instead of fighting it. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

The Charming Cheat

SYNOPSIS.

Ricardo Dane visits New York in search of his aunt, Miss Filomena Stanley, his mother's half sister. Ricardo's mother had recently died and left him heir to the ranch and mountain land in Romeu valley, California, where he had spent most of his life. He intended to find his sole remaining near relative and bring her back to Romeu valley. He had understood this to be his mother's dying wish. His aunt, an actress, had been out of favor with the family.

Ricardo locates a Filomena Stanley, but instead of an aged aunt he finds a beautiful young aunt. She is living in a Bohemian studio with a Follies girl named Frances. Ricardo readily believes this lovely creature, who acknowledges the relationship. His arrival was fortunate for Filomena, who had been out of work for weeks and was in a sad state financially. Ricardo showers her with gifts and moves her into a better apartment. He moves into the same building on another floor. Webster Sutton, a college friend of Ricardo's, visits New York. He and Eunice Greenway, a girl from home, who is studying in New York, are entertained by Ricardo and his aunt. Eunice is a friend of Ricardo's fiancée, Rachel Beatty. She heartily disapproves of Filomena. Web believes his friend is being trimmed, and before he leaves tells him so. Ricardo learns that Web was right when Filomena is called home due to the illness of her father. After another search Ricardo finds his real aunt. She is acting in a Broadway play. Ricardo takes Filomena to the city hall, where they obtain a marriage license. His plan is to have her prepare for the wedding and leave her waiting at the church, but before he can carry it out Rachel arrives in New York with her father, who has been called there on business. Ricardo takes Rachel to call on his real aunt. She doesn't fit in with the stories Rachel has heard. That evening Ricardo leaves Rachel and her father at the theater and calls on his aunt to tell her of his difficulties.

INSTALLMENT XXII.

HIS AUNT'S SECRET PLEA.

"You wait six minutes," Aunt Filomena called over her shoulder, "there's something I've got to ask you."

Ricardo waited impatiently in the hot little room for five minutes and three-quarters. It was an interminable time. Finally he lit a cigaret, but he had had only two good puffs at it when his aunt entered.

"Put that out," she commanded, "you're not allowed to smoke in here. Sit still, can't you? You're as nervous as an eel."

"So would you be if you were I," he said, gloomily. "They'll be sending out a search warrant for me over at the Follies."

"More likely they haven't missed you at all," returned Aunt Filomena. "Stanleys have got to stick together, haven't we? Which probably is what you were thinking when you picked up this hot baby. All very well, of course, if you hadn't got tattled on. Now you are really expecting to marry this girl Rachel, I suppose?"

"You were a long time," observed Rachel.

"You've got this all wrong, Aunt Fil," he cried. "You see, you don't understand. Filomena isn't the kind—there's never been anything between us that—I mean, nobody would ever understand how it was that I bought her that piano——"

"O, you bought her a piano?"

"You see, she's a fool about music. She's taking lessons. She—O, if you knew her, you'd understand how it is. But nobody thinks it can be all right. She—why, she wouldn't do anything that—she's the most——"

"O, yes, yes, yes. She's a wronged angel, I have no doubt. But let's just stick to plain facts. You bought her a piano. And then somebody—this loyal pal of yours for choice—told Rachel. Is that the amount of it?"

"Yes," he agreed, "that's why she was asking you about your piano."

"One thing to do with that kind of woman," said Aunt Filomena, "is to give her a slap on the jaw and tell her to mind her own business."

He looked horrified. "Do you mean——"

"I mean Rachel," she affirmed sharply, "what right has she to come prying into your affairs? Is she married to you?"

"No, but——"

"Then why do you stand for it?"

He was bewildered. "Well, you can see how she thinks it is. And naturally, well, we're engaged, you know. And you see she thinks that I—she thinks that Filomena—she hasn't seen her, of course. It would be all up if she had," he added gloomily, "if she once saw her that would blow it wide open. You see, Fil—she just looks sort of like something that comes in a candy box. She's got shiny sort of hair and she's little and—and—she doesn't seem to be useful at all, if you see what I mean. You sort of feel you've got to do everything for her. The only thing she looks to be much good for is kissing."

"She's good at that, is she?"

He glanced at her suspiciously. "She's good for a lot you mightn't guess. I meant that she doesn't look like the kind of girl who's good for anything else. She's clever, as a matter of fact. You ought to hear her play the piano. And she can cook, too. She makes waffles."

"Makes waffles, does she? Well, can't Rachel cook?"

"O, Rachel. She can do everything, I guess. Now Fil, she's an awful fool on a horse; she's been having some lessons, but she doesn't get very far with it. But she tries. You'll have to hand it to her. She's game to stick to it till she learns, just because I wanted her to."

"Does Rachel know that, too?"

"I don't know what Rachel knows. She hasn't told me anything about what she knows. You heard what she was saying about the piano."

"I'm inclined to think my first advice was pretty good. Tell her where to get off. She's not your guardian."

"Well, naturally, she thinks, since we're engaged——"

"How long have you been engaged?"

"More than a year."

"Your mother liked Rachel, didn't she?"

"Yes. She's known her a long time. We've always known each other. Mother—O, mother was strong for Rachel."

"I see," said his aunt, thoughtfully.

"I begin to see," she said again, after a moment. "Would your mother have liked Filomena?"

He hesitated. "Well, mother would hardly—I mean, mother might very likely have thought, just the way Rachel does, that——"

"Your mother," said Aunt Filomena, "thought that because she didn't approve of the stage I should give it up. Well, I didn't."

"I've got to go back," he rose, fidgety again.

"Are you willing to take my advice?" asked his aunt.

He grinned down at her. "I don't think I'll give Ray a slap on the jaw, if that's what you mean. But I'm willing to listen to reason."

"I wouldn't do her any harm," said Aunt Filomena, grinning back at him in a comprehending way. "Suppose I set my own master mind to it?"

"If you only could," he said feelingly, "I ought to tell you a whole lot more about it all—I will when there's time. I'd like to tell you about Fil. You'd laugh if you knew—it isn't only that she's just about the prettiest——"

"Yes, they always are. But you go on back to your theater. Marrying Rachel, by the way, is sort of carrying out another of your mother's wishes, isn't it, Dick?"

He stared. "Well, yes. Yes, I suppose it is. In a way."

"You did think a lot of your mother, Dick, didn't you?"

"Yes, of course." He had been afraid for just a moment that she was going to criticize his mother. And if she had done that he would have walked away from her and never come back.

"Run along, Dick," she said, "you have kept them a long time."

After he had gone she sat thoughtfully where he had left her. "That girl," she said presently, "Rafaella picked her, of course. She's—why, she's like Rafaella. I knew there was something. Of course he can't marry her. He's been under that thumb too long. I wonder——"

Ricardo, again a little breathless, slid into his waiting seat at the Follies.

"You were a long time," observed Rachel.

He apologized in a breathless whisper, explaining that he had kept getting the wrong number.

Later, crowded into a booth in America's most famous delicatessen, over the three story sandwiches Ricardo had suggested, Mr. Beatty gave utterance to the thought that had been simmering in his mind most of the day.

"I got the best idea for you two," he said, "why shouldn't you be married right here in New York, right now?"

Rachel flushed becomingly and kept her eyes on her plate. Ricardo opened his mouth and no words came. He hastily inserted into it a quantity of rye bread and swiss cheese and sliced ham, effectively barring speech.

Mr. Beatty beamed at them.

Rachel murmured something about Helen Nickerson.

"Yes, I know. But it looks like the chance of a lifetime, honey. Chance to have a honeymoon trip to Bermuda or Havana or some place like that, instead of Honolulu. Or even Europe."

Rachel's eyes brightened. Then they returned to contemplation of the really appalling amount of sandwich upon her plate.

Ricardo leaned forward and touched her hand gently. "What do you say, Ray?" he asked.

"O, I don't know," she avoided his eyes, glancing across the room. "I can't decide anything like this so—suddenly, can I?"

Her father laughed heartily. "It's not very sudden, is it? You and Dick—you've had it on your mind for quite a while. I should think you could make over a plan or two, when you have the chance to take one of these swell cruises."

Ice Blue Satins Shown in Paris for Winter Bride

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The fashionable bride of this winter in Paris goes up the bridal path looking very cool in ice blue. It's the smart color for the snowbound season. Everything in harmony with nature, and the parallel completed by frosty silver embroidery.

Ice blue, as the name explains, is the faintest and coldest color imaginable. It's beautiful in satin and gives to the bride a remote and virginal appearance which in these days of sophistication is a treat to the eyes.

The wedding dress of ice blue satin with a train that is yards and yards long and cut with a fanlike spread is a creation of Callot Soeurs. This frock, which they made for Mlle. Mai LeManach, who recently married M. Gaston Lhermitte, is illustrated in the accompanying sketch. It has the maidenly simplicity traditional in a bridal dress, with a plain blouse and long fitted sleeves, and with a skirt that reaches to the floor and is of medieval simplicity.

A gorgeous sash of tulle embroidered all over with silver sprays is tied around the waist of this wedding dress with a bow at the center front and full length spreading ends. This is the only trimming, and quite sufficient to give an effect of elegance.

The bride's veil is of tulle and trails the full length of the dress skirt. It is held by a garland of orange blossoms placed around the head.

Reports Many Meat Cuts Sell at 10 Cents a Pound

Many appetizing cuts of meat may be purchased for 10 cents a pound or less at present, Charles W. Kaiser, secretary of the central branch of the Retail Meat Dealers' association of Chicago, said yesterday. In this class he listed the fresh and smoked picnics, fresh pork shoulders, spareribs, Boston style butts, ham shanks, salt pork, breast of veal, and breast and shank of lamb.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover had guests dining with them this evening. In the early afternoon Mrs. Hoover received the new Bolivian minister and Señora de Abelli in the Red parlor and afterward went to the recital of Rosa Ponselle given in Constitution hall. Mrs. Hoover was accompanied to the concert by Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, Mrs. Bertrand H. Snell, wife of the new minority leader in the house, Mrs. Stark McMullin, and Miss Mildred Goss, secretary to Mrs. Hoover.

The secretary of state and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson were entertained at dinner tonight by the Netherlands minister and Mme. Van Royen.

Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the secretary of the interior, entertained at luncheon today in her apartment at the Mayflower in complement to Mrs. Robert J. Burdette of Pasadena. Among the other guests were Mrs. Hurley, wife of the secretary of war, and Mrs. Brown, wife of the postmaster general.

Mrs. Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, was the guest for whom Mrs. George T. Marye, wife of the former American ambassador to Russia, entertained at luncheon today in her home on N street.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Being the mother of four small children, the oldest about five, I often find myself at the end of the day tired to the point of exhaustion. One day in particular, each one of the children seemed to have gotten into a little more mischief than usual. As a result, I was unusually cross and unreasonable with them. My little son watched for a while, and then said, "Mother if you don't like us, why don't you give us away?" R. S.

When 3½ year old Richard woke up one morning I noticed that his voice was hoarse. With a frown on his face, he said: "Mother, my voice sounds so funny. I think it's disconnected." G. B.

Mild Weather Good Time to Trim Shrubbery

BY PAUL POTTER.

The present mild weather offers an excellent opportunity for the pruning of trees and shrubbery. During their dormant season it is particularly easy to detect the mature and dying shrub branches and remove them with a sharp knife or pruning shears.

During the pruning operations it is expected that the gardener or home owner will keep a lookout for diseased or scaly areas. These are especially to be seen on such smooth barked varieties as the red and yellow stemmed dogwoods and lilac bushes. If the scale is widespread, a miscible oil spray of 8 per cent oil strength is effective when applied with the temperature above forty degrees.

Another spray of white oil or nicotine and soap is applied to scaly bushes in early June, if the scale has not been checked by the present treatment. Several good oil sprays may be obtained from the drug store or seed dealer for this purpose.

So long as the frost remains light or entirely out of the ground, the evergreens or other shrubs may be transplanted to more desirable positions in the landscaping plan. Care must be used to keep earth about the roots and not to pull the plants loose.

Shrubbery beds may also be prepared in this mild season [should it continue] for proposed spring plantings. The spots where new shrubs or hedges are to be set in should be spaded deeply and well rotted manure mixed thoroughly into the soil at the rate of a bushel basket full to each square yard of dirt. In mellow soil rich in humus this is not necessary, however.

Another possible outdoor chore in such seasons is the preparing of a corner of the garden or back yard where young shrubs or trees may be planted with the view of growing them for later use somewhere on the grounds. This practice permits cultivation of the growing seedlings and avoids the "cluttered" appearance which sometimes results in developing the permanent landscape plan.

Hageman Scores Great Success with Opera Composition

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FREIBURG, Feb. 17. — Richard Hageman, formerly of the Chicago Civic opera and the New York Metropolitan opera, has scored a great success with the general rehearsal of his opera "Capon Sacchi," which will be given a world premier at Freiburg, Germany, tomorrow. A group of German critics were present at the rehearsal and praised Hageman's opera as "sincere and honest music." The first act will be broadcast by 78 American radio stations Thursday night. The opera is based on Robert Browning's "The Ring and the Book." After today's success Muenster Madgeburg and other German towns with opera houses announce that they will also produce the American composer's opera.

French War Veterans Hold Dinner for Consul General

A welcome was extended to the new French consul general of Chicago, J. J. R. Weiller, at a dinner given last night in the Hotel Pearson by Les Camarades de Combat, the French war veterans of Chicago. A reception followed the dinner, at which Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth corps area, made the welcoming address in French. Among those attending were Henri Boujearel, French vice consul; Alfred Soriano, president, and Robert Coubé, past president, of the French War Veterans of Chicago; Prof. Joseph S. Galland, head of the romance language department, Northwestern university, and Prof. Roger Cros of the university.

"DIRTY FACE" Kills Romance

Only one face in a hundred stays young. Of the rest, "Dirty Face" takes its toll. The blush of romance cannot linger long on a skin that's dark and muddy.

Restore life to your tissues. Get below the surface and cleanse each tiny pore. Rid it of its accumulated dirt. Only a special, balanced cream like Daggett & Ramsdell's can do this. Only Daggett & Ramsdell's Perfect Cold Cream can give the skin the three essentials it must have—lubrication, moisture, protection—and give them all at once, in one cream, in one application. Three groups of special ingredients, all properly balanced, supply them.

Do try it, won't you? There is nothing else quite like Daggett & Ramsdell's. A week's trial will convince you of the wonders it can work for you. And it costs just a few cents to make your skin look and feel like new. Get it for today.

EDGAR SPEYER, ONCE "WITHOUT A COUNTRY," DIES

Stripped of Citizenship by Britain.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Sir Edgar Speyer, once known as the modern "man without a country," died in a clinic here last night, in his 70th year.

He arrived in Berlin only a few weeks ago for a nasal operation, and appeared fit, but grew worse and died of hemorrhage. Mrs. Speyer is expected shortly from New York, Sir Edgar's home since 1922.

Soon after the opening of the world war, when Sir Edgar was a member of the British privy council and the man who ran London's subways, there arose a clamor over his patriotism. Newspapers said he was pro-German.

Resigned from Council.

In the midst of the hubbub Sir Edgar resigned from the privy council and asked that his baronetcy be revoked. He said he felt honor bound to do so.

The baronet came to the United States, but soon was called upon to defend his membership in the privy council. It was decided that he was entitled to his seat.

The next year a statutory committee took up the question of his citizenship again and at the end of its inquiry it was announced his British naturalization had been revoked and he had been removed from the privy council.

The reasons given for the revocation were that he had traded with the enemy during the war and had shown disloyalty to the king. Strangely enough he retained his British title. When he offered to give it up in 1914 the king had notified him that he was "not prepared to take action."

Shortly after the outbreak of the world war Sir Edgar withdrew from Speyer & Co. in New York and in 1922, when the London firm of Speyer brothers was dissolved, he retired from business, came to New York, and became an American citizen, renouncing his British titles.

Controversy on Birth.

Records here show that Sir Edgar Speyer was born on Sept. 7, 1862, at Frankfurt-on-Main, Germany, the son of Gustave Speyer, head of the prominent banking house, Lazard, Speyer-Ellison.

[A controversy arose over Sir Edgar's birthplace when he was deprived of his naturalization in London. He came to the United States in 1922 and friends said he was a native of New York. Speyer & Co. issued a statement in New York yesterday giving biographical data intended to show Sir Edgar was born in New York City, a brother of James Speyer of the New York banking firm.]

HUNT CHAUNCEY M'CORMICK WIRE SWINDLING GANG

Lieut. John McGinnis, head of the confidence game squad of the detective bureau, was on the trail yesterday of swindlers who obtained $5,925 from the secretary of Chauncey McCormick through fake telegrams telling her to pay for fifteen tapestries which were found to be small rugs worth $3 apiece.

Mr. McCormick is in Miami. On Feb. 1, Miss Mary Northwood, his secretary in the offices of the Miami corporation, 410 North Michigan boulevard, received a telegram, supposedly from Mr. McCormick, telling her a man named Ward would bring some tapestries to her for which she was to pay $95 each.

A package was delivered by an elderly man. She paid him $1,975 in cash. The next day another telegram signed with McCormick's name told her that if Ward called again to ask him if he could spare some more tapestries at the same price. She did, and the next time she paid $3,950 for ten "tapestries."

The deception was discovered through communication with Mr. McCormick. H. B. Erminger Jr., president of the company and a trustee of the Deering estate, was advised by Mr. McCormick to lay a trap for the swindlers if they called again, but the trap was not successful.

Lieut. McGinnis said the swindlers were undoubtedly the same men who tried their racket unsuccessfully at the office of Charles H. Scholle, furniture dealer at 128 South Wabash avenue.

Funeral for Miss Conway, School Principal, Today

Funeral services for Miss Frances B. Conway, principal of the J. A. Sexton elementary school for the last three years and one of the youngest school executives in the city, will be held at 9:30 o'clock this morning at St. Ignatius' church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery. Miss Conway died on Tuesday at the Lakeview hospital, after a month's illness. Born in Chicago, she was graduate at Loyola university and taught at the Nobel and Stewart elementary schools before her appointment as principal. She lived at 6425 Magnolia avenue. Miss Conway is survived by two brothers and two sisters.

CHARLES A. TIMLIN, 71 years old, a deputy sheriff for twenty years, will be buried tomorrow. The funeral will be held at 10:30 a. m. from a chapel at 3500 West Harrison street to Our Lady of Sorrows church, where a requiem mass will be chanted at 11 a. m. Mr. Timlin died on Tuesday in his home at 501 South Central Park avenue.

Robbers Torture Victim with Fire; Steal Safe

Anton Landis, 35 years old, a section hand for the Pennsylvania railroad, was tortured and robbed of a small safe, which contained $110, sixty shares of Pennsylvania railroad stock valued at $320 and a $50 Liberty bond, by five bandits who invaded his home at 4611 South Wells street yesterday. Landis persisted that he could not remember the combination although the men applied matches to his feet, and they finally carried the safe away.

STRUCK BY AUTO, ROLLED BENEATH TRUCK; KILLED

Motor Toll in County Reaches 150.

James Lynch, 46 years old, 8534 Dante avenue, a furniture mover, was fatally injured yesterday when he was knocked from his feet at 67th street and Woodlawn avenue by an automobile and rolled beneath the wheels of a trailer towed by a passing truck. He died an hour later at the Woodlawn hospital.

The driver of the automobile did not stop. Witnesses pursued him and at 71st street and Cottage Grove avenue they halted Warren Howes, 1726 East 83d place, a plumber. Howes denied that his automobile struck Lynch, but he was held by Woodlawn police. Clyde Price, Pontiac, Mich., driver of the truck, also was held.

Newsboy Killed in Loop.

Meyer Beyer, 1146 South Albany avenue, a 17 year old newsboy, was killed when he was run down at Dearborn and Randolph streets. Witnesses said he was dodging through the traffic when he was struck. The driver, Theodore L. Bernardchuk, 1100 Roscoe street, was held. The youth remained unidentified for several hours until members of the family were summoned by the central police.

Three other fatalities during the day increased the death toll for Cook county since Jan. 1 to 150. The other victims:

Mrs. Sophia Anderson, 56 years old, 5201 South Wells street. Died at St. Bernard's hospital from hurts sustained several days ago when she was run down at 53d street and Wentworth avenue. The driver was Henry A. Paradise, 765 Oakwood boulevard.

Tony Zielinski, 60 years old, 849 North May street. Died at the county hospital from injuries received Tuesday when he was run down at Washington boulevard and Des Plaines street. Miss Mae Baxter, 3343 Warren boulevard, was the driver.

STOMACH PAIN ALL GONE NOW!

"Was in a terrible state for years with acid indigestion," writes Mrs. Nellie Crouse of Kansas City, Mo. "After eating had such terrible pains in my stomach I thought I'd die. Nothing helped until I tried ACIDINE. Now I can eat, sleep, enjoy life again."

"I suffered for 4 years. Everything I tried failed to do me any good. Then I heard about ACIDINE and tried it," says W. E. Slaughter of Samson, Ala. "After I took a few doses I felt better. I have been using ACIDINE regularly and feel like a new person now."

End gas, sourness, heartburn, dizziness, sleeplessness, headache resulting from acidity. Maker guarantees ACIDINE ends your stomach trouble or money back. All druggists have ACIDINE.

Child Labor Foe Dies

[Copyright: Bachrach Photo.]

MRS. FLORENCE KELLEY.

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Florence Kelley, 73, associate of Jane Addams in Chicago's Hull house for eight years and crusader against child labor for more than half a century, died today at her home in Germantown, Pa. Mrs. Kelley had been ill for several months and her death was not unexpected by her associates in the Henry street settlement here, where she had lived for 30 years.

The aged welfare worker left behind her a lifetime of service in behalf of better working conditions for women in industry and for the cause of equal suffrage.

"I was born into a world of reform," said Mrs. Kelley when she was given an anniversary dinner and a $15,000 cake by 700 of her associates in welfare work. "When I was seven years old my education of reform began."

Mrs. Kelley was born in Philadelphia, graduated from Cornell in 1882 and after studying law four years in Zurich, Switzerland, began her welfare work in Chicago. First she practiced law in Chicago with her social service work as a side job.

She made her home in Hull House with Jane Addams and soon became an agent for the United States department of labor, investigating the slums of great cities, and in 1893 became the first women chief inspector of factories for Illinois.

HEIRESS ,WON BY POLICE RESCUER, LEAVES MILLIONS

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The will of Giulia P. Morosini, daughter of Giovanni P. Morosini [a partner of the late Jay Gould] and once the bride of a New York City policeman, was filed today, disposing of an estate which has been estimated at from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000.

The bulk of her wealth she left in trust to relatives, but to various charities she bequeathed nearly $100,000 and to the Metropolitan Museum of Art she willed a collection of curios, paintings, and antiques, among which the gem studded arms and armor alone have been valued at $1,000,000.

She met Werner when he rescued her from a runaway riding horse in Central park. The subsequent romance, elopement, and divorce made both nationally known.

SEIZE ESCAPED PRISONER NEAR DEATH FROM SHOT

Walter Bukent, 19 years old, sought since Dec. 2 when he escaped from police at the door of the county jail after having been held to the grand jury in bonds of $90,000 for robbery and burglary, was arrested last night in the German Deaconess hospital. He was unconscious, suffering from a bullet wound and injuries received in a motor crash. He may die.

The youth was shot early Tuesday morning by William Snow, Pinkerton agent guarding the home of William Bliss, at 72d and Ada streets, an air company official. In the exchange of shots Bukent's car crashed, but he managed to escape on foot.

GOOD NEWS FOR THOSE WHO LIKE COFFEE

"I like a good cup of coffee with every meal but I used to suffer when I drank it," says Edward J. Owens, well-known salesman of 86 Falmouth Street, Boston, Mass.

"I would have sick headaches: would belch, leaving a sour taste in my mouth, gas on my stomach, and terrible indigestion.

"I tried many things before my druggist persuaded me to take some Pape's Diapepsin.

"I have a better appetite. Now, I can drink coffee even late at night, eat lobsters, pork or anything I want and sleep like a baby."

Get a package of these candy-like tablets from your druggist. They stop heartburn, gas on stomach, belching, nausea, headaches or any other symptom of indigestion soon as the trouble starts

17 ON MAROONED SHIP FIGHT GALE; 60° BELOW ZERO

Skipper Tells Adventures on Arctic Ice.

[The first story of the harrowing experiences of the crew of the Hudson's Bay company trading ship Baychimo, marooned all winter on the Alaskan arctic coast, and of their vain attempts to save their ship in the grinding ice pack, has been written by Capt. Sydney A. Cornwall, master of the ill fated vessel.]

BY CAPT. SYDNEY A. CORNWALL.
[Master of the Fur Trading Ship Baychimo.]

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Feb. 17.—(AP)—When the passengers and others from the ship left on the last plane last fall for Nome, we became resigned to our fate and decided we had a long winter before us on the barren ice clogged arctic coast. We were too late to get the Baychimo out of the ice fields and some of us had to stay to guard it.

We didn't know then of the terrific gales that were to wreck the ship and were confident we would save her. We didn't know all the experiences we were going to have, either, and were certainly ready to leave the country when the first planes arrived at Sea Horse island [near Wainwright] a few days ago. It required several trips for the two planes, carrying three of us at a time, to bring all 17 of the crew out to Kotzebue.

60 Degrees Below Zero.

Three of us were flown here yesterday from Kotzebue. The other 14 hope to arrive on time to board next Monday's southbound train.

We were well supplied with clothing and provisions when we settled down on the coast last fall. We built a house from material taken from the ship and each of us had a job, such as banking the house with snow to keep in the warmth, making sleds and hauling ice three miles for drinking water.

The Baychimo was locked in the ice a quarter of a mile from our house. Daily trips were made to her to keep her propeller free of ice. During those first few weeks the temperature dropped as low as 60 below and usually was 10 to 20 degrees below.

Gale Starts on Christmas.

It was difficult to find driftwood along the coast. We had plenty of coal but wished to save it, believing it would be needed in the spring to steam up the Baychimo's boilers and get us to the next point where coal was available.

Our engineers made some fine stoves out of oil drums. The Eskimos kept us well supplied with reindeer meat and we had preserved potatoes and other food.

On Dec. 24, Christmas day, the temperature rose from 60 below to 10 above in a single night. The wind started blowing from the southwest so you couldn't see your hand in front of your face. I had gone to Wainwright on ship's business but I was told later our house vibrated constantly and it was feared it would collapse in the terrific gale.

Ship Vanishes Under Ice.

The water rose to a height of 6 or 7 feet and ice was crushed in towards shore, piling up ridges 50 to 70 feet high. At noon, Dec. 27, the gale abated somewhat. The men looked out from their shack but could only see a mountainous ridge where the Baychimo had been. By 3 p. m. it was possible for them to go out. The ship had vanished.

The engineer, Murchie, started mushing to Wainwright to notify me. It took him one and a half days to made the twenty-two mile trip. He was caught in a gale the first night and built an igloo to protect himself, but the intensity of the gale drove him out. He started mushing again to keep from freezing to death.

When he arrived at Wainwright I at once ordered my dog team and went at full speed to the camp, where we might get in communiation with the outside world with our radio.

Furs Are Salvaged.

Then J. Sommers, chief officer, and A. V. Kively, second officer, conducted a search over the rough, treacherous ice off shore for a distance of three miles to the first open water. Along there for fifteen miles in each direction they searched without success for the ship.

I traveled to Point Barrow, searching the shore line, but with no better luck. Later, while at Barrow, I learned the ship had finally been located and the furs salvaged by C. D. Morris with the assistance of natives. I started for camp but was driven back to Barrow by a gale and had to wait three days.

When I arrived our ship had disappeared for the second time. Those who saw her said she was twisted like putty and had a long gap in the side, which meant she would sink immediately in open water. Storms since then have certainly carried her into some open lead and sunk her.

Those aviators flying north to search for the Baychimo are going to be disappointed. Even if she were found, there is nothing aboard her now worth salvaging.

WOMAN TO HUNT SHIP.

William Graham, Alaskan aviator, and Mrs. Edna Christofferson, Portland, Ore., sportswoman, left Yakima, Wash., several days ago by plane for Point Barrow, where they said they would conduct a search for the Baychimo and attempt to salvage any cargo aboard.

They left Hazleton, B. C., on Monday bound for Atlin, B. C., about 300 miles. They were last sighted about 100 miles south of Atlin and it was believed they may have landed safely at some other inland British Columbia point.

SHERIFF CONFESSES AIDING BANK BANDITS AFTER ESCAPE FAILS

Portland, Ind., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Ira Barton, former sheriff of Blackford county, on trial for conspiracy in connection with the holdup of the First State bank in Dunkirk, today confessed complicity in the robbery. Barton corroborated testimony of Lorenz Cappelli, one of three bandits now serving sentences for the robbery, that Barton had helped plan the Dunkirk robbery and had promised immunity to the bandits.

SHERIFF IRA BARTON. [Acme Photo.]

Barton also confessed he was involved in robberies of the Citizens State bank of Hartford City and the First National bank of Montpelier.

Later his trial was halted and he pleaded guilty to a charge of accessory to bank robbery. Sentence was deferred.

Barton's confession followed an attempt to escape from a deputy sheriff as he was being taken from his attorney's office to the jail. Barton drew a blackjack and slugged the deputy and ran down an alley. Ed Storms, state policeman, answering the deputy's calls, fired two shots at Barton without hitting him, and recaptured him a block away without a struggle.

MOSLEM REBELS ATTACK BRITISH TROOPS; 24 DEAD

Kashmir Revolt Enters a New Phase.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MIRPUR, Kashmir, India, Feb. 17.—The Mohammedan rebellion in Kashmir province blazed up anew today in the Kumba region, fifteen miles east of Mirpur. Armed rebels attacked British infantry and in a pitched battle ten rebels were killed and many wounded.

SIR HARI SINGH.

The rebellion is regarded as having entered a new phase with the attack on troops, who, heretofore, have not met resistance. Nine rebels were killed in the Naoshera region when armed troops who were escorting refugees to Dharmsi village. Moslems attacked Five soldiers were killed, bringing the official death total to twenty-four in the last two days.

Another new angle to the situation is a movement of Sikhs in the Gujrat region near the Kashmir border. They are invading Kashmir in retaliation for persecution of their fellow tribesmen, the Kashmir Sikhs, who are always classed with Hindus by Moslems whenever the latter start a holy war.

Eight Hindu Sikhs, who are members of the assembly at Delhi, in appealing to Viceroy Lord Willingdon, accused the British government not only of failing to act promptly and vigorously enough to put down the rebellion but also of obstructing the maharajah, Sir Hari Singh, by preventing him from using Kashmir state troops. There is widespread feeling among Indian natives that the British plan to use the situation to increase their influence in Kashmir and eventually make of it an entirely British frontier state by deposing the maharajah, who was the famous "Mr. A." of a spectacular blackmail case in London some years ago.

BUILDING PERMITS LEAP UPWARD AFTER UNIONS CUT WAGES

An upward trend both in number and value of building permits has followed the 20 per cent wage reduction accepted by the Building Trades council, John E. Ericsson, building commissioner, announced yesterday. During the first two days of the week six permits, with a valuation of $288,700, were issued. During the first two weeks of the month prior to the wage pact, forty permits with a valuation of $74,400 were issued, he said.

STATE ASKS BIDS ON $3,000,000 IN HIGHWAY WORK

$369,300 of Projects in Cook County.

BY HAL FOUST.

The state highway department yesterday advertised for bids to be opened on March 9 on $3,000,000 worth of road and bridge work. The cost of the projects in the Chicago area, which pays well over half the state's total road bill, is estimated at $369,300.

Two highway grade separations are included in the letting. They are not at congested intersections. One is at 96th avenue and route 52, a new east and west road to be built just south of the Calumet sag channel. The other is in Ogden avenue near Hinsdale at the intersection with route 54, a new north and south road.

Route 60—From route 61 to Fox Lake, six miles.

Route 71—Paving gaps east and west of Hinckley.

Route 173—Paving gaps east and west of Harvard and paving two-thirds of a mile at Zion City.

Route 7—Bridge extension and paved approaches in La Salle county.

Attorney General Carlstrom ruled yesterday that parking must be prohibited on portions of city streets taken over by the state highway department for maintenance and possible reconstruction by authority of an act of the 1931 legislature.

The main significance of this opinion is that, generally speaking, a four lane rural highway upon entering a municipality must have four lanes free for moving traffic even at the expense of prohibiting parking. This was the common understanding of the law at the time the general assembly passed the bills authorizing the state to extend the bond issue roads into and through cities.

COLORADO SEEKS CUSTODY OF DRY AS MURDERER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Attorney General Ireland of Colorado today asked the Supreme court for permission to file proceedings to require the federal District court for Colorado to return Henry Dierks to the state court in Arapahoe county for trial on the charge of slaying Melford Smith on Nov. 7, 1931, near Denver.

Dierks, a former prohibition agent, when brought to trial in the state court had the case removed to the federal court, contending he was discharging his duties as a prohibition agent at the time of the killing. He claimed he struck Smith on the head with his "gun" to protect his own life.

Chief Justice Hughes granted permission to file the petition. The court will announce later what further action it will take.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Jack Dempsey comes back to Chicago in ring togs tonight for the first time since he lost to Gene Tunney in the fight of the famous "fourteen count" at Soldiers' field in September of 1927.

On that cool, clear Indian summer evening nearly five years ago a crowd of 147,000 looked on as Dempsey failed to come back. It was a two and a half million dollar gate, the greatest of all time. The 147,000 spectators came from here, there, and everywhere.

There'll Be 20,000 There.

The 147,000 spectators who watched Dempsey in 1927 and who suffered all sorts of emotions before the bell finally tapped out the end of the tenth round, haven't forgotten Dempsey.

For 20,000 will be at the ringside when the old mauler squares away against the Kingfish with 10 ounce gloves in a boxing affair that was originally billed as an exhibition, but which to hear Chicagoans tell about it has developed into a knockdown and dragout encounter.

Maybe it will be.

The folks who are paying $5.99 for the ringside seats hope so. They will begin wending their way toward the big red and white arena, where the next President of the United States is to be nominated in June, thinking only of the Dempsey of old. They will assemble at the Stadium to cheer Dempsey and to feel sorry for Levinsky.

Both Expect Knockout.

Dempsey, a picture of a man in perfect condition, lunched yesterday with Mayor Cermak, with Judge Henry Horner, who aspires to be the the governor of Illinois, with Gen. John V. Clinnin, head of the Illinois boxing commission and with some 50 others who couldn't help but be his admirers.

Dempsey made a speech in which the keynote was: "I hope to knock out Levinsky with one punch."

Dempsey is in Chicago after barnstorming in many parts of the country, where he has been whipping one after another, the heavyweights game enough to face him.

They were setups. Neither Dempsey nor his energetic manager, Leonard Sacks, will deny that. But Dempsey whipped them so easily, bounced them around the ring with his terrific punches just as he did back when he was in his prime, that he is convinced he is riding along to a successful comeback.

Jack Should Win.

Dempsey should whip our Kingfish from Maxwell street tonight. If he is the Dempsey who will shock boxing followers throughout the world by regaining the heavyweight championship he should clout Levinsky all about the spacious premises at the Stadium.

Fighters of the Levinsky type wouldn't have been good sparring partners for the Dempsey of five years ago. But what has been the toll of the last five years?

There Are Other Bouts, But—

There are other bouts on tonight's program. Billy Jones and George Nichols meet in a semifinal bout leading up to the world's light-heavyweight championship. The complete card follows:

Jack Dempsey vs. King Levinsky, 4 rounds.
Billy Jones vs. George Nichols, 10 rounds.
Barney Ross vs. Billy Gladstone, 6 rounds.
Frankie Nekolny vs. Millie Millitti, 8 rounds.
Frank Battaglia vs. Jack Moran, 8 rounds.
Charley Young vs. Marian Matusek, 4 rounds.

But the 20,000 spectators in the Stadium tonight will be there to see Dempsey; to see how the old champion behaves against a younger fellow just stepping out into the limelight.

Hyde Park Wins Two Track Meets from Fenger

Hyde Park High school's junior and senior track teams defeated Fenger yesterday in a dual meet at Hyde Park's gymnasium. The seniors triumphed, 52 to 25, and the juniors, 47 to 7.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

You can get what you want on tonight's boxing calendar—amateurs or professionals, big fellows or little fellows, men going back and men coming up. The amateurs hold forth at Loyola gymnasium, where the opening of the north side Golden Glove trials are scheduled. The professionals entertain at Chicago Stadium with Jack Dempsey in the leading rôle.

KING LEVINSKY.

It is possible but hardly probable that new attendance records will be established. Loyola gymnasium provides the largest seating capacity of any Golden Glove preliminary center. Chicago Stadium never has drawn a capacity crowd for a professional boxing show, although Golden Gloves bouts three times have attracted overflow gatherings. They will have to stand 2,100 to tie the Golden Gloves mark.

Dempsey's return to Chicago in fighting togs after an absence of four and a half years has been received with mingled emotions ranging from seething anger to tumultuous welcome. While I do not believe that Dempsey is going to fight Schmeling or anybody else for the heavyweight championship, I find myself unable to feel outraged because he is touring the country picking up easy money.

When Dempsey was at his peak he gave the customers plenty to yip yip about. He left behind a record of conscientious effort and thrilling accomplishment. I think he has a legitimate right to come back and cash in on this reputation. It isn't as if he hadn't once been a somebody.

Dempsey undeniably is the biggest figure boxing has developed. People block traffic on the street just to get a glimpse of him. The services of two men are required to answer his telephone calls. He gets more than 200 letters a day in his fan mail. He is deluged with requests for his autograph. There probably is no man in sport life so close to the public.

It may be a sad commentary on the intelligence of the American public that a man whose main assets are iron fists should be elevated to such a position of esteem, but the philosophers and sociologists can handle that angle. There probably are a lot of philosophers who wish they could pack their bag, tour the country for a few months and come home richer by nearly $300,000.

The reason I don't think Dempsey is going to fight for the championship is not altogether because he doesn't belong in the same ring with Schmeling. There is the financial arrangement to be considered. Dempsey is a bigger box office attraction than Schmeling, champion or no champion. Der Maxie naturally would insist on the champion's end of the purse. Dempsey would demand the same, if he is as smart a business man as he used to be.

Then, too, it is possible that King Levinsky will silence all talk about Dempsey's chance of regaining his crown. Dempsey isn't particularly hard to hit. K. O. Christner shook him up two or three times in the first and second rounds of their recent bout in Cleveland. Levinsky hits harder than Christner.

However, this is all aside from what we started to say. Dempsey in his years as heavyweight champion built up a rugged background. If he wants to capitalize on this background now in a moment perhaps of financial stringency and the risk of losing caste as an historic figure, why not?

Whose nose is it, any way?

WORLD OUTDOOR TRACK RECORDS BEATEN INDOORS

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—World indoor track records in the shot put and mile run were broken at the New York Athletic club games tonight before a crowd of 10,000.

Another great performance, although not in record time, was turned in by Dale Letts, former University of Chicago athlete, representing the Illinois Athletic club of Chicago, who won the half mile in 1:54 4-5.

Sexton, Venzke Break Records.

The shot put record was first to fall. Leo Sexton, former Georgetown university student, threw the 16 pound ball 52 feet 8⅜ inches, breaking his own mark of 51 feet 11⅛ inches. Sexton's effort eclipses the world outdoor record, which is 52 feet 7½ inches.

Gene Venzke, New York schoolboy, shattered the world mile mark for the second time in ten days when he finished strongly to whip Leo Lermond in 4:10. His time was 1 1-5 seconds better than the record he set at the Millrose A. C. games Feb. 6 and is the second fastest mile in athletic history.

Better Than Nurmi.

He bettered the official outdoor record of 4:10 2-5, held by Paavo Nurmi, but was short of the mark of 4:09 1-5 set last summer by the Frenchman, Jules LaDougmegue.

Venzke was content to trail Frank Crowley and Lermond for six laps, but on the seventh he took the lead and easily distanced pursuers. Lermond, finished second, 40 yards behind, and Crowley, who set the early pace, dropped back to last place.

JAFFEE OUT OF WORLD TITLE SKATING MEET

Early Lead Keeps Chicago in Check.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Flying Frenchmen of Montreal, sometimes called the Canadiens, who have been conducting a nonstop flight through the National Hockey league these last few weeks, paused at the Stadium last night long enough to refuel with a 3 to 1 victory over the Blackhawks, consummating the chore in the presence of 11,000 customers.

Before the evening was over, it was fairly well established that at least 10,998 of these were pro-Blackhawks, since nothing but groans attended the Canadiens' deft scoring of the three goals.

There was at least one satisfactory note during the performance last evening, and that was the submission of the expensive and talented Howie Morenz, who despite much daring skating, failed to score. It took young Wildore La Rochelle to make two of the Frenchmen's goals and old Battleship Leduc to make the third.

Hawks Trail Early.

Both teams seemed to agree that their joint reputation as the speediest combinations in the league must be sustained, and for the first ten minutes the puck commuted from goal to goal on an express schedule, with only an occasional flag stop at the blue lines.

After Monsieur Morenz' trousers had been thoroughly iced no less than three times by the mischievous young Hawks, much to the delight of the customers under the roof, the Canadiens sent forth their second line of Larochelle, Lepine and Mondou. Larochelle promptly whisked one in on a double assist from Lepine and Mondou. Gardiner, at the moment, appeared to be giving a slow motion demonstration of goal keeping, and the puck entered the cage with room to spare in 7:26.

There's a Lull in Play.

Larochelle apparently wasn't satisfied with one score, for he came back with another in 15:25. After taking the puck from Lepine, he dipped it into the cage with a neatness which seemed to amaze himself as well as Gardiner.

The boys did not operate briskly during the first few minutes of the second period, but this proved to be only a recess.

Morenz gave several solo demonstrations, but couldn't connect, and once he was thrown for a loss of about ten yards after trying to break through Wentworth and Abel.

Battleship Sinks One.

The Canadiens apparently were out to humiliate the Hawks, for they scored early in the third period and to make it more ignominious, called upon none other than Battleship Leduc, a defense man, to do same. Goals to Battleship are like base hits to Guy Bush, and he was duly grateful to Gagnon, who had given him the assist and the chance to boost the puck into the cage.

This was too much for the Hawks and after Gottselig had seemingly scored for the Chicagoans, only to have Referee Hewitson rule it null and void, they bounced right back and made the score 3 to 1. It was Gottselig, taking a pass from Abel, who battled his way up to the mouth of the Montreal cage and connected in 5:20.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

DEMPSEY AND LEVINSKY.

JACK DEMPSEY, erstwhile champion will meet King Levinsky, of the west side fishmongering Levinskys, at the Stadium tonight before a capacity, or near capacity, house. Their swatfest of four rounds will be with heavier gloves than are permitted at regulation bouts.

MAX SCHMELING.

That so many persons wish to attend is a marked tribute to the never waning popularity of the one time Manassa Mauler, a regard which apparently does not subside, even with the knowledge that Dempsey is no longer the Dempsey who took a title from the bovine Jess Willard on a hot July afternoon at Toledo in 1919.

One frequently sees criticism of this tour, which has taken shekels from the hinterland, where one supposed shekels did not exist, and which now is moving with equal success upon the big cities. The Wake has no part in that criticism. If the people wish to see Dempsey—and we are among those who do—that's their business.

There is no deception about these appearances. Compare them rather, if you wish, to the former "farewell" appearances of Adelina Patti, to hear whom in decadence we once paid $6 per seat. The only ballyhoo has been heralding these appearances as the first stages of a possible "comeback" campaign. Whether or not Dempsey intends another major fight, this is mild ballyhoo to what most pugilistic contests inflict upon us.

Whether we believe Dempsey would have a so-called Chinaman's chance against Max Schmeling—and most of us do not—we wish to see the old gladiator again in ring togs. Dempsey is capitalizing that without perpetrating a fraud. What's wrong with that? There is no compulsion of attendance for those of skeptical mind.

As to this contest, it may be good or it may be bad, but Dempsey will be there. It is just important enough, from the viewpoint of future appearances, so neither Jack nor the King will wish to make a poor showing. Both are easy to hit. Jack still has a good poke in both right and left, even if not so speedy afoot. The King is called a clumsy boxer who sometimes lands. In his prime Dempsey was reached by as wild a swinger as Firpo in the most sensational bout of his career. We anticipate nothing like that tonight, with the "pillows," but still we wish to see again in action the most popular ex-champion of the last two decades.

Tunney Nearly Sees Himself as Others Saw Him: Ring's 'I' Man

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Gene Tunney's autobiography, the story of a superman, was a long time in the writing and now that it is here it is less interesting as a history, because so little of the history is news any more, than as an expression of the author's character. It vindicates, by its egoism, the estimate of the author which was arrived at when he was current in the prize fight industry by all the professional writers who had to do with him, except that small minority who may always be depended upon to become infatuated with and attach themselves to a champion.

It is thus a pleasant, though I am sure an unintentional, tribute to the wisdom of the sport writers who studied him under intimate conditions in his training camps and elsewhere and found him hypersensitive. For one of his disposition he had chosen the worst possible business because, being a champion prize fighter, he was public property and the public wished to know all about this property. That necessitated candid descriptions and interpretations which a Dempsey or a politician could have ignored or laughed off, but which a touchy man could not endure.

Decides to Pass Up Yale.

Tunney had a great reverence for formal education. Thirteen years ago Eddie Egan, the Olympic bobber, who was then an amateur boxer bound for Yale, suggested that Gene go with him. But Tunney had decided, as he says, to be heavyweight champion of the world and to pick up his education along the way.

He became champion, which is still a great satisfaction to him for all his honest loathing for the prize fighting trade, but his intellectual diet consisted of miscellaneous tid-bits. So there was a time during his championship when he was walking compendium of one thousand and one odd and unimportant facts. He was so entranced by each new knowing that he would lose no time in strutting his information, and the boys covering his camps in their card games at night used to speculate as to whether Gene was reading volume Aalan to Oyama of the encyclopædia tonight or volume Paci to Zuyd.

There can be no question that he had a good mind for education. He was inquisitive and extremely ambitious to be learned, and he had in his character a capacity for diligence and concentration which would have made him an extraordinary student and possibly a scholar. He might even have gone to Yale with his friend Eagan and still have won the heavyweight championship of the world, but he thought he had to make a choice and either choice was bound to offend one of his two great ambitions in life.

Eagan not only went to Yale but went to Harvard and thence to Oxford and came out wearing his learning with the slovenly grace of an Englishman wearing a dinner jacket, whereas Gene wore his with the uneasy effort of a Tammany leader marching to a funeral under a plug hat.

Tis Said He Dictates It.

Naturally there has been great curiosity among the newspaper writers who dealt with Gene when he was champion regarding a story written by his own hand, although I understand that he dictated the piece to a stenographer, which is a hard way to write well. Dictated matter usually has the sound of a radio address, and it Tunney did his story that way the excellence of the workmanship is the more to be wondered at.

His first installment was his best to date, but there were so many paragraphs in that one of the kind known to the magazine trade as teasers, intended to lure the reader over into subsequent installments for the benefit of the circulation department, that one suspects the cooperation of a professional spook, probably Bill Davenport, who swung a literary towel for Gene in his story of his trip to Russia.

The other installments have been less artistic and therefore, I take it, more original, but the author is unfolding a tale and revealing himself

40 BOUTS OPEN NORTH SECTION FIGHT TOURNEY

Loyola Gym Scene of Battles.

Facts for Fans

Place—Loyola university gymnasium, Loyola and Sheridan road.

Boxers—All contestants report this afternoon between 4 and 6 p. m. at Loyola university for physical examinations and to be weighed.

Number of bouts—At least 40.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[ENTRIES ON PAGE 21.]

The Golden Gloves army assembles tonight on the north side of Chicago. Tonight and tomorrow, 236 boys will battle at Loyola university gymnasium for the 16 qualifying positions in the Tournament of Champions which opens at the Chicago Stadium the last of this month.

All contestants must report this afternoon between 4 and 6 o'clock at the gymnasium for physical examinations and to be weighed in. Failure to report means disqualification. Immediately afterward pairings in all divisions will be made by lot.

At least 40 bouts will be held tonight. The admission for the north section's greatest amateur show is 75 cents. No seats are reserved. The tickets will go on sale at 6 o'clock and one hour later the first pair of hopeful boxers will climb into the ring.

The north sectional tournament is held at Loyola university this year for the first time. Officials believe that the location is the best available. The elevated lines run within a hundred feet of the gymnasium doors and surface car and bus service is equally as good.

There will be free parking space for 1,000 automobiles on the Loyola grounds. The entrances for motor traffic are on the north side of Sheridan road just west of Mundelein college and on Loyola avenue, north of the gymnasium.

All that has been said of Golden Gloves bouts on the west side may be repeated for the north section trials. Sixteen qualifying positions, two in each of the eight weights, are the immediate objects of these amateurs. This assures furious fights, for a defeat means elimination.

The desire of all, of course, is the championship which carries with it the right to wear a diamond studded Golden Glove. These eight champions, which will be crowned on March 9, the eight runnersup, and eight alternates will make the trip to New York where they will fight in Madison Square Garden on March 28.

Old and New Stars Meet.

The caliber of the contestants will equal that of the boys who fought in the west side trials. Here and there in the scores of entries are names of lads who competed in other Golden Gloves tournaments and whose records mark them as favorites on the north side.

Johnny Phagan, who reached the semi-finals of the Tournament of Champions last yer and who, as a member of the intercity squad, defeated his New York opponent, is entered in the welterweight division. The colored boxer, better than ever, so his supporters say, will compete for the Johnny Coulon club.

The C. Y. O. will have a splendid team of boxers competing at Loyola, veterans of the tournament which was held in December and which selected a team that defeated a California squad at Los Angeles.

RIBAS WINS 3D BLOCK; DEFEATS PETERSON, 116-126

Isidro Ribas of Spain last night ended the second match of the five match series for the world's fancy shot billiard championship with a lead of five points over Charles C. Peterson, St. Louis, defending titleholder. Ribas defeated Peterson, 116 to 126, in the third block at Mussey's Wabash amphitheater and leads, 729 to 734. Low scores will decide the winner.

Ribas trailed Peterson, 364 to 377, at the end of the first match in St. Louis and gained 18 points during the test here. They will open the third match in Washington tomorrow night, the fourth in New York Monday night and the fifth and final in Havana Feb. 28.

CAPT. WILKINSON OPPOSES LORBER IN POLO TRIALS

With Capt. C. A. Wilkinson and Herbert Lorber playing on opposing teams in the third round of the Metropolitan Indoor Polo league's matches in the 124th Field Artillery armory Saturday, a great outdoor player will pit his skill against one of the most adept indoor stars in the country.

Capt. Wilkinson, who represents the 6th corps area squad, the outdoor star, played on the United States army team. Lorber is a member of the North Shore Polo and Hunt club team.

Two games will be played Saturday, the first between the Ohio State Alumni and the 122d Field Artillery squads.

CARL REYNOLDS SIGNS CONTRACT WITH SENATORS

Biloxi, Miss., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—President Clark Griffith of the Washington Senators today announced that Carl Reynolds, who was acquired from the Chicago White Sox, has returned a signed contract. President Griffith said ten other members of the club have yet to sign.

Among those who have not returned their 1932 contracts are Pitchers Marberry, Burke and Friederichs; Heinie Manush and Sam West, outfielders, and Infielders Judge, Cronin and Myer.

TUNNEY ALMOST SEES HIMSELF AS OTHERS SAW HIM

and doing an understandable job in good language. In fact, in revealing himself, he is doing a better job than any other biographer ever did on him, even with unfriendly intent.

Whom Is He Insulting?

He is plainly, though not frankly, vindicative in spots, as where he remarked that it was terribly amusing to hear sport writers, barbers, policemen, waiters and others express their expertness on matters of pugilism. But there he obscures his point in his anger because, reading that, who can tell just which of these professions he means to insult? The waiters are a sensitive class and the man who lumps them together with sport writers may find many a thumb in his soup ere they are done with him. And his own brother is a policeman.

I might, if I were so disposed, remark that sport writers are always much amused to hear prizefighters, gangsters, and divekeepers express their expertness on matters of literature, but that would be bad form. No gangster or divekeeper has ever done anything to me.

Rosenbloom and Godwin Fight Ten Round Draw

ALBIE BOOTH BACK AT YALE AFTER ILLNESS

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Albie Booth, one of Yale's greatest athletes, who was confined to a Wallingford hospital several months ago because of a lung ailment which ended his football career, today returned here and was reported as greatly improved.

According to physicians, Booth will attend classes, but will not engage in any athletic activity. However, it is hoped that Booth will be able to go to the west coast next August with a team of eastern football players.

Knock That Cold In A Jiffy

Relief Now Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink a lot of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system and you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now for a few cents.

Just Follow These Rules

1. Each day for 36 consecutive days (except Sundays) the Chicago Daily Tribune will print a Washington Bi-Centennial Crossword Puzzle. In each puzzle an historic event in Washington's life will be named. You are invited to solve the puzzle and name the event.

2. The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000.00 in Cash Prizes to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved complete sets of puzzles in accordance with these rules. Note: This means that you do not necessarily have to solve each of the 36 puzzles correctly to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest.

3. This offer is open to everyone—men, women, boys, and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

4. Puzzles are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do NOT send in each puzzle separately. Hold all puzzles until you have the complete set of 36. Then send them to "Crosswords," Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Puzzle No. 36 has been printed.

5. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Postoffice Department. Make your entry simple and neat. Neatness will count.

6. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

7. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

EVEN CATALINA'S RAIN FAILS TO HALT CUBS' DRILL

So Hornsby Squad Starts on Schedule.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Catalina Island, Feb. 17.—It wasn't much of an event, but the Cubs at least started their spring training as scheduled today and that was enough to keep their ten year record intact. There was some doubt as to the benefits derived from the drill, but the natives insist that the sun is bound to make a definite appearance any time within the next few weeks, so there is no reason to become discouraged.

When Manager Hornsby arose this morning he needed only one look out of the window to convince himself that there still was something wrong about the widely advertised southern California weather. More rain was pouring down on the top of the rain that has been accumulating for the last month. But the boys made hasty purchases of gym shoes, thus lightening the local depression, and repaired to the Avalon A. A. pavilion, where they labored in a limited fashion until a sudden, temporary breaking through of the sun set them scurrying to the ball park.

Show Skill at Fielding.

The indoor work was a matter of simple throwing and then some batting games in which the boys, despite their winter of inactivity, seemed able to pluck the balls on the first bounce off the hardwood floor. At the park the squad ran out its string even to the extent of batting practice, the water on the field notwithstanding. For a time the men with bats stood on high spots in the outfield and hit squashy grounders to those standing almost ankle deep in the well watered grass.

All in all, you might say that the only results of the drill was an all round epidemic of wet feet, but when the climate deserts you it becomes a matter of doing the best possible. Throughout the drill Zack Taylor, the veteran catcher, was voicing the virtues of his native state of Florida as a training camp.

If the sentiments of the photographers, who were all over the premises, are a true guide, Stanley Hack is going to be quite an individual in the impending National league race. They all wanted to get various poses of the young man whom the Cubs thought such a sure bet as a regular third baseman that they gave $50,000 to the Sacramento Coast league club for his services.

Tinning Good Prospect.

Another in whom there is interest, particularly on the part of Hornsby, is Lyle Tinning, the lad who had a record of 24 wins and only 2 defeats last season at Des Moines. After the youth, who in build is a sort of Charley Root with a few extra pounds, had done a bit of tossing this noon, Hornsby declared him a likely prospect.

2 NOTRE DAME RUNNERS ENTER NEW YORK MEET

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Notre Dame will be represented by two men in the National A. A. U. championships at Madison Square Garden, New York, next Monday, it was announced today by Coach John Nicholson.

Alex Wilson, winner of the Millrose 600 yard run for the last two years, will be entered in this event against such eastern stars as Bullwinkle, Barsi, Roll, McCafferty and Sandler.

Capt. Bill McCormick, who twice has tied for the world's record of 206.2 in the 60 yard dash, will run in this event. The Notre Dame basketball team will play Butler at Indianapolis Friday night.

LOUIS B. DAILEY, FORMER TENNIS PRESIDENT, DIES

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Louis B. Dailey, 57, president of the New York real estate board, and former president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, died in Orange, N. J., early today. Death was due to pneumonia.

One of the most outspoken opponents of professionalism in tennis in this country, Mr. Dailey was frequently a storm center. Named the head of the U. S. L. T. A. in January, 1930, Mr. Dailey at once promulgated a series of policies that he wished to put into effect, thereby arousing the antagonism of numerous tennis committee men throughout the country.

Cardinals Drop Scottdale Team from List of Farms

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Officials of the St. Louis Cardinals today announced they will not operate their farm at Scottdale, Pa., in the Middle Atlantic league, and have dropped the team from the league. Players of the club will go to the Springfield club of the Western Association.

Loyola Swimmers Beat Northwestern Squad, 40-38

Loyola university's swimming team defeated Northwestern, 40 to 38, in a dual meet in the Loyola pool yesterday. Loyola won five of eight events. Eddie Eitz led the victors, winning the 100 yard free style, the 220 yard free style, and swimming on the winning relay team.

Mrs. Rockne Ready to Leave Hospital at Rochester

Rochester, Minn., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Knute Rockne today was reported as sufficiently recovered to leave the hospital. She will be removed to a local hotel, where she plans to stay for a week before leaving for her home in South Bend, Ind.

North Central Basket, Track Teams in Action Tomorrow

The North Central college basketball team will play Lake Forest college at Naperville and the N. C. C. indoor track squad will compete against Morton college in a regular indor track meet tomorrow.

MOON MULLINS—OUT OF THE AMATEUR CLASS

MOON TRIED HIS HAND AT IT THIS MORNING.
NO THANK YOU, MR. MOOTS, I THINK I'M A BIT TOO OLD TO PLAY GOLF.
WHOA! WHERE IS THE FIRE, ANYWAY?
THERE AIN'T — BUT THAT DAME OUT THERE WITH THE PROFESSIONAL LOOKS A LOT LIKE A BLOND, I'VE BEEN WANTIN' TO MEET ME, FROM THE REAR.
IF YOU WANT TO TAKE A LESSON, I CAN GIVE YOU ONE IN ABOUT AN HOUR, MR. MULLINS.
ME?—NAW, I LEARNT HOW THIS MORNIN', ANDY—BUT MAYBE MY FRIEND HERE'D LIKE TO.

pion in the 118 pound class, will compete in the north side. Haberski is seeking the Golden Gloves featherweight title. He will represent Holy Rosary. Harold and Jimmy Dunnington, colored lads, also are prominent featherweight competitors.

The west section team of 16 lads now qualified for the Tournament of Champions has four boys who are unattached. This is gratifying, for it indicates that the caliber of boxing is improving and that membership in a club is not necesary to win. Several of the other lads, while representing organizations, are not products of boxing clubs or gymnasiums. The list of west side winners follows:

DE PAUL QUINTET AT FULL POWER FOR DETROIT U.

When the University of Detroit quintet meets De Paul university in the De Paul gymnasium Saturday night the Blue Demons will be at full strength for the first time of the season, according to Coach Jim Kelly. Injuries handicapped De Paul in earlier home games, while the entire team has suffered from the flu at various times.

He will pair with Heine Coan Saturday night. El Weston and Pete Barskis will share the job at center.

JOE KIRKWOOD HURT WHEN AUTO GOES INTO DITCH

Tallahassee, Fla., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—It was learned here today that Joe Kirkwood, trick shot golfer, was injured when his automobile plunged into a ditch near Defuniak Springs, Fla., yesterday. Kirkwood was en route to Tampa to participate in the Gasparilla golf tournament, which opens tomorrow.

Ohio Asks O. K. of Keller's Mark in High Hurdles

Columbus, O., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Athletic officials at Ohio State university will apply for A. A. U. and international recognition of the mark of 8.4 seconds set by Jack Keller in the 70-yard high hurdles at the Ohio-Indiana meet last Friday at Bloomington, it was announced today.

Keller's mark is one-tenth of a second faster than the world's indoor mark of 8.5 seconds set last year at the national A. A. U. meet by Percy Beard.

SHAMROCKS OUT TO CUT PLA-MOR LEAD TONIGHT

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The Chicago Shamrocks will play here tomorrow night with a new hope of gaining the leadership of the American Hockey league, now held by the Pla-Mors. The Shamrocks are trailing by three games, but they have played two less games, and hope to pick up the difference between now and Feb. 26, when they return here.

Marshall Five to Play Crane for Title Today

Crane Tech, defending heavyweight basketball champion of the Chicago Public High School league, will meet Marshall this afternoon as the west section race ends at Marshall's gymnasium. The game will decide the sectional championship but both teams will be eligible to compete in the semi-finals for the city title, which open next week.

The teams are tied for the sectional lead with four victories and one defeat. Two teams from each division—winner and runner up—qualify for the semi-finals.

Today's game, with two other contests, McKinley at Austin and Tuley at Harrison, will conclude the third of the four sectional races. Champions in both lightweight and heavyweight divisions have been decided in other sections with two exceptions. Calumet lightweights are tied with Bowen for second in the south section, and Roosevelt, Lane Tech, and Lake View heavyweights are deadlocked in the north district.

The three way tie in the north section, however, will be broken tomorrow when Roosevelt meets Lake View and Lane faces Schurz. A Roosevelt victory over Lake View will give it the division title if Lane loses to Schurz.

The Calumet-Bowen contest, which will give the victor the right to enter the semi-finals, will be played early next week. Parker captured the sectional championship last week.

HERE IS LATEST ALIBI FOR ALL YOU FISHERMEN

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miakka River, Fla., Feb. 17.—Under a sun many degrees hotter than usual for February in Florida, we paddled a long way up this semi-tropical stream today to find the robalo or snook had "gone Hollywood." The result was anything but satisfactory.

We all but burned out the bearings in our reel, burned the skin off our thumb and lost several dandy lures.

The trip represented a pause in beautiful country while en route to the Florida keys with plenty of salt water tackle. Having a bit of time, it was impossible to resist the Miakka with its palm fringed shores over which the moss draped oaks lean so intimately that they touch their branches overhead.

Flowing into Charlotte harbor, the Miakka has black bass in its upper reaches and snook and tarpon below. The small tarpon come inland to live at this time of the year.

We had fished this beautiful stream several times and knew something about the snok, their size, and their fighting qualities. But we weren't prepared for the Hollywood stuff.

Some months ago a motion picture company built a set among the palms and live oaks to shoot outdoor scenes against a tropical background. Yesterday we saw ornate gondolas anchored on the bank, their roofs draped with moss. Back among the palms was a big compound which looked as though it might have come from India or Africa.

All of this was very interesting, but we didn't think it would affect the robalo or snook. But it did. These fish acted very high hat.

Paul Davis of Chicago was with us and in the course of an hour four whopping big robalos high hatted the two of us so thoroughly that after swatting our bass lures they rushed away, took all the line they wanted in spite of our putting on the brakes, and then plunged into snags, so that we lost what the fisherman calls "the works."

Tonight we are looking for some quiet, well behaved snook untouched by Hollywood.

No More Piles

You Can End Your Awful Misery Quick Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

"I wish I could write it on the chart"

"ALL men should look alike to a nurse. But they don't—not by any means. We're human after all—so appearance makes a big difference. It's hard to serve a slovenly looking person with the same courtesy you extend one who makes every effort to keep himself tidy.

"What I'm leading up to is simply this:—some men use illness as an excuse to avoid shaving. Of course many patients can neither shave themselves nor have a barber. But I'm not thinking of them. I'm talking about convalescent patients or others in the hospital for observation or minor illness.

"I can't tell you how unpleasant it is to care for a man who tolerates a growth of stubble on his face. All the girls feel this way about it. Just ask any nurse."

• • •

There is no object in publishing her name—but a trained nurse volunteered the above statement during a casual conversation. In light of this opinion and the many others like it can we be accused of over-emphasizing the importance of a clean shave?

If you shave carefully every day or twice a day when necessary—this message only serves its purpose by calling your attention to the razor blade Gillette is making today. We are sincere in our statement—this is positively the sharpest blade Gillette has ever produced. Today's Gillette is unequalled for use on tender skin. It actually gives you a far better shave—the kind you can prove is clean and smooth by running your hand across your face.

Buy a package of Gillette blades on our positive money-back guarantee. Get shaving comfort without parallel or return the package with unused blades to your dealer and he'll refund the entire purchase price.

FORECLOSURE IS AVOIDED IN THIS REORGANIZATION

Property Is at Diversey and Clark.

BY AL CHASE.

Reorganization of a large bond issue without foreclosure or receivership was announced yesterday by Edgar N. Greenebaum, vice president of the Greenebaum Sons Investment company. And with his announcement he makes this comment: "This plan or reorganization seems so reasonable it isn't surprising that although the bondholders only heard of it a few weeks ago, almost two-thirds of the bonds already have been deposited with the Greenebaum Sons Investment company, which is acting as depositary."

This is the Clark and Diversey building, at the northwest corner of Diversey parkway and North Clark street, a three story store, hotel and theater structure, owned by the Diversey Building corporation, of which Fred Becklenberg is president. The original issue of $1,250,000 at 6½% has been reduced to $987,500 with a final maturity of $847,000 due July 1, 1934.

Based on existing leases it is estimated that the 1932 net income will be $76,575, whereas interest and principal due this year amount to $114,981. With the cooperation of the owner, the plan has been presented to the bondholders for reduction in the interest rate to 5% and all bonds extended to 1944. It is provided that all of the net income after payment of interest at the new rate, will be used to retire bonds. This means that the owner will receive no income from his property until 1944 as the bondholders will get it all.

Roscoe Apartments.

Holders of bonds in the Roscoe apartments, at 627-39 Roscoe street, have been mailed a plan of reorganization by the Protective committee for Straus Brothers Investment company defaulted issues, it was announced last night by Barnet L. Rosset, chairman. The original 6½% issue was for $275,000, since reduced to $248,000. Default in interest and principal occurred on Sept. 30, 1930, at which time the property was surrendered to the first mortgage trustee, Herman S. Strauss, under which foreclosure it has since been operated.

To be formed, the stock of which will be exchanged for bonds. A voting trust will be formed to control the property for ten years. The committee has obtained a temporary loan for five years at 6%, to be used to complete the reorganization. A statement of income and expenses from Oct. 1, 1930 to Sept. 30, 1931 shows net income before total taxes, interest and depreciation of $17,580. The building contains sixty-two apartments, seven of them furnished.

Bonds on twenty-nine buildings financed by George M. Forman & Co., mortgage bonds, deposited with the George M. Forman Realty Trust, or under its control, have reached a total of $13,524,000 out of the, $14,623,000 outstanding, according to an announcement by Porter Fox, one of the trustees.

Cremin & O'Connor report having negotiated a $25,000 loan, five years at 6%, on the Greenwood Court apartments, at the southwest corner of 54th street and Greenwood avenue, lot 100x164. It has fifty-four suites. This is another step in the reorganization of the property, which originally was financed by a Ritchie Bond and Mortgage company $250,000 issue. Joseph W. Cremin is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee.

NATIONAL BANK DEPOSITS SHOW LARGE DECLINE

Exacts Heavy Toll on Credit Facilities.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Slack trade and industry, unemployment and bank failures exacted a heavy toll from the credit facilities of the country's banking institutions last year. The national banks alone had a shrinkage of $3,627,299,000 in deposits and $4,137,398,000 in total resources, according to data made public yesterday by John W. Pole, controller of the currency. Part of this shrinkage was due to the smaller number of banks, the number being 6,373 at the end of 1931, compared with 7,038 at the end of 1930, a decline of 655.

Roughly, the national banks hold nearly a third of total bank deposits. Based on this percentage, both national and state banks of the country suffered a decline of around $10,000,000,000 in deposits and $12,000,000,000 in total resources. Probably half of the decline in deposits may be attributed to dull business, as deposits in normal times are swelled by loans made to commercial borrowers, part of which are left on deposit.

Large Amount Hoarded.

Moreover, it is estimated that nearly $1,500,000,000 in currency has gone into hoarding, which also accounts for a considerable part of the shrinkage in deposits. Finally, it would seem that several billions of dollars have been withdrawn from the banks by unemployed workers who have been forced to resort to their savings in order to meet living expenses. The difference between the decline in deposits and total resources represents largely the losses that banks were forced to write off.

But despite these declines the banking resources of the United States still are tremendous, with deposits running between 50 and 55 billion dollars and total resources probably between 65 and 70 billions. Aggregate deposits of national banks were $19,244,347,000 at the end of 1931, while total resources were $24,662,286,000.

Still Have Huge Sum.

And despite unemployment and withdrawal of funds, either to meet living costs or for hoarding, American workers still have a considerable reserve fund, as indicated by the fact that the national banks at the end of 1931 had more than 15,000,000 savings accounts aggregating $5,557,766,000. Total time deposits, including savings, were $7,610,436,000.

Loans and discounts of the national banks at the end of 1931 totaled $11,921,389,000, showing a shrinkage of $2,440,650,000 for the year. The banks' investments in government securities aggregated $3,176,475,000 and in other securities, $4,024,950,000. The extreme liquidity of the banks is indicated by the fact that their investments in United States obligations increased more than their other investments declined. The banks had capital of $1,621,449,000, surplus and undivided profits of $1,723,209,000 and reserves of $351,597,000, with all these items showing moderate declines.

Bright Spots in Business

The Reconstruction Finance corporation announced yesterday that the entire 15 million dollar issue of federal intermediate credit bank debentures, offered for delivery on Feb. 15, has been sold in the investment market. The corporation, it was stated, had agreed to take all or any part of the issue which remained unsold, but would not be called upon to do so.

Davenport Hosiery Mills, Inc., reported 1931 net profit of $385,975, after charges and federal taxes, equal after preferred dividends to $4.29 a share on 75,000 common shares, as against $313,891, or $3.27 a common share, in 1930.

East Taking Coal Business from Illinois

BY SCRUTATOR.

Illinois coal operators and miners are preparing to reopen the wage question. A committee of mine owners is already at work on a tentative plan of action and union leaders will meet next Tuesday at Springfield to discuss policies and name committees.

The present wage agreement expires March 31. Operators have indicated that they will demand a substantial reduction in wages. Every effort will be made to handle the wage conferences after the fashion of the recent railway wage meetings and the Chicago building trades wage conferences.

The coal operators have not yet decided on any specific demands, but they have let it be known that they will seek a "major readjustment of the wage scale." They call attention to wage scales 50 per cent lower in nonunion fields in the east.

Mine owners declare that eastern mines employing cheap nonunion labor have been cutting deeper and deeper into markets which formerly consumed mostly Illinoi coal.

Easterners Win Business.

Illinois coal has been steadily giving way to eastern coal for years. Even in its own primary markets it has been largely displaced. Chicago ten years ago got about two-thirds of its coal from Illinois fields and one-third from the east. Now the situation is completely reversed. Chicago gets nearly two-thirds of its coal from eastern fields.

Last year Illinois mines produced only fifty per cent of their 1917 production. Kentucky, however, produced 146 per cent and West Virginia 116 per cent of 1917 production.

In 1931 an average of 38,500 mine workers were employed. They produced 43 million tons of coal and their total pay was aproximately $35,000,000. In 1923 an average of 99,500 workers were paid an estimated $100,000,000 and they produced 80 million tons.

Depression is nothing new to the coal industry. Back in 1929 out of 2,342 companies engaged in mining bituminous coal, 1,437 operated at a loss. For the industry as a whole there was in 1929 a net deficit of $11,303,853. That was a comparatively good year.

Mines Closing Down.

In Illinois coal mining has fared worse than in other states. In 1923 there were 374 shipping mines in the state. Last year there ere 171 and in December only 151 were being operated. About sixty per cent of the mines that were running in 1923 have either been permanently abandoned or closed indefinitely.

Eastern coals have not only been displacing the Illinois product in its own state, but have been taking away markets further north and west. In 1923 Illinois mines shipped 1,414,000 tons of coal to St. Paul and Minneapolis; in 1930, only 251,000 tons. Receipts of eastern coal at Lake Michigan and Lake Superior ports increased from 14,800,000 tons in 1920 to 23,000,000 tons in 1930.

These things are known to both miners and operators. What the latter are attempting to do is convince their workers that Illinois coal cannot compete with eastern coal as long as there is a wide difference between the wage scales in the two fields.

Illinois Wage Rate High.

It is estimated that labor represents from 70 to 80 per cent of the value of coal at the mine. According to the Illinois Coal Operators association the Illinois basic rate of $6.10 compares with a union scale of $2.40 in northern West Virginia and nonunion scales of $2.22 in Alabama, $2.43 to $3.60 in West Virginia, $3.28 in west Kentucky, and $4.10 in central Pennsylvania.

Several years ago when Illinois mines were thriving about 80 per cent of the nation's coal output came from union mines. Costs of production in the various fields were relatively uniform and coal from Kentucky and West Virginia could not well compete in Illinois and west of the Mississippi with Illinois coal because of the difference in freight costs. Now, however, only about 20 per cent of the nation's production is from union mines.

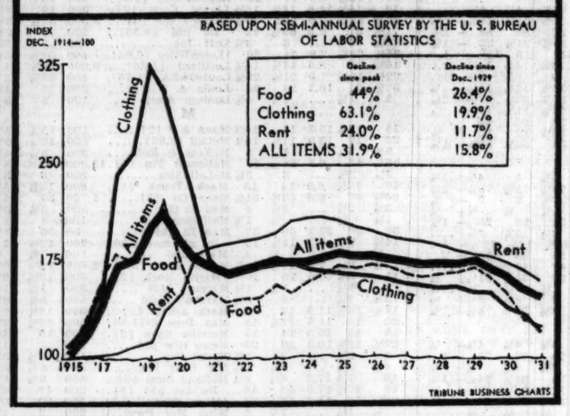
GOVERNMENT REPORTS DECLINE IN COST OF LIVING IN CHICAGO



CHICAGO MOTOR CLUB INSURANCE DIVISION SETS RECORD IN 1931

An indication of the situation in the automobile insurance business is seen in the annual statement of the Inter-Insurance exchange of the Chicago Motor club, according to E. R. Seely, president of W. C. Kirby & Co., certified public account, who completed the audit yesterday.

"In the face of what looked like depression in 1931," he said, "the exchange sold 78,083 contracts, an all time record, compared with 75,153 in 1930. The exchange, a reciprocal company, returned in cash to contract holders $816,473 during 1931, against $789,020 in 1930. The savings return was greater in 1931 than in any other year of its history.

"The figures indicate that automobile users have access to funds to meet their wants and are actually making normal expenditures. In this particular field, the expenditures are above those of the peak year of 1929. In light of past experience the disclosures of this audit indicate a strong market in automobiles and automobile accessories, in which latter classification the item of insurance lies.

BANKER REFUSES TO EXTEND NOTES OF MO. PACIFIC

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Missouri Pacific Railroad company has informed the interstate commerce commission it has been unable to obtain an extension of $11,700,000 worth of notes held by J. P. Morgan & Co. and due April 1. N. B. Haley, chief of the loan section of the finance bureau, had suggested that the bankers agree to carry half of the $11,700,000 so long as the Reconstruction Finance corporation would carry the other half.

The railroad applied to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for $23,250,000 to meet obligations until it could obtain money for repayment from the Railroad Credit corporation. Among these obligations were the Morgan bank notes. The application said the loans had been made in anticipation of refinancing by the use of bonds, but that there was no prospect of being able to sell bonds at an early date.

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Sales of the Baldwin Locomotive Works in 1931, including all divisions, were approximately $24,400,000 against $49,800,000 in 1930, George H. Houston, president, stated in his annual report released for publication today, which shows net loss for the year of $4,122,759 against net income of $3,036,624 in 1930.

"Sales of locomotive products amounted to $6,197,036, as compared with $31,026,055 for the year before," he said. "It will be noted that the volume of locomotive business has been reduced in much greater proportion than that of our company's other products. This is due to the sharply reduced buying power of the railroads and no substantial improvement in locomotive sales can be expected until the general condition of the railroads had been improved."

Mr. Houston explained that the loss of $4,122,759 was after deduction of $1,300,190 for depreciation reserves. During the year the company acquired properties manufacturing a varied line of products, including turbines, refrigerator equipment, Diesel engines, and castings.

The company's balance sheet disclosed $20,024,811 current assets against $1,021,335 current liabilities, a ratio of better than 10 to 1. Surplus stood at $17,329,635.

FRENZY TO GET MONEY FOR GOLD SWEEPS BRITAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The English gold rush is on. A tide of the yellow metal cast from sovereigns, jewelry, family heirlooms, and even picture frames and dental plates is pouring into goldsmiths' and brokers' offices in London. A frenzy to obtain the advantageous price caused by the pound sterling's fall after the dropping of the gold standard is spreading over the country, for the sovereign—the golden pound—is worth 27 shillings 6 pence at the current rate [about $4.75], compared with the 20 shillings [$3.45] at which the paper pound is now redeemable in gold.

Goldsmiths posted large signs over their doors urging holders to part with anything in their possession which is made of gold. An afternoon paper carried a full page of advertisements of jewelers, assayers and refiners bidding for business. Six large firms were represented, two of them offering 27 shillings 6 pence for sovereigns.

Giannini, Victor in Proxy Battle, Visits in City

A. P. Giannini, who recently won a proxy battle with Wall street bankers and regained control of the Transamerica corporation, passed through the city yesterday en route from Wilmington, Del., to the Pacific coast. Mr. Giannini, who arrived on the Liberty Limited, tarried long enough in the city to call on some Chicago bankers. Through his victory Mr. Giannini was elected chairmon of the board of the Transamerica corporation, succeeding Elisha Walker, New York banker.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—Urging that full support be extended to the present program planned for relief of railroads of the United States so that their immense purchasing power again may be utilized and serve as a stimulant for general business, Harry J. Haas, president of the American Bankers' association, addressing the midwinter conference of the trust division of the association at the Hotel Commodore also urged caution before accepting those panaceas for lifting the country out of depression which are inflationary of the radical type.

"Economists agree," Mr. Haas said, "that increased purchasing power would help business, but there are many and varied methods which have been advocated to bring this about. Some are sound ideas while others are inflations of the most radical type.

Only Temporary Relief.

"It seems to me that pure inflation for inflation's sake would only give temporary relief and postpone the ultimate mastery of conditions on a sound and safe basis. We have suffered much grief already and it would seem to me that all this would go for naught and we would have to repeat the experience unless our recovery should be on a sound basis.

"We know from our country's experience in grain and cotton, Britain's experience in rubber, Japan in silk, and Brazil in coffee, as well as others, that prices cannot be maintained arbitrarily or artificially for any length of time, and that the inexorable law of supply and demand ultimately will govern the prices of agricultural and manufactured products.

"The price of wages necessarily must follow the exchange values of these products one for the other. Whether that basis is high or low is immaterial so long as they are equitable and stable."

Corrective Measures.

Mr. Haas chose the railroads for support because of their far-reaching economic bearing on the life of the country. In outlining corrective measures necessary in the case of the carriers, he quoted the summation of R. H. Aishton, president of the American Railways association and chairman of the Association of Railway Executives. These corrective measures call for: solution of the financial problems of the roads; the curing of present regulatory ills which prevent the carriers from building up reserves in normal times; lack of appropriate regulation of competing forms of transportation, and their coordination with the carrier systems.

FORM GROUP TO FIGHT PRAIRIE, SINCLAIR MERGER

Determined efforts to block the consolidation of the Prairie Pipe Line company and the Prairie Oil and Gas company with the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation on the basis of the terms approved by the officials of the two Prairie companies were taken yesterday with the formation of stockholders' protective committees.

The committee representing Prairie Pipe Line company stockholders is composed of Wm. Roy Carney, Chicago; C. R. Armstrong, Lockhaven, Pa.; Courtney C. Davis, and Kirk D. Holland, Chicago. Mr. Carney, Quintin Johnstone Jr., and C. E. Singletary, represent the stockholders of the Prairie Gas and Oil company.

In the case of the Prairie Pipe Line company, the committee charges that the stockholders are offered junior stock burdened with debt for senior stock which has no debts. The committee adds that if the directors of the Prairie Pipe Line company would first declare a dividend of $12 a share the proposal to exchange the stock for Sinclair Consolidated stock on a basis of 1.4 shares of Sinclair for each share of Prairie Pipe would then be equitable.

The meetings at which stockholders will vote on the proposed consolidation will take place in Independence, Kas., on March 1.

AM. TELEPHONE PAYS DIVIDEND; S. PACIFIC WAITS

Utility Men Hopeful; Railway in Doubt.

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph company today refused to fall in line with a number of leading companies who feel that reduced business volume in 1932 justifies omitting dividend payments for the time being. The directors went into their dividend meeting at noon today, and a little later word was flashed out that the regular quarterly payment of $2.25 a share had been voted.

The payment will call for the largest dividend disbursement ever made in the history of the giant corporation. Based on the total of stock now outstanding, dividend checks will call for $41,981,312, and this figure may be raised to $42,000,000 through issuance of additional stock on completed employé stock purchase contracts.

Maintain Wages and Dividends.

Second in importance only to the question of maintaining existing wage scales, it was said today that directors of the telephone company hold as a policy to maintaining dividend payments at the present scale. There are nearly 650,000 persons who hold stock in the corporation, which has approximately $3,000,000,000 of assets. Although final 1931 earning figures have not yet been published, the company fully covered its $9 a share dividend requirement. Currently, it was reported in Wall street, earnings are a shade under dividend requirements.

At today's meeting, it was announced that W. Cameron Forbes, retiring ambassador to Japan, was elected to the board. He succeeds Jeremiah Smith, who was delegated by the league of nations in 1924 to direct the financial reconstruction of Hungary. Mr. Smith is retiring from the board, is was stated, on account of his health.

Southern Pacific Delays Action.

The Southern Pacific company, which operates the United States' most extensive railroad system, today announced after a meeting of its directors that "no action was taken on the quarterly dividend usually payable on April 1 of each year." This, it was explained, merely represented a postponement of action. The last quarterly payment, which was $1, was paid Jan. 2.

"It was decided in view of the continued decline in the revenues of the company resulting from the reduction in the volume of freight and passenger traffic," the company announced, "to postpone consideration of further dividend declaration until the regular meeting of the board in May, by which time it is hoped that a better understanding of the trend of traffic for the remainder of the year can be reached."

May Prevent Selling Stocks.

The announcement recalled somewhat similar action taken recently by New York Central directors, who avoided technical omission by announcing that payments would be considered on a semi-annual basis, rather than quarterly. It was said that Southern Pacific's action would probably be interpreted in the same way by managers of fixed investment trusts which are compelled by trust indentures in some cases to dump stocks on the market in case dividend payments are passed entirely.

While the directors had no comment to make beyond their formal statement, it was indicated that every effort would be made to keep the company's 26 year dividend record intact. Since 1906 the company has never gone through a single year without a payment of some kind. It was one of the few railroad companies which went through the depression of 1920-1921 without reducing its regular rate, which has been $6 since 1908. The last payment of $1, however, reduced the annual basis to $4.

Vote Preferred Dividend.

The International Silver company declared a dividend of $1 a share on the preferred stock, as reduced from the usual quarterly rate of $1.75. For the last ten years the company paid regular dividends of $7 annually on the preferred, the cumulative rate.

The Mergenthaler Linotype company authorized a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share, only half of the amount which the company had been distributing every three months heretofore. George H. Meyers and H. L. Gage were added to the board. J. C. Mackey, executive vice president, said that financial condition is sound, but as no definite improvement has as yet been indicated, directors were of the opinion that it would be unwise to distribute more than 75 cents at this time.

Paraffine companies voted a dividend of 50 cents, compared with 75 cents in the previous quarter prior to which the stock was on a $4 annual basis.

CONTINENTAL CAN EARNS AT RATE OF $3.27 A SHARE

The annual report of the Continental Can Company, Inc., for 1931 shows net earnings of $5,670,699 after all charges and federal taxes. This is equivalent to $3.27 a share on 1,732,985 no par capital shares outstanding and comparable with net earnings of $8,738,094, or $5.04 a share, for the previous year.

Earnings were after setting side $1,232,840 out of earnings as a special reserve against receivable in addition to usual writeoffs. Further, $350,000 was reserved from earned surplus to write down book value of mortgages, securities, etc., and $50,000 was appropriated from the same source for unemployment relief. Expenditures for new plants and plant improvements in 1931 totaled $2,904,150. Plans have now been completed and construction work will start shortly on a new can manufacturing plant at Harvey, La.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—The stock market ran into thick weather again today. After getting away to a good start, the list found it had to contend with considerable doubt regarding the soundness of the rally staged in the late dealings yesterday afternoon as well as with fresh misgivings raised by the weekly trade summaries indicating no change for the better in any worth while quarter.

Speculative selling and profit taking gradually gathered momentum and the closing gong found from 1 to 3 points of the recent sensational gains rubbed out. Auburn Auto was down 8 points, American Telephone 5@5⅞, and Union Pacific 4.

Trade Turns Dull.

Trading turned dull on the setback, however, indicating that the short sellers were not overly anxious to press their newly gained advantage. The street heard that some of the most active members of the bear contingent had come in for some sore punishment in the sensational bull advance of last week and indications were that they were determined not to do anything rash again until the fog lifted. Hordes of amateur shorts are known to have got their fingers burned and judging from the chart on past performances, it may be quite some time before they are in the mood for another trimming.

There were scraps of good news from here and there including the declaration of American Telephone's regular quarterly dividend and the report of declining bank failures, but they served merely to illustrate the market's indifference when in an unreceptive mood. The decline in wheat on the Chicago pit probably had some effect toward dampening enthusiasm.

U. S. Steel Loses.

In the earlier dealings United States Steel, attempting to lead an extension of the Thursday afternoon rally, again reached 50, but was unable to register a new year's high. The finish found it back to 47 on a loss of 2½ points on the day.

Profit taking in American Telephone assumed lively proportions following the dividend announcement, bearing that utility division leader down at one time nearly 8 points. The sensational upturn of this high-priced trading favorite obviously had amply discounted the dividend action. From a low of 109¾ last Wednesday, the stock had soared to a high of 135½ yesterday. Moreover, there was some gossip this morning to the effect that the board would declare dividends for the full year at today's meeting or at least announce its intention to maintain the $9 rate and when no such announcement was forthcoming many holders concluded that the show was over and proceeded to get out.

Rail Shares Suffer.

Railroad shares had an off day generally and losses of from 2 to 4 points were recorded in such issues as Union Pacific, Atchison, New York

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The figures above indicate the results achieved by The Old Line Life Insurance Company of America during its past two decades of active operation, and give the public a very correct idea of what may be expected in the future.

All policies in force with this company today are worth their face value. The company writes life insurance under some thirty-five different plans, also a complete line of accident and health policies; thus it is in a position to meet the requirements of all.

At the end of each year since its organization, it has been able to point out an increase in assets, legal reserve and surplus to policyholders. With its increase in assets at the close of 1931 of more than a million dollars over 1930, the company holds its position today as firmly as in the past, a strong, conservative and progressive institution.

The home office and the underwriters of The Old Line Life Insurance Company of America plan to continue the administration of its affairs in the interest of its policyholders.

The company will be glad to assist its policyholders in keeping their insurance in force and to render every service possible. Correspondence from the company's policyholders is invited.

CHICAGO STOCKS YIELD GROUND IN SELLING DRIVE

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A late drive against stocks in New York brought out increased selling on the Chicago exchange yesterday and leading stocks finished the day from a fraction to three points under previous quotations. Mild reactionary tendencies prevailed throughout the trading session, but it was not until the last hour that the real declines were chalked up. For a few minutes the selling was heavy and prices dropped rapidly, but the ticker slowed up before the final gong.

With so much skepticism being voice abount the soundness of the recent upturn, it was regarded as inevitable that the rally would attract considerable short selling. This selling, however, has been confined largely to the professional element with the board room, speculators operating on the bull side or staying out of the market for the time being.

Little Faith in Rumor.

The talk heard in brokerage circles in the last two days about the possibility of the legalization of 4 per cent beer has been taken with more than a grain of salt by brokers and traders. The rumor has bobbed up so often in the last year that it now receives little attention.

But all the talk about beer and inflation—or "anti-deflation" as it is officially called—failed to keep stocks pointed upward yesterday. The most conspicuous declines in the Chicago list were in Commonwealth Edison and Insull Utility debentures. A net loss of 2 points were chalked up for the latter while Edison sold off 3 to 108½. Recessions elsewhere in the list were smaller and generally kept within a one point margin.

Gains 1½ Points.

John R. Thompson stock was an exception to the trend. A sudden flurry of activity during which 1,200 shares changed hands resulted in a net gain of 1½ points.

An account in this column yesterday of the annual statement of the Lincoln Printing company said that the company held $619,376 of its own common stock. The figure represents all the security investments of the company including 8,275 shares of its own stock which was purchased at $134,690. Against these investments the company has set up a reserve of $227,450, leaving a net value of $391,926.

WHEAT PRICES BOB UP AND DOWN; CLOSE IS LOWER

Show 6 Cents Gain for Week at High Mark.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

There are so many cross currents in the wheat situation that the market fluctuates with surprising rapidity. Prices yesterday had a range of 2@2¼c and, after an early dip, agresssive commission house buying advanced the nearby futures to a new high on the current movement and the September to a new high on the crop, May touching 62⅝c and July 63⅝c on the bulge.

Long wheat came into the pit in profusion on the bulge and disclosed an overbought condition, and prices dropped as sharply as they had advanced early, with the close at net losses of 1⅝@1¾c, buying against bids being the main influence in checking the decline. March finished at 57¼ to 57⅝c; May, 60⅝ to 60¾c; July, 61⅞ to 62c, and September, 63⅝c.

Market Acts Strained.

The advance of 6@6⅝c in wheat futures from the low of last week to the high point yesterday was regarded as having resulted in a material weakening in the technical position, and a majority of operators were not surprised at the setback from the bulge. President Hoover's special message to congress advocating drastic economy was a partial disappointment to the trade which anticipated the address would touch on prohibition or other subjects likely to have some effect on the grain market.

A less urgent demand for cash wheat was reported at Liverpool and futures in the latter market failed to reflect the strong upturn in North America the previous day, although closing ⅞@1¼c per bu higher with May at 59¾c. Winnipeg was ⅞@1c lower for the day with May at 65⅞c in Canadian funds, while Buenos Aires was ⅜c lower.

H. J. Blum, a leading Chicago grain and stock operator, said yesterday:

"The belief has been prevalent in the grain trade that on every advance in the market, the farm board has been selling wheat futures. I have information from sources that I know to be reliable that this is absolutely not the truth. It stands to reason that in times of national economic difficulties such as exist at present, it would be almost an act of treason for the stabilization board to sell even a bushel of wheat in the pit. There is no foundation in fact for this belief."

Corn in Easy Close.

Corn was influenced largely by the action of wheat, but the market acted somewhat tired from the start and when pressure increased prices dropped quickly with the finish at the bottom with net losses of 1⅛@1½c. March closed at 36⅝c; May, 39⅞ to 40c, and July, 42¾c. Shipping demand continues distinctly slow with sales of only 20,000 bu while the country sold 32,000 bu to arrive.

Clear and colder weather over the corn belt was regarded as favorable for the movement of grain, and the trade is inclined to look for a liberal movement between now and the time spring work gets under way. The Buenos Aires was ⅜@¾c lower at the last with May at 29c.

BUTTER FUTURES STEADY

Butter futures gained at the opening on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, but failed to hold, the close being unchanged. Egg futures were 3c lower to ¼c higher. Covering carried butter forward early and new buying appeared, holding the market firm. Later this support weakened and selling increased, sending the prices back. Storage reports were about as recently recorded, while production information showed another increase in the make. Activity in eggs was slightly improved, although the market failed to move materially. Sales: butter, 56 cars; eggs, 18 cars. Prices follow:

Commonwealth Customers Pay LESS for LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months or pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.

Why pay more than HOUSEHOLD'S LOW RATE on loans? . . .

Household loans, $50 to $300 to families at reasonable rates. Rate on loans above $150 almost one-third lower than maximum permitted by small loan law.

For example, average monthly cost of $200 repaid in 20 equal monthly payments is $2.63—the lowest in Chicago.

CHINA'S VERDUN, WHERE JAPANESE INVADERS OF CHAPEI FAILED TO PASS AND WERE HURLED BACK. The key of the Chinese position in the native settlement at Shanghai, where the men of the 19th route army, protected by seemingly insignificant intrenchments, stopped the Japanese marines and, driving them back, proceeded to strengthen their positions before the next attack upon them came. (Story on page 1.)

ISSUES WARNING. Mayor Wu Teh-chen of Shanghai tells of Japanese preparations for new attack. (Story on page 1.)

[Acme Photo.]

JAPANESE CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS IN WHANGPOO ARE TARGETS FOR ARTILLERY AT SHANGHAI. Chinese shells aimed at these ships, which are lying off the international settlement, did damage on shore. There was a lull in the fighting for a time yesterday. (Story on page 1.)

[Copyright: Harris & Ewing Photo.]

SOME OF THE JAPANESE WOUNDED DURING FIGHTING IN CHAPEI. The picture, taken during the first stages of the fighting in Shanghai, is evidence that the Japanese marines met with more resistance than they expected and that the casualties were greater than they were willing at first to admit. (Story on page 1.)
